Marie Konio, a German woman, forty-six years of age, living in Boston, murdered her boy Auguste, five years old, by cutting his throat with a case knife. She then cut the throat of her daughter Mary, aged thirteen, but not fatally. Her son Alfred was also cut in a dozen places, and Emil, a boy of seventeen, was wounded, neither of them fatally. Mrs. Konig then attempted to commit suicide by cutting her left leg below the knee. She is undoubtedly insane.

Ar the Pennsylvania Republican convention held in Harrisburg the following ticket was nominated: For governor, James A. Beaver: for lieutenant-governor, William T. Davies; for secretary of internal affairs, John M. Greer; for judge of the supreme court. William Henry Rawle; for congressman at large, Thomas M. Marshall. The convention adopted a platform which condemns the use of patronage to promote personal political ends and compulsory assessments for political purposes, and declares against the removal of competent and faithful officers. The platform further recommends the adoption of certain permanent rules for the holding of State conventions and the conduct of the party, and declares that it is the duty of the Federal government to keep faith toward the aborigines, and to adopt a policy looking to the education of Indian children and to conferring citizenship upon self-supporting Indians. The resolutions deplore the loss of General Garfield and approve President Arthur's administration as wise, conciliatory and efficient. Governor Hoyt's administration of State affairs is also approved.

WISE WORDS.

Experience is the extract of suffering. A mind once cultivated will not lie fallow for half an hour. Care for what you say, or what you say will make you care. Memory records services with a pen, injurious with a graver. Think wrongly if you please, but in all cases think for yourself. The public mind is educated quickly by events-slowly by arguments. There is no strength in exaggeration; even the truth is weakened by being expressed too strong.

Excess generally causes reaction, and produces a change in the opposite direction, whether it be in the reasons, or in individuals, or in governments. If all were as willing to be pleasant and as anxious to please in their own homes as they are in the company of their neighbors, they would have happy homes. Every year of our lives we grow more convinced that it is the wisest and best to fix our attention on the beautiful and the good, and dwell as little as possible on the evil and the false. He that basks in the sunlight of a great man's favor by arts best known to craft and servility, may enjoy the unworthy profit for a time, but retribution will soon o'ertake and set its dark seal upon his servile soul.

Hugging sorrow is not the way to lessen it, though like the needle, trouble stings less when it is firmly grasped and not feared. Frequent disappointments teach us to mistrust our own inclinations and shrink even from vows our hearts may prompt.

Accounting for the Sea Serpent.

Sir Charles Lyell made some interesting attempts to trace the sea serpent to well known animals. He showed by careful drawings the appearance of porpoises in line in a heavy sea—the effect upon the eye of their continued rise and fall. He dwelt upon the motions of a large shark observed passing speed, the dorsal and caudal fins, with the swell, being reproduced so quickly and repeatedly on the retina as to give the impression of a series of humps. The elevated head in the air, so frequently noticed, he explained by optical illusion, or that the animal was a seal, or one of the monster Phocidire, thirty feet long, that might have strayed from the north or south. The basking shark, or hockmar, of Norway, which attains a length of from thirty to fifty feet, was, however, considered in all probability to be the "sea serpent," and this belief was strengthened by an dorsal fringed into fragments. The shark was described as a sea serpent, the jagged dorsal as hair, and a most remarkable story concocted, which still holds its own in the old prints. The idea suggested the Koch sea serpent, which was made of fossil whale vertebræ from Georgia, arranged in a row. and exhibited to the Bostonians as the "sea serpent." Tape fishes of the genera Gymnetrus and Regalicus have been found thirty and sixty feet long, according to Lord Norbury, and it has been suggested that they may have been taken for the sea serpent; but, though long, they are remarkably slender, and not snail-like, and have a lateral motion that could not be contorted to correspond with any of the accounts given .-

