He handed us the trophies in the shape of two pairs of rattles."

While we are sorry to lose Ed, we send our best wishes for his future success. Faithfulness in small things is the sowing that will bring the harvest of merited success.

DEATH OF THE PRESIDENT.

Long Branch, Sept. 19.-The President died at 10:35 to-night. At the evening bulletin his condition was thought a trifle more comfortable. There was a feeling of satisfaction on all sides that he had escaped another rigor, which had been anxiously feared since the chill of the morning. Dr. Boynton during the early evening talked even a little hopefully, and the people about the hotels prepared to retire at the usual hour, having almost no fear of any serious change before morning. At 10 o'clock Secretary Brown's cottage was dark and deserted. A few of the more vigilant newspaper men sat talking on the Elberon piazza. Dr. Boynton was among them. At 10:20 a colored messenger called Dr. Boynton out in the dark and whispered to him excitedly. The Doctor turned back to the group of reporters. "The President is sinking rapidly!" he said, and disappeared across the lawn toward the President's cottage. In a minute the scene had changed. There was a hurrying about the house, and the word was quickly sent the length of Long Branch that the President was greatly worse. The reporters went out on the lawn as far as the guard lines to wait for tidings. A voice was heard saying: "It is all over; the President is dead." It was Warren Young, one of the secretaries, who spoke.
In an instant the little telegraph office in the Elberon Hotel was surrounded, and there was a shower of bulletins thrown upon the two paralyzed operators. No more than the simple announcement of death could be sent off, as the Government telegraph office at Elberon. No personal despatches were sent. Warren Young sent the first official announcement off to Washington and to Mentor.
The President's words when he felt the death pang attack him were: "I am suffering great pain. I fear that the end is near."

-The meaning of the "ss," seen in nearly all legal documents and advertisements is not generally known. Many have inquired the use of the cabalistic device until the question has got into the newspapers. A correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, after much research has decided that the symbol is derived from the Latin phrase sub salutem, i. e., "greeting or addressing its own," those within its jurisdiction.
-From Mr. Frank R. Mullen, of Reynoldsville, we learn that the land sales in Jefferson county, to Herbert P. Brown, of New York, and Yates and Abbott, amount to over 6,000 acres. Of this Brown bought about 6,000 acres, and Yates and Abbott the balance. The first sale to Brown embraced some 1,200 acres in Snyder and Washington townships, and was made by Mr. Mullen. The sales to Brown in the south side of the county amounted to about 2,700 acres, and were made through Messrs. Brown, Long, Smith and Pantall. About the same time Mr. Mullen sold to Brown several hundred acres in Snyder and Washington townships, and has since sold him several hundred acres more in the same locality. All the land purchased by Yates and Abbott are in Washington townships. Brown has paid cash in full on delivery of deeds, for all his purchases. Yates and Abbott make time payments, according to their articles of agreement, paying about one-third down. These sales have brought into the county over $300,000 in money. -Brookville Democrat.
How It Goes to Keep House.
This is a married man's experience. It is just fun to keep house. All you have to do is get up at five o'clock in the morning, clean out the stove, sift the ashes, build the fire, bring up the water, put on the tea-kettle, lug coal from the farthest end of the cellar, assist in preparing the quail and other delicacies for breakfast, swallow the meal, and hurry off to business. At noon you bring up more coal and, drive a dozen or more nails for pictures, pokers, brackets, dish pans and other ornaments; move the stove about four inches to the left, mash your fingers with the hammer, eat your dinner and get back to work. After supper you must spit wood, put it in the oven, bring up more coal and water, scour the neighborhood for breakfast, have a jaw with the grocery man regarding the price of butter, look all over the house for burglars, lock all the doors, and by that time it is ten o'clock-time to go to bed. The balance of the day you have to your self.
Obituary
From the Wilmington, Illinois Review, of Aug. 27, the following notice is taken. The deceased was a brother of Charles Mead, Esquire of Ridgway, and was years ago a resident of Elk county, and well known to many of our elder citizens:
MEAD-In Elwood, on the 18th inst., Mr. John Mead, aged 83 years. In the death of Mr. Mead another vacancy is caused in the ranks of the early settlers of Will county who have resided in this county upwards of 50 years, and was engaged in farming at Star's grove until 1875, when he removed to Elwood, where he resided at the time of his death. Previous to leaving his farm he suffered a severe sunstroke, which in late years had affected his mind to such an extent that it was necessary that he be looked after, which task devolved upon his kind and loving wife, and by her every wants was supplied, but on the morning of the last week, in an unguarded moment-the members of the household being engaged elsewhere, not anticipating the danger that lay in his path-he stepped into the kitchen where he found a bottle of medicine he supposed contained medicine he was taking, poured some into a cup and swallowed it, the contents of the bottle being spirits of turpentine and anonia prepared for washing purposes, caused his death on the following Thursday morning.
Mr. Mead was born in Saratoga county, N. Y., Aug. 15, 1798, where he resided for 17 years, then went to Pennsylvania and in after years married Mrs. Betsy Cadwell, nee Luce; two children were born to them-Adaline, wife of Jacob Rothrock, and Julia, wife of Jonathan Warner-both of whom had gone before. In 1866 his wife died, and he married Miss Nancy Cox in 1867, who survives him, and he wanted to him all that a devoted and affectionate wife could be.
Funeral services were held in the M. E. church at Elwood, and his remains were taken to Star's grove cemetery for interments, followed by a large concourse of relatives and friends. Mrs. Mead has the sympathy of the entire community in this her sad bereavement.

