UNITED STATES.

TRENTON, July 5.

Yesterday being the 4th of July—the day which gave birth to the American nation—was ushered in by the firing of cannon, and such demonstrations of joy as testified that this anniversary of our Independence was commemorated by the citizens of Trenton, with the highest satisfaction as the first of political blessings, and demonstrated their attachment to the constitution and government of their country, and to the cause of freedom in general.

The Cincinnati of the state of New-Jersey having met this year at Trenton, the day was celebrated by them and the gentlemen who associated with them, in the following manner.

At 11 o'clock the Trenton company of light infantry commanded by Capt. Hanlon, who on this occasion, voluntarily and unanimously agreed to tender their service as part of the contingent of this state—completely equipped and in full uniform, paraded in front of the Indian Queen tavern—where the following Procession was formed.—The light infantry company, the Cincinnati, gentlemen of the city and neighborhood. The Procession then moved to the Presbyterian Church, where an elegant and well adapted discourse was delivered by the Rev. James F. Armstrong, in which the citizen, the soldier, and his brethren of the Cincinnati were addressed in strains truly animated and pathetic, as the friends of freedom, of government, and neutrality.—The Procession, after divine service was ended, being joined by Capt. Collins's company of light infantry, returned in the same order to the Indian Queen, where an entertainment was provided for the Cincinnati, with whom the Governor of the State—his suite and other officers and citizens of the place.

After dinner the following Toasts were drunk.

1. The Day and all who honor it—May the struggles for Liberty furnish an Anniversary equally joyful to all the inhabitants of the Globe.
2. The United States.
3. The President.
4. The Legislature of the union—As hitherto, may it always display an honest and magnanimous policy.
5. The Republic of France—May wisdom and moderation be as conspicuous in her cabinet, as patriotism and valour have been in her armies.
6. Chief Justice Jay—Success to his Embassy.
7. The Secretary of the Treasury.
8. General Wayne and the army.
9. The Militia of the United States.
10. The memory of departed Heroes.
11. Kosciuszko, and the 17th of April 1794—in Poland.

12. May the rights of Neutrality be universally understood and respected.

13. The oppressed of all Nations—May they ever find an asylum in the United States.

14. Peace on Earth and good will towards Men.

The Governor of the State having retired.

15. The Governor, and State of New-Jersey.

The day was spent without any thing happening to check good humour, or give alloy to festive hilarity—and the social circles of the fair contributed to heighten the general joy, while by their looks and smiles they beamed approbation on the Procession as it passed to and from the church—and public devotion was pleasingly dignified by their numerous and brilliant appearance there.

PHILADELPHIA, JULY 8.

Yesterday afternoon, the PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES arrived in town from the Southward.

On Sunday, the 22d of June, departed this life, RICHARD HENRY LEE, at his seat at Chantilly, in Westmoreland county, Virginia, in the sixty-third year of his age—a Philosopher, a Patriot, and a Sage; these characters he had supported through his life—at his death, they supported him; and he died as he had lived, blessing his country.

His public life was distinguished by some circumstances too remarkable to be passed over in giving an account of his death.

He had the honor of originating the first resistance to British oppression, at the time of the Stamp act, in his own country.

He proposed in the Virginia House of Burgesses, in 1773, the formation of a Committee of Correspondence, whose object was to delineate a knowledge of the People's wrongs, and to kindle the flame of liberty throughout the continent.

He first made, and ably supported, the motion for the Declaration of Independence, in the Congress of 1776.

Americans! you cannot forget him; he devoted to you his earliest youth.

He died in consequence of labors and exertions in your service.

VOLUNTEER GREENS.

The increasing military spirit of our citizens on the alarming aspect of public affairs, has been noticed some time past; and particular mention has been made of the intended establishment of a new troop of Light-Horse in this city;—this troop we have since had the pleasure of seeing completely organized and equipped, and for the spirit, youth, and appearance of the men, as well as the size and beauty of the horses, we may pronounce them, without flattery, as fine a corps of military cavalry as have been seen on this continent: they have filed themselves, "The Volunteer Greens," and Mr. Matthew McConnell has been elected their Captain;—On Monday the 30th ult. he invited the troop to his country-seat over Schuylkill, for the purpose of receiving a standard which Mrs. McConnell intended to present for their service—the troop being accordingly mustered and headed by Lieut. Morrell, proceeded up the West Chester road: at a short distance from the house they were met by their Captain, who conducted them to his seat, where they were saluted by a small band of martial music, and a display of some military colours, the troop being formed in a line abreast, and the officers advanced in front, Mrs. McConnell came forward from a circle of ladies who attended her, and politely presented to Cornet Miereken the flag, which was ornamented with much taste and elegance, with patriotic and expressive devices: Mrs. McConnell, then, in a graceful manner delivered a short but pertinent address, "requesting the officer to accept it as a mark of her respect for the troop of Volunteer Greens, and the attachment she felt for the cause in which they were engaged—in full reliance that the corps for whose service it was presented, would never dishonor a standard borne in defence of their country, nor fully by any act unworthy the dignified character of Republican soldiers, the patriotism which then glowed in their breasts." To which Cornet Miereken, in a very officer like manner, made the following reply:

"Madam, in the name of the Volunteer Greens I tender you their most grateful acknowledgments for the very polite and elegant mark of your esteem, which I now receive from you—a standard borne in defence of liberty and their country, I hope I may assert with confidence, will never be disgraced by an associate band of citizen-soldiers, whose patriotism and activity has been roused by the national danger, and whose valour has every excitement that the most intimate relations with the common community, honor, duty, connections, birth, education, and property can inspire.—Let me add, Madam, that as the favors of the fair are ever revered by the brave, the Philadelphia troop of Volunteer Greens will always recollect while fighting under their banner, that this honorable pledge was a sacred deposit, committed by a Lady to their charge."

