HEARD FROM AT LAST.

News Received of the Arctic Exploring Vessel Jeannette.

News has at last been received from the long missing Arctic exploring vessel Jeannetie, which sailed from San Francisco for the Arctic which salled from San Francisco for the Arctic regions in July, 1879, and, not having been heard from for two years, had been given up by the majority of people as lost. Licu-tenant-General Anoutchine, governor-general of Eastern Siberia, who has just arrived at St. Petersburg, has brought the news that the Jeannette has been discovered, and that assist-ance has been rendered the crew. He says that news reached the government at Jakutsk, Eastern Siberia, that on September 14 three that news reached the government at Jakutsk, Eastern Siberia, that on September 14 three natives of Oulons, near Cape Barhay, 140 versts north of Cape Bikoff, discovered a boat con-tarning cleven men, who said that they be-longed to the Jeannette and had undergone terrible suffering. On hearing the news the district deputy governor, with a doctor and medicines, was immediately dispatched to had the district suffers and was in ties. to help the shipwrecked sailors, and was in-structed to bring them to Jakutak. The gov-ernor was also instructed to do everything in his power to rescue the remainder of the crew, 500 rubles being given him for first expenses.

Engineer Melville, of the Jeannette, has Engineer Melville, of the Jeannette, has telegraphed to the American legation at St. Petersburg that the Jeannette was surrounded and crushed by ice on the 23d cf June, in lati-tude 77 degrees north, longit... 157 degrees cast. The crew left the vessel in three boats. About fifty miles from the mouth of the Lena they were separated by winds and thick togs. Boat No. 3, commanded by Engineer Melville, arrived on the 29th of September at the eastern mouth of the river Lena, where it was stopped by blooks of ice near the village of Belenenga. moth of the Free Long, where it was stopped by blocks of ice near the village of Bolenenga, inhabited by idolators. Boat No. 1 reached the same spot. The occupants of these boats say that Licentenant De Long and Dr. Ambler, with twelve others, landed at the northern month of the Lena, and that they are in a fearful condulton environ from from the the month of the Lena, and that they are in a fearful condition, suffering from frostbitten limbs. A party of the inhabitants of Bolenen-ga started immediately for their assistance. Nothing is known of boat No. 2. A special supplement of the St. Potersburg Official densette announced that all telegrams from Engineer Melville, of the lost Arctic ex-ploring steamer Jeannette, would be forwarded to their deniutions as mounted as a passible to their destinations as promptly as possible and that most energetic measures would be taken for the discovery of the remainder of the crew of the Jeannette and those left on the ice 000 of the city's funds. Engineer Melville forwarded by natives long dispatches to Mr. Bernett, of the New York Berald. For want of funds they were forwarded by post addressed to General Ignation. On October 29 Nindeman and Noras, seamen, who were in boat No. 1, joined their comrades and said that Lieucenant DeLong, Dr. Ambler and twolve others had reached the northern mouth of the Lena and were starving. An expedition was at once sent out to rescue them. The sur-vivors lost everything. Engineer Melville said money was urgently needed, and should be sent by telegraph to Jakutsk. He urgently sent by requested that 6,000 rubles he transmitted im-mediately to the governor of Jakutsk for the return and care of the shipwrecked men. On the twenty-eighth day of his trial Guiteau appeared in court with his beard off, his face having been slaven to admit of a cast of his tentures being taken by Mills, the sculptor. Mr. Hobbs, one of the jurymen, had lost his wife. The district attorney rese, and in ap-propriate terms referred to the calamity which had fallen on the juror, and said that the instincts of humanity required that the juror be allowed an oppertunity of paying proper respect to the memory of his deceased wife. respect to the memory of his deceased wile. He therefore proposed, with the assent of the prisoner and his counsel, that Mr. Hobbs be permitted to go home. Mr. Scoville expressed his full consent to the proposition, and sug-gested that the juror should not even be incumbered by the presence of a bailiff. At the same time he asked the court to admonish all the jurors not to have any communication or conversation with outside persons in regard to the case. Judge Cox said that the bailiffs in the case, Judge Cox said that the balling in charge of the jury were aware of the rule, and enforced it, and that the jurors themselves understood it. The prisoner said he had entire confidence in the honor and integrity of the jurors. Judge Cox repeated his admonition to the jurors to hold no communication with any per-on outside in reference to the case. Mr Scoville stipulated that the warning should should not be read by the jurves. He also intimated that he desired to put some further questions to Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Dunmire, and asked that they be not allowed to leave the city. The order permitting Mr. Hobbs to ge home was then duly made and entered, and the court adjourned for two days.

home was then only indee and entered, and the court adjourned for two days. After the two days' recess proceedings on the twenty-ninth day of the trial were began by the continuation of the testimony of Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, of New York. The witness was cross-examined by Mr. Scoville, and in answer to quections he said a man may be insense from a medical point of view and insane from a medical point of view, and yet be able to distinguish perfectly between right and wrong. Dr. Worcester, of B-ston, who had been called two or three weeks ago as who had been called two or lines weeks ago as an expert for the defense, and who was abruptly dismissed by Mr. Scoville, appeared next as an expert for the prosecution. He had examined Guiteau in jail, and watched him and listened to his ulterances in court for several weeks, and he thought the prisoner was same. The prisoner encode at this and asked the doctor how much he would be paid for that opinion. The district attorney asked two opinion. The district attorney asked two hug hypothetical questions, embracing the prosecution's view of the case, and the dector said that, assuming the propositions to be true, he thought Guitean was sane when he shot the Tresident. Guitean in-terrupted the reading of these questions with denials and corrections. He insisted that he was inspired, alleged that District Attorney Corkhill obtained from him, on July 3, through a deception, an interview on the subject, and complained that Corshil destroyed his notes of this interview, in which the inspiration theory was stated, and then declared in court that Guitean had never thought of inspiration until Guiteau had never thought of inspiration until weeks after the ascassination. On the cross-examination of Dr. Worcester it appeared that weeks after the as-assimation. On the cross-examination of Dr. Worcester it appeared that he had at first regarded Guifeau as insame, and had written to Mr. Scoville asking whether he could be of use to the prisoner. Guiteau was in a bad temper, and he abused his coun-sel for the way he conducted the cross-examination until Mr. Scoville's emo-tion became painfully apparent. Then Guiteau releated for the moment, but after-ward he again called his counsel "a consum-mate idiot," and quarreled with his sister, ending up with the declaration that it would had been well for him had all his relatives diod twenty years ago. He said: "If I were indicted for manelaughter and Scoville de-fended me I would be hanged for murder," and "I expect that the Almighty, notwith-standing Scoville's asinine character, will see that I am protected." The day's proceedings ended with a brief examination of Mrs. Dan-mire, Guiteau's divorced wife, who identified two photographs of hin, taken some years ago, and denied having said to Mrs. Scoville any-thing about the prisoner being insame. To Colonel Corkhill's hypothetical questions also his answers were, "Sane." He thought Guiteau's conduct in the court-room not assumed, but the natural out-come of his character.
