The funeral of ex-Sheriff Head took place from his residence yesterday afternoon. The interment was in the new cemetery. A large number of friends followed the remains of the old citizen to their last place. The following gentlemen acted as pall bearers: J. Powell, A. G. Cuthbert, B. F. Ely, Thos. A. Neill, D. S. Luther and Ed. Maybee.

Death of Alvan H. Head.

Tuesday, June 27, 1882, shortly after 12 M. our citizens were startled by the announcement that ex-Sheriff Head was no more. For months he has been in feeble health, having had a paralytic stroke, but no one dreamed that the end was so near. During the forenoon of the day of his death he was on the street, going down Main street to Derby's corner, thence by the plating mill up Powell's alley and home. Parties on the street noticed that he walked with great effort, but attributed it to the fact of his great age and infirmities.

Reaching his residence on Depot street a few minutes before 12 M. he complained of being tired, and having a hard pain in his breast. Laying down on the lounge he said to his wife, "I am feeling better now," and requested her to finish the work she was engaged at, and return as soon as possible. In a short time she returned and saw at a glance that he was sinking. Calling in a near neighbor, Mr. Nichols, the discovery was soon made that life had departed. The supreme moment arriving at a few minutes past twelve. He had not been on the street for two or three weeks before his final walk on Tuesday, and it seemed as though an inward prompter urged him to take his last look on the green earth, the blue sky, faces of friends, and the radiant beauty of the June morning, ere he departed to take his place among the innumerable throng, and see the mysteries of eternity unfolded to his vision. Quietly and peacefully, as the last leaf on the tree, he sank to that semblance of sleep called death. Conscious to the verge of the dissolution of body and soul.

Avian H. Head was born among the granite hills of New Hampshire, at Penbrook, on the 23rd day of June in 1805. At the age of 21 he left home going to Mobile, Alabama. In company with John Humbert and others he contracted for and built a portion of the Baltimore and Potomac railroad. During the Florida Indian war he was a Colonel of Volunteers. Later he came to Brookville (about 1830) and engaged in the business of lumbering until 1847. On Nov. 14, 1847, at Ridgway, he was united in wedlock with Miss Adaline M. Crow, who survives him. He was the first Odd Fellow in Brookville, and was also a member of the Masonic order. In 1850 he and his wife moved to Bear Creek, where he was engaged in the business of lumbering, and where he built the Bear Creek Mill. Having been elected sheriff of Elk County in 1853 he moved to Ridgway, and has made his home here ever since. He held the office of supervisor of Ridgway township after his term of office as sheriff expired. Again in 1859 he was re-elected sheriff defeating Mr. Jacob McCauley for the office, having been a candidate but three weeks before the election. During Grant's first term he was assistant assessor of Internal Revenue, continuing in that position until the office was abolished. He had held besides the position of enrolling officer during the first draft, besides numerous other Township offices. A man of vigorous constitution his deeds of prowess in the strength of manhood have many times been told. His judgment was sought by many men in his time on important matters, and was always a safe guide to follow. In physical and mental powers Nature showed a masterpiece in Avian H. Head. A wife and two sons are left to mourn their loss. He was a great lover of Burns' poems and with his favorite poet we will say:

"I am a budding aged tree That long has stood the wind and rain; But now has come the cruel blast And my last hour of earth is gone; See and 'tis mine shall greet the spring No summer sun shall greet my bloom. But I shall live before the storm. And there plant them in my room."

"MIDDLE FIELD."

The Excitement Growing Stronger Day after Day.

Warren Ledger. The excitement in oil circles has been very intense during the past week, and the craze over the "double flow" of the six-forty-six and the Murphy, since the drill bit was lowered in the sand, is wonderful. After drilling to a certain depth in this field of gushers nothing less than a lake of oil it seems tapped. Too true, we are thinking. The owners of these noted wells are kept busy from day to day enlarging their storage capacity, and then, there is much waste.

CADWALLADER NO. TWO ON FIRE. On Tuesday night of this week, between nine and ten o'clock, Cadwallader well number two, on lot 647, Cherry Grove, took fire, it is supposed, from a lantern, and instantly the entire surroundings was a mass of flames.

