

From the FEDERAL SPY.

L I N E S,

Addressed to that venerable Republican, and virtuous English Nobleman, Earl STANHOPE.

ILLUSTRIOUS patriot and immortal sage!

Renowned leader of that dauntless band,

Which still preserves, amidst the storms that rage,

The ancient lustre of thy native land.

Perhaps the fate of generous BRUTUS thine—

Perhaps like Cicero doom'd to roam afar;

Or sacrific'd, perhaps at freedom's shrine,

Like Socrates, his country's guiding star!

Ah no! we hear prophetic freedom's voice,

With accent mild pronounce thy glorious name;

She bids her sons and Albion's hosts rejoice,

While Stanhope mounts the splendid car of fame.

Go on great man, nor fear a despot's frown;

Despise the titles that disgrace a slave—

The venal statesman, and the royal gown,

Alike disgust the virtuous and the brave.

What though a stupid tyrant bears the sway?

What tho' Britannians bow the servile knee?

What tho' despotic clouds obscure the day—

Thine is the task to make a nation free.

Thy name shall shine on glory's deathless page,

And when rash George his certain doom shall meet,

STANHOPE, THE SECOND HERO OF THE AGE,

Shall grace Britannia's Presidential Seat!

A SON OF FREEDOM.

UNITED STATES.

CINCINNATI, May 24.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Vincennes, dated May the 14th, to his friend in this place.

A continual correspondence is kept up, between the British commanding officer of Detroit, and the commanding officer of St. Louis. From letters received from gentlemen, living in the Illinois, dated May 6th, we are informed, that the Spanish exprofs had returned from Detroit, on or about the first inst. and brings information, that the British are making great preparations for war at that place. That the militia of Detroit, commanded by the governor of that place, and three regiments of regulars were at Rushdobo, to act in conjunction with the Indians, against Gen. Wayne's army; this information comes from another quarter, by the Indians, and a great many on this river are gone to join the British standard. About 5 days ago, a man arrived from New-Madrid at this place, and informs us, that the garrison is 200 strong, besides three galleys and three galliots, which had just arrived from New-Orleans with 40,000 dollars, this information is confirmed by letters from Kaskaskias; the Spaniards are in high spirits about the news from Detroit.

Heads Quarters, Greenville May 17, 1794.

The Commander in chief is happy in the opportunity, of thus publicly expressing his approbation of the conduct of Lieut. Turner, of the 2d, and Ensign Lee, of the 4th Sub-legions, who with 15 gallant dragoons, charged and defeated three times their number of Savages on the 14th inst. although in possession of their choice of ground, and flushed with temporary advantage over the small, but the determined vanguard who with their intrepid leader, corporal James Watts of the first Sub-legion, bravely fell in defence of the escort. The commander in chief, is also much obliged to Lieut. Clark of the 4th Sub-legion, and the troops under his command, for the rapidity of their march to support the vanguard; the precipitate flight of the Savages, who abandoned all their packs, blankets and provisions, with many of their arms, produces a demonstration that they cannot sustain a determined charge.

WINCHESTER, June 23.

We hear that Mountaineer, accompanied by several other Chickasaw chiefs, are now on their way to Philadelphia and are expected to pass through this town.

The Knoxville Gazette, of the 28th ult. contains an account of one Peter Pearcefield having been killed by Indians, on the 5th of that month, near Wear's Cove in Jefferson county.

INDIAN NEWS.

Friday the 23d instant, the Indians killed a family about 12 miles from Shelbyville, the woman was tomahawked and scalped, and was not dead on Sunday.

PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 30.

NEW THEATRE.

This evening the lovers of the Drama will be treated with something original—a Comedy from the pen of Mrs. Rowson.

The public have been informed that this play is "a very elegant production."—from the literary character of the author, it is not doubted, that it merits the above epithet—The subject is highly interesting to the finest feelings of the human character—to Americans peculiarly so.

