In the Philadelphia Courts last week an important decision was made affecting the rights of passengers in him from changing his will, and after railroad cars and the duty of railroad companies to find seats for those they agree to carry. Some six years ago William B. Levan, formerly a citizen of this place, but then and now a resibent of Philadelphia, purchased a ticket and entered a passenger car on the Pennsylvania Railroad. He showed his ticket to the conductor and demanded a seat. but as the ordinary cars on the train were full that could not be given him. He then entered a Pullman palace car and found a vacant seat which he occupied. the later years of our nation's life. The impoverishment of the old planter classes in the south and the excitements consequent upon emancipation among the colored people have both proved seriously productive of insanity. More especially has this been the case since the panic of 1873 commenced. Throughout all the southren states the statistics show a decided increase of insanity during the last three years, as well among blacks as whites, and after every Presidential election a new crop of maules turns up as a result of intense political excitement, and the disappointments with which such excitement is invariably foliowed .- Williamsport Gazette & Builetin.
