THIS work will contain various on a ions of the best writers on Architecture, Arts, and Science; together withexperiments, and accurate notes of observation, by the author; being the result of thirty years study and experience in his profession.

It will also contain an alphabetical account of the quality and value of the various kinds of materials, and numerous species of labor, expended on building.

Exempt sications, to ascertain the quantities of materials and labor necessary to complete, almost, every part in a building, of whatever dimensions.

An account, and explanation of all the terms and phrases, used in ancient and modern architecture and building.

To persons inclined to build, it will afford an opportunity of regulating their plans within the compass of their finances, and prepare them to prevent impositions from tricking venders of materials, and extortionate workmen—To Mechanics, who cannot, for want of experience, calculate the value of their respective labour, and materials expended in their particular branches of building, this work will afford an opportunity to estimate with facility and accuracy, any done, or intended to be done, either in the aggregate or the minutae.

It will contain many curious and valuable the minutiæ.

It will contain many eurious and valuable recipes to make fine and coarfe varnifhes, for preferving roofs of houses, barns, palings, troughs, pipes, &c. Recipes to make various glues and cements; recipes to make compositions for elegant, or minute ornaments, and enrichments for ouside or inside compartments: recipes to make composition for figures and incrustrations—to endure the weather in any aspect; recipes to make flue-co compositions, for floors, malt-houses, distilleries, hearths, limings for cisterns, &c. Tablesto ascertain the scanting of different species of timber necessary to perform their species of timber necessary to perform their tilleries, hearths, limings for citterns, &c.
Tablesto afcertain the feantling of different species of timber necessary to perform their perfective functions, in proportion to their various sufacentions: Tables to ascertain the dimensions of the various apertions introduced in different edifices, and doors, windows, chimnies, sky-lights, stair-cases, &c. in protion to their different uses and intentions—whether for beauty or utility: A concise mode to take, and square the dimensions of all kinds of artificer's work belonging to buildings, and to ascertain the cubical or superficial contents thereof: Observations of the doctrine of echo and found: A differtation on the philosophy, doctrine, and construction on the philosophy, doctrine, and construction of chimnies, to void or emit the smoke. Propositions and recipes to cure smoky chimnies: Observations on the instability of the edifices heretofore, generally, erected in America: Suggestions of modes to pursue in buildings here, that will, without additional expence, tend more to their durability than those heretofore, commonly, constructed: Descriptions and proportions of the general and particular members of various orders in Architecture, viz. the Tuscan, Doric, stonic, Corinthian, Composite, Chinese, Attic, Cargatic, Arabesque, Moresque, Grotesque, Saracenic, Rullic, Antique, Antique, Modern, Gothic, and Britannie: Many curious historical accounts of various wonderful buildings in different parts of the world: Many curious and original accounts and culogiums on Free Masoary.

Charlotte, a tale of Truth,

IN TWO VOLUMES.

By Mrs. ROWSON, of the New Theatre,
Phladelphia, Author of Victoria, the Inquistor, the Fille de Chambre, &c.

Of Charlotte, the Reviewers have given the following character.

IT may be a Tale of Truth, for it is not unnatural, and it is a tale of real diftrefs. Charlotte, by the artifice of a teacher, recommended to a school, from humanity rather than a conviction of her integrity, or the regularity of her former conduct, is enticed from her governess, and acompanies a young officer to America.—
The marriage ceremony, if not forgotten, is postponed, and Charlotte dies a martyr to the inconstancy of the over, and treachery of his friend — The situations are artless and affecting—the descriptions natuery of his friend—The fituations are artiles and affecting—the descriptions natural and pathetic; we should seel for Charlotte if such a person ever existed, who for one error scarcely, perhaps, deserved so severe a punishment. If it is a siction, poetic justice is not, we think, properly distributed.

The new maps added to this edition are twenty one; among which are those of New-Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Khode-island, Vermont, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Belaware, Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, North Carolina, the Genesse Government, South Carolina, and Georgia. These maps have never been given in any former system of Geography, and, it is hoped, would alone be sufficient to entitle this work to a preference to any other edition of Guthrie.

N. B. The map of the United States, which is compiling by Mr. Sanuel Lewis, from the respective state maps, will be far more complete than any one yet publish d, and be printed on two large sheets of paper, nearly the size of the late Mr. Murray's map. The new maps added to this edition are

The First American Edition.

THEgrand principle of Equality, if rigirtly understood, is the only basis on which universal justice, facred order, and perfect freedom, can be firmly built, and permanently secured. The view of it exhibited in this essay, at the same time that it represes the insolence of office, the tyranny of pride, and the outrages of oppression; consirms, in the most forcible oppression; confirms, in the most forcible manner, the necessity of subordination, and the just demands of lawful authority. So far indeed, from loofening the bands of society, that it maintains inviolate, extern pattern and the party and the society of society. very natural and every civil diffinction, draws more closely every focial tie, unites in one harmonious and juffly proportioned fyshem, and brings men together on the even ground of the inherent rights of human naure, of reciprocal obligation, and of a common relation to the community.