To encourage genius, to reward the labors of those who employ their talents to amuse and instruct the mind, to cultivate the virtues of the heart, and expand the sphere of general felicity, are among the distinguishing features of enlightened republicans. The citizens of Philadelphia have established their character as the patrons of merit—and will undoubtedly on this occasion support it.

Yesterday arrived here the brig Eliza, Capt. Vanneman, in 14 days from St. Thomas's. Capt. Vanneman informs, that he was at Guadaloupe on the 4th instant, on which day there arrived at St. Ann's, a French ship of the line, five frigates, a cutter, and 2 prizes, and landed 1500 troops. Intelligence being sent by express to Admiral Jervis, at Balleterre, the British fleet of two ships of the line and several other ships were seen on the 6th, off the east end of Nevis, beating up for St. Ann's. And the day before Capt. Vanneman sailed from St. Thomas's, accounts were received of Admiral Jervis having blocked up the French fleet, attacked them, and killed 600 men, and it was expected that the French forces would be compelled to surrender at discretion, as the terms of a capitulation was refused them.

A gentleman who arrived at New-York in the ship Victory, informs that they fell in with Lord Howe's fleet the 20th of May and the next day spoke a Danish brig that had four days before passed through the French fleet from the Chesapeake.

The brig Sufannah, Capt. Baird, failed from Belfast the 7th May. She has bro't 285 passengers, all in perfect health; and we learn by her that Mr. Rowan, the celebrated Irish patriot, had made his escape from prison in Dublin. A reward of 1000 guineas was offered for securing him.

Port au Prince taken.

We have it from good authority, that Port au Prince has been taken by the English after an assault of nine hours. Sonthonax rather than fall into the hands of his implacable enemies the British, killed himself, and Polverel was taken prisoner. Gen. Adv.

By this Day's Mail.

NEW-YORK, June 28.

On Wednesday last departed this life, WILLIAM S. LIVINGSTON, Esq. Counsellor at law.

A gentleman who came passenger in the ship Victory, Capt. Hall, arrived yesterday from London, in 51 days, has obligingly furnished us with a variety of London prints down to the 6th of May, from which we have copied the following:

MONS, May 2.

We have just received intelligence of the utmost interest to us in the present crisis, that 18,000 Prussians are arrived at Namur. This releases us from the apprehension of being overrun by the French, of whom we have been in no small dread, since the capture of Beaumont.

On their quarters being beat up at Beaumont, the Dutch took refuge here; but they have since returned to their post.

LONDON, May 2.

The French are in great force at Worms, and have with them a considerable train of artillery. Lautern has a garrison of 6000 Sans-Culottes, which was reinforced on the 21st ult. by two fine regiments of hussars.

Accounts received at Coblenz on the 21st ult. announce, that the enemy's plan upon Treves has been happily frustrated.

The tendency of the late conspiracy which broke out against the king of Naples and his government, was to have established a Republic in that country. Many of the conspirators have fled to the Papal territories, and others embarked for the coast of Africa.

May 3.

Several American gentlemen just returned from an excursion to Paris, concur in the following representation of the state of affairs in that capital. They say, that since the extermination of Danton's faction, every thing has been conducted at Paris with perfect order and regularity; that there is nothing in the aspect of the town, or its inhabitants, that indicates their being engaged in a desperate war with almost the whole of Europe.

That, on the contrary, they are as gay as usual; there being fifteen considerable theatres open, besides others of less note; that they seem to hold the efforts of the allies in perfect contempt; and that, when it was reported at Paris that the king of Prussia had withdrawn himself from the league of crowned heads, they were so far from appearing to felicitate themselves upon the occasion, that the only remark made in all companies was that of mieux pour lui (so much the better for him.) They add that provisions were both cheap and in plenty.

May 5.

Within these two days, a chief of the Royalists of La Vendee has reached London. We are happy in being able to say, that these brave and persevering men are still in great force.