In a very few minutes the oil in the tank caught, and shortly it burst, and five thousand barrels of oil was on fire flowing in all directions and burning up everything in its course. The rig, eight thousand barrel tankage, and five thousand barrels of oil was destroyed by the devouring element. Three men who were employed on the lease were burnt, one of them by name of Gibson supposedly to be fatal, and the other two, notoriously at this writing. The well is still pouring forth a stream of fire from sixty to eighty feet into the air, and scattering the burning fluid in all directions. And more than that three thousand dollars are offered to any one who will extinguish it. With the large quantity of gas escaping from these large wells, it will not be surprising to hear of some still more destructive conflagration in this field, unless great caution is exercised. The stations of the Union Oil Co. and United Pipe Lines are both destroyed. It is understood that three thousand dollars has been offered to anyone extinguishing the fire, and that parties are to work to that end. At the time of going to press we have no information that the fire is extinguished. Tuesday night, when the fire first caught and late into the night, the fire was distinctly seen in Warren, and caused much excitement. The ground being saturated with oil, the fire covers a large space around the well. The large body of oil rising does not burn at once, the gas burning, the oil, or a portion of it, falls back to the ground, and there burns like a orthodox hell.

Mahogany Oil Co. stopped the hull of the drill at their Mystery, on lot 611, last Monday evening, about dusk, but started the drill again Tuesday to open up the "mystery." They found it no easy task to cut the plug—three of them, we believe—that held back the fluid. When the drill left the bottom of the well the gas would force the plugs up with the tools and keep the drillers from "cutting." While working in this way the plug wore off, caused from rubbing against the well, allowing the well to make a great flow for some thirty minutes. The plugs are drilled out now and she is flowing a hundred barrels an hour.

Magee & Smith's new well on lot 644 will by all means be a gusher—and a good one too. Monday of this week these gentlemen developed a large gas well in the six-forty-six sand, on lot 167.

The Thornton Oil Co. have their well on 672 drilling—it is nearing completion.

Manhall & Smithman are building a 25,000-barrel tank. They have three rigs on the next and southern part of 610.

Mallory has a rig building on a twenty-five acre tract on 610 south of Barnesdell. So, also have the Barnesdell Bros. a rig up on 610. They are now spudding.

Col. Wilcox, is putting up a rig on lot 912 and one on 900.

Howe & Eaton, Hows & Parker and Beaumont & Drake, are putting up rigs—three—on Reid & Brennenan's portion.

Reid & Brennenan, will have a new well due in a few days, and not to be out-done, the Forest Oil Co. have one of their three rigs on lot 611 completed and drilling commenced.

Anderson & Crawford and Kneeland & Carroll, have purchased tracts on 633, and will at once open up.

Contractor Wilson informs us that four rigs will at once be put up on part of lot 620 for the Grogan Boys, who will commence operating at once and without delay.

A. J. Brown has one rig up and the drillers are now "rigging" her.

John L. McKinney & Co. have located a well on lot 657. Work is progressing rapidly.

Smith & Barf have started the drill at their well on lot 610.

Manhall & Co. have commenced the drilling in their new venture, 610.

Beecher on Strikes.

New York, June 25.—In his sermon to-day, Rev. Henry Ward Beecher endorsed the freight handlers' strikes justifiable, and said that the Knights of Labor and workmen's unions were popular educators of the common people and ought to be approved. He did not always approve of strikes. The cheapening of things was the grand work of capital, but capital should not cheapen men. Referring to the effect of combined capital on legislation he said to renounce the law one must not see it made, and the men in the city who erected palaces from which to throw missiles of unhappiness should know that they are in danger.

James Watson, of York county, had a terrible struggle with a tramp, and was only saved from death and robbery by the appearance of his son, who shot the tramp but unfortunately did not kill the scoundrel, who managed to escape.

Peruna is in itself a great physician.

Last Saturday afternoon Charles Walters aged about 20 years was struck by lightning, and killed. He had been in the employ of Mr. George Harrington, at Salmon Creek, and just previous to the heavy storm had been engaged with Mr. Harrington and others in building a fence. The storm came and all took shelter under some boards they had fixed up for that purpose. But this did not suit Walters so he shifted from tree to tree in hopes of finding better shelter, but alas he sheltered under the fatal tree. As soon as the storm had ceased, Mr. Harrington and his companions left for the house, supposing to find Walters there. Nothing strange was thought of his not being there, and so one seemed to be alarmed until about supper time, when it was suggested that a search be made for the missing man. A large number of men started in the direction of where he was last seen, and soon they found him lying on the ground, under a large beech tree, in a pool of water, and upon examination it was discovered that he had been struck by lightning, the stroke running down his back and left leg, tearing the boot very badly. Justice Catlin was called to hold an inquest, upon his arrival the following jurors were selected: J. G. Carpenter foreman; G. M. Kepler, G. Harrington, B. Blouse, J. McLain, W. Breckenridge, who returned a verdict in accordance with the above facts. The men employed at the mills prepared the body for burial, and then took up a collection of $20 and forwarded the body of their comrade to his home at Hellen Furnace, Clarion County, Pa.