Lippincott. Feet Wiped by an Emperor. At the Hofburg, the principal palace of the Austrian emperor, a ceremony took place recently which has probably no parallel throughout all the states of Europe. It was the old and familiar event known as the "Green Thursday feet washing," It took place, as usual, in the splendid "Hall of Ceremonies." On each side of the ball was a table, each of twelve covers, one for the old men the other for the old women. The palace was filled with dignituries, including the ministers, the corps diplomatic and the various court officials. At half-past 10 o'clock the old people, having received the sacrament in the court chapel, were brought to their seats at the table. They were all dressed in the old German costume, the dresses being presented by the emperor. At 11 o'clock the clergymen conducting the ceremony appeared. They were followed by the emperor, the empress, the crown prince and crown princess, and the archdukes and archduchesses. The emperor served the old men, who take the food home after the ceremony, while the empress and the Crown Princess Stephanie and the archduchesses served the old women at the several tables. The characteristic part of the ceremony was the taking off a shoe and stocking from one foot of each of the old people, after which the emperor and empress wiped the feet of the aged people with towels moistened from the golden ewer. After this their majesties hung a purse containing thirty silver pieces around the neck of each of the old people. At the conclusion of the ceremony the latter were sent home in court carriages, each with a basket of provisions .- London Standard.

THE COUNTRYMAN IN THE Weather Signal Office. Mr. Jeremiah Tondvine, of the run istrict, brought a letter of introduc-ion to the United States Signal Offi-er, and by the latter gentleman was hown the beautiful scientific instrunents for measuring and determini he various changes and condition (the weather. Pointing to the state of the weather. Pointing to the stand-net thermometer he explained to Mr. T. the uses of the heat gauge, where-upon Mr. T. anxiously inquired if he "hadn't mather un to spare—sich nice merchine to set the weather in hagin' and harvest time." His impec-tions of the aerometer or wind measure evoked the expression: "Wouldn's she be the racket to run the wind mill with." The barometer was one too many for Toadwine, and, look lag queerly at the official, as if he were utterly nouplussed and bank-rupt of words, said: "Friend, did you over have the remants?" The were utterly nouplinsed and hall rupt of words, said: "Friend, did yo over have the reumais?" The abruptness of the question surprise the officer, who replied, "No-never." What: — Evidently recollectin himself, Mr. T. stopped on the ragge calgo of the threadhare remark, an add: "I only wanted to know, for this trap (pointing to the baromete shows the good any had weather afor it's time, it would be a bully trap for the property of the same that the confine with reumatis; they could hank it every time. Up my country when folks has it they use Sr. Jacor Ott. an it's a powerful argyment and reumatis—it's the upper door in this they can be upper door in the fight every time." With thanks for the unexpected information, the off call policity turned Mr. Toadvin over to the usher to show him to the street car, while he, looking over his paper, read: "Mrs. T. A. Gist, No 1204 Walnut street, Philadelphia, Pa writes; I had inflammatory rheums tis mery badly. In one footandank it seemed to have taken hold with the determination to stay, and the more than I chained the St. Jacons On. it seemed to have taken hold with it determination to stay, and the morning I obtained the St. Jacons Oil. could not put my foot down to the floor, even for an instant. I used it hat evening for the first time, and the next morning for the feest time, and the next morning for the second time and that afternoon put my foot down for several minnes. On the Sunfar following I could stand up and walk a few sieps. On Tuesday could walk about my room and went down stairs by holding on to the lamisters. Now I can walk quite well and there is very little pain left. Just think! one battle and a half, and I am almost free from pain! It is a wonderful med be.

JEROME PARK, June 21.—This is to certify that I have used Dr. Tobias' VENETIAS HOUSE LINIMENT and DERRY CONDITION POWDERS on my race horses and flowing them to give perfect satisfaction. In fact they have never folled to cure my aliment for which they were used: the Liniment when runbbed in by the hand never blisters or takes the hair off. It has more penetrative qualities than any other I have tried, which I suppose is the great secret of its success in curing sprains. The ingredients from which the DERRY POWDERS AFFIRMED HAVE BEEN AND AND TOWNERS. They are perfectly harmless, D. McDANIEL.