After a few manoeuvres the troop dismounted and partook of a genteel repast; preparatory to their departure, they performed some military evolutions and firings for the entertainment of the spectators, in a manner which reflected high credit on the officers and men, and obtained much applause from some characters who were present, well qualified to judge of their merit.

On Friday the 4th inst. the troop of Volunteer Greens dined at Grey's Ferry, at a table very sumptuously provided by Mr. George Weed, whose attention on the occasion does him much credit—After dinner, the following toasts were drunk, at the conclusion of which the troop mounted and returned to the city in perfect order, exhibiting a degree of temperance and harmony that ought always to mark the festive board.

1. The day—May it ever be consecrated by Americans as the birth-day of their political freedom.
2. The President of the United States—may the affections of his countrymen be as permanent, as his public services have been illustrious. Three cheers.
3. The Congress; may their deliberations be guided by wisdom and unanimity, and a patriotic zeal destroy all party distinctions.
4. The Governor and State of Pennsylvania.
5. The Agriculture of the United States; may the improvement of this great national occupation be commensurate with the rapid increase of our population.
6. The Commerce of the United States; may its characteristic spirit of enterprise, render the products of the whole earth tributary to our comfort, and enrich its professors.
7. The Manufactures of the United States; may the encouragement of a generous public lessen our dependence on foreign fabrics.

8. Our sister Republic of France; success to her efforts and confusion to her enemies. Three cheers.

9. The brave Kosciuszko and his band of Patriots; may the Polish cavalry ride rough-shod over the slaves of the Northern She-Bear. Three cheers.

10. The immortal memory of the heroes who have fallen in defence of American Liberty. Three cheers.

11. The Militia of Pennsylvania; Three cheers.

12. The Old Philadelphia Troop; may their well earned laurels excite in the Volunteer Greens, a commendable emulation to excel them.

13. The Second Philadelphia Troop.

14. Success to the embassy of John Jay; may his negotiations secure the blessings of peace, and vindicate the honor of his country.

15. The unconquerable and sacred spirit of Liberty; may it ever be combined with a love of order, and respect for the laws.

VOLUNTEERS.

The Majesty of the American People; may they be mild and just in peace, but fierce and terrible in war.

The Minister of the French Republic.

May the same spirit prevail throughout the globe that actuated the heroes of 1776 in America.

By this Day's Mail.

NEW-YORK, July 7.

By letters from Canada, we learn that the Solicitor-General has been dispatched by the Governor, Lord Dorchester, to Montreal, for the purpose of putting in force the Alien Bill, which was lately passed at Quebec by the legislative assembly; and that all those who should refuse swearing allegiance to his Majesty King George, should either be imprisoned or leave his Majesty's province; in consequence of which, several hundreds were about to leave the place.

Extract of a letter from Philadelphia, dated July 3—from a person who may be depended upon.

"There is no doubt but that Port-au-Prince is taken by the English—accounts of which have been sent to Fort Dauphin by the Commandant of Port au-Prince, who dispatched thither Capt. Baunney, of a Spanish schooner—Divers reports had been circulated about the reduction of Port-au-Prince, as likewise the destiny of the commissioners. We have likewise heard of the arrival of some French troops at Point Petre, where they have made a landing, supported by one ship of the line, and some frigates. Reports are always exaggerated by the Captains of vessels and the Gazettes of this country. Admiral Jervis had got to Gaudaloupe. He will not have failed to prevent the recapture. We hope soon to have further information—these success had been asked for by Mr. Collot, who did not wish for more than two battalions, agreeable to what he has told here.

"By recent news from Europe we learn that the army of the Republic in Flanders has been completely beaten by the combined armies under the command of the Emperor, the Duke of York, Prince Saxe Cobourg, and Clairfait. By the reports of passengers from Bourdeaux in 45 days, the army of the Republic in Flanders has been totally destroyed. From the present disposition of the combined powers, I believe that they will still have more success, and that this year will terminate the war." [Marvellous!]

[By the British mail, via Halifax, we received English papers to the 13th May, which contain nothing of importance more than what we have received from various other arrivals on the continent: the following, however, is copied from a paper of the 10th May—other extracts to-morrow.]

LONDON, May 10.

Letters were sent to the following Gentlemen, requesting them to attend his Majesty's ministers at the Secretary of state's office:—To Mr. H. Thornton, M. P. M. Downe, banker; Mr. Cornwall, the Russia merchant; Mr. Harris, of Milk-street, Cheap-side; and Mr. Young, a broker.

The Council sat in the morning from twelve to three, and met again in the evening at seven o'clock, when Mr. Stone attended, and underwent a long examination; as did also Mr. Towgood, the banker. The council did not break up till near midnight.

The Gentlemen who assisted at the Council were, the Attorney and Solicitor-General, Mr. White, and Mr. Justice Bond.

It does not become us, in this stage of the business, even to furnish on what has passed on Mr. Stone's examination; but the above Gentlemen have been requested to attend in consequence of it; though it is impossible to suppose that any of them are in the utmost degree implicated in the business.

A board was held yesterday at the Admiralty Office on business relative to the Dockyards, and a further contract with private ship builders, to construct some more frigates and sloops of war, according to new models lately laid before the Board for their inspection, being the newest improvements in naval Architecture.

Letters from Paris state, that M. Perigaux, the last remaining wealthy banker of that capital, who went lately to Switzerland on the pretence of raising a loan for the Convention—was just put in a state of accusation, and that his four sons were taken into custody as hostages for the immediate return of their father, to answer the charges of the public accuser.

Lord Lauderdale, Mr. Sheridan, and Mr. Vaughan, were again before the Cabinet Ministers yesterday.