Guiteau Near Death.

Guiteau is to be hanged next Friday, June 30. He has not acted like a common criminal, and not a whit of his self-confidence has abated. Mentally he appears to be not different from the man who planned the murder and took such pains to be carried direct to jail to escape bodily harm. Physically he is improved in flesh and health and in all probability the assassin will carry to the gallows one of the best constitutions in Washington. He eats and sleeps well, as he has always done. There is no raving, no special nervousness, no remorse. All the stories about dreadful dreams, apparitions, regrets, etc., are pure inventions. Were a new trial to be ordered he would, in all probability, go into court to re-nounce the scenes of egotism, heartlessness, audacity and buffoonery which marked his late trial. Not for a moment has he varied from his first theory of the assassination, and not an incident or a word can be pointed to as showing a loss of presence of mind. Othello's delirium that "guiltiness will speak through tongues were out of use," seems to be contradicted in this case. There is talk enough, but no variation. An application was made to the President for a respite or pardon. He referred it to the Attorney General and Cabinet. On the 24th the Cabinet decided not to interfere with the sentence. A dispatch says: The Attorney General instructed the marshal of the district and warden of the jail to keep the prisoner in strict confinement, and allow no one to see him except his spiritual advisers, physicians and officers of the jail.

The Rev. Hicks, when informed of the Cabinet's decision, drove to the jail and informed Guiteau. Guiteau sent the following to Hicks: "Go and see Arthur, and shake your fist in his face. Tell him I made him President by my inspiration, and he must give me unconditional pardon, and if he does not, God Almighty will blast him forever! I tell you, brother Hicks, I am God's man and God takes care of His own."

GUITEAU TO SPEAK FROM THE GALLOWS.

Guiteau does not propose to lose any opportunities and has already prepared his gallows speech. It is of considerable length and a gentleman to whom it has been submitted pronounced it an extraordinary production. It is of the same general character as the frothy declarations which the prisoner has made at various stages of his case. He expects to deliver it with good courage before the fatal moment and is so anxious that it should be given accurately to the press that he has had copies made for the press agencies. John W. Guiteau, speaking of the conduct of his brother upon the gallows, said to-night: "He will go upon the gallows with all the courage of a hero, and deliver his speech as if all the world could hear. He will not do a cowardly thing, and will hold up manfully to the last." It was expected that John Guiteau would attend his brother to the gallows, but this is not sure.

A new complication in the case was created this afternoon by the unexpected arrival of Mrs. Scoville, who is reported by her husband at Chicago as lost. Mrs. Scoville has arrived here, stops at a remote and obscure boarding house, and for the first time in the history of the family seems to have taken pains to keep secret the fact of her presence in the city. Her whereabouts, however, had been discovered and to a person who approached her, not in the person of an interviewer, she had only to tell the old story. She thinks it a great injustice that her brother should be hanged, and has brought with her a petition signed, she says by 500 persons, which she insists shall be presented to the President.

WANT TO SEE THE HANGING. There are being received at the jail a large number of applications for admission to the execution, many of them from a distance. There are hundreds of people who imagine that Guiteau's execution will be practically a public one. The Marshal himself, in speaking of the matter, says that those who have no business at the jail will not be admitted to the execution. The arrangements are not entirely made, but it is certain that no one but a limited number of people will be admitted.

Mr. Asa Mather, of Cleveland, arrived here last night with his patent scaffold, a machine of which he is proud, on account of its elegant workmanship and fine appearance. The machine has already been used, having been put to a good purpose in the hanging of a young man named Callahan, at Wooster, Ohio, last year. Mather has for some time been writing to the jail and local authorities here, urging them to use his machine, as he desires to present it afterwards to the Western Reserve Historical Society at Cleveland. He saw Marshal Henry to-day, who told him it would be utterly impossible to secure the use of his gallows as the jail authorities had already a very fine scaffold in use at that institution. He, however, persisted in seeing Warden Crocker, to whom he detailed the advantages of his apparatus, and was finally told it would be impossible for the jail authorities to accept his offer.

Marshal Henry to-day received from a rope maker in a small town in Louisiana one of the finest ropes that has yet been sent here. It is a combination of hemp and linen, three-quarters of an inch in diameter, and the maker warrants it to stand a strain of 2,000 pounds. It is ready knotted and greased.