Letters from Leghorn of the 16th inst. state, that the siege of Bastia was continued with the utmost vigour and spirits both by sea and land. The fire of the British was so violent, that the whole place was almost reduced to a heap of ruins, and was hourly expected to surrender to the British forces, which we have every reason to believe has been done.

The red-hot balls which the French threw from the place, sunk an old frigate, and some other English vessels of a smaller size.

A few days since died, at his family seat of Kinnaird near Falkirk, James Bruce, Esq. the celebrated Abyssinian traveller. Mr. Bruce, after having encountered so many perils in distant regions, received his death from a fall down his own stair-case.

His Majesty's packet, the Queen Charlotte is appointed to take out the mails of to-morrow night for New-York.

We learn, from the most indubitable authority, that government has received intelligence from Warsaw of the most important nature.

Among other particulars it is mentioned, that an insurrection took place on the 17th of April, against the Russian party in that town, which was followed by a dreadful massacre.

It further states, that the Russian Commander in Chief, Ingerstroem, was taken prisoner by the Insurgents, who had forced that part of his army that had escaped the massacre to take refuge with the King in the Citadel, which place they were closely investing at the time the accounts came away.

The Russian minister is also said to have fallen into hands of the insurgents; and a large army of Poles, from the interior of the country, as well as that under the Command of Kosciusko, are on their march with the utmost expedition, to cooperate with the Insurgents of Warsaw.

The foregoing particulars are confirmed by a letter from Amsterdam, May 1, which says—We learn from the Lower Elbe, that at the departure of the last courier from Warsaw that city was in flames in no less than four different places.

It has been since confidently reported here, that the Insurgents under Gen. Kosciusko, have made themselves masters of the capital of Poland.

Another account mentions, that the Insurgents, proceeding rapidly from Cracow to Warsaw, had attacked the latter place in a furious and irresistible manner, which had yielded to their impetuosity and valour; that the King of Poland and the Russian troops had retired to some distance; but that the Patriots had surrounded them and cut off their retreat.

On the 23d ult. the Prussian troops quartered at Cologne received orders to march back to the environs of Mentz.

The combined powers have taken in the course of nine days, viz. from the 17th to the 26th of April, no less than ninety one pieces of cannon from the French.

Table with 2 columns: Date and Cannon count. On the 17th, 31 Cannon; 24th, 3; 26th, 57.

La Pomone and Le Barbet French frigates, taken by the Flora and Arethusa, came into Spithead on Monday last.

The King of Prussia is to take the command in person of the 62,400 men for which we are to pay. This is generally considered as good security against their coming to any harm.

May 5.

The attack of the enemy on the allied army on the 26th ult. was more general than at first expected. As soon as they had plundered Courtray, they set on fire; and what will greatly enrich them in the plunder of Minin, is the circumstance of the fair being held there at the time they attacked it.

The great objects of Pichegru in this invasion of West Flanders, and for which he has rendered his column stronger than the others, is no doubt to get at the chief depots of the allies magazines and military stores; but the more he is loaded with plunder the slower will be his retreat, and there was a report at Ostend just before the last packet failed, that the reinforcements sent Gen. Clairfait had come up with Pichegru, defeated him with great slaughter, and retaken all his waggons laden with plunder. We hope this will be confirmed.

The standard of Fort Bourbon had twelve cannon shot through it from the British batteries.

The King has ordered the standards, &c. taken from the French at Martinique, to be put up in St. Paul's church.

May 6.

The accounts received yesterday from the Continent, are more calculated to give scope for invention, than to satisfy rational enquiry. It is certain that towards the coast, the alarm has subsided. The orders issued at Ostend for getting the ships out of the harbour, and for opening the sluices, have been countermanded; but it does not appear that the French have retired from Courtray. Our correspondent at Brussels writes, that they attacked Gen. Clairfait on the 2d, in his position between Cour-