On To Bradford.

WORK ON THE EXTENSION OF THE ROCHESTER AND PITTSBURG RAILROAD.
Work on the Bradford extension of the Rochester and Pittsburg railway, says the Rochester Herald, was begun August 11th, at which time but a small fraction of the right of way had been secured. Conductor I. M. Ludington was taken from his train with instructions to get the work under way and continue it until relieved. It was Mr. Ludington's old occupation and he took hold of it with so much push and success that he has been left to prosecute it to the end. From Salamanca to Bradford is a distance of seventeen miles. Between the present terminus of the road and Carlton, six miles, the line is most graded, and as it was on that stretch that the heaviest work was required, it will be seen that rapid progress has been made.
The extension traverses the Cattaraugus Indian reservation, and much standing timber required removal. The number of men, employed at present is 300, but 200 more, including a large number of stone-cutters, will be engaged soon. Mr. Ludington expects to begin tracklaying in about three weeks. The iron is already shipped. Track laying and ballasting will go on together. It is expected that the extension to Bradford will be in running order about the middle of November. This new direct route to Bradford, when completed, will have great advantages over all others. In view of this work, the removal of the city terminus to a point near the business center, and the determination of the company to extend its line southward to Pittsburg, even the most cautious and skeptical people will begin to feel that the present management of the Rochester and Pittsburg Railway is bound to make the road an important railway line, and one of incalculable value to the future of this city.

-Jacob Ehling, of Perry township, died at his home on Thursday last, aged 81 years, 9 months and 12 days. He was well known to many people of Jefferson county, his house having been a regular stopping place for many years for the teamsters who followed the road from Pottsville to Northville and Ringgold. He came to Jefferson from Millin county about 1840 or 41. He was the father of seven children, had one hundred and eighty grand children, and seventy-five great-grand children. -Brookville Democrat.
Habitual Profanity.
One cannot walk the streets or travel in the cars, or stop at public places, and not be sadly touched by the amount of profanity he hears. Boys hardly old enough to talk plainly; young men just stepping over the threshold of active life; gray haired men bending over the grave, and all in fetters to this degrading habit. It matters little what the place or occasion, your ears are filled with profanity. We can understand how under extreme provocation a man might give utterance to an oath. We understand, if we do not sympathize with a passionate man, when he snaps out a too energetic word. But for a man in common, every day conversation, to calmly, even stupidly, mix in a dozen or more profane expressions, there is no excuse; and yet it is the result of a habit that has grown upon the American people and deserves censure. No body utters his first oath without something of a shudder. No man with any regard for the proprieties of society ever swears in the presence of ladies. It is more a matter of habit than any vice to which the people are addicted. Now, if those who have this wretched habit will break it, if only a few days, and listen to others, they will see how senseless, how unmanly it is, and how little necessity there is for it. It is the most gratuitous and uncomplimentary of all sins. It neither gives force to remark, dignity to speech, nor impressiveness to thought. And it is a habit easily broken as formed. -Ex.

Be Wise and Happy.
If you will stop all your extravagant and wrong notions in doctoring yourself and families with expensive doctors or humbug cure-alls, that do harm always, and use only nature's simple remedies for all your ailments-you will be wise, well and happy, and save great expense. The greatest remedy for this, the great, wise and good will tell you, is Hop Bitters-rely on it. See another column.-Pres.
