Lachawannock.

A LARGE body of LAND on this river and its waters, is now for fale to Settlers on 1, on moderate terms, and at a long credit.

The foil is remarkably fertile, and numerous threams of water are interspersed through the whole country.

The main river flows through one tract of about thirty thousand acres, and is with he exception of one obstruction, navigable to the Susquehannah.

Spring Brook Creek, which with its branches, waters another tract of about forty thousand acres of good Land, empties itself into the Lachawannock, about twelve miles from the Susquehannah.

It effords numerous Mill feats, & in its course creates large bodies of well watered meadow ground.

course creates large bodies of well watered meadow ground.

The other tracts are intersected by creeks of confiderable importance.

Several Wills are already creeked for the accommodation of the settlers.

Roads are cut in different directions, towards the most convenient markets.

The county town is nor more than 12 mles distant from many parts of the set tlement.

The Sufquehannab affords an early and fafe navigation to Middleton, from whence the Canal to Schuylkill extends the communication to the city.

Another means of connection with Philadelphia, is by the Delaware, from which the diffance infeyeral places is about thirty

The proprietors combining their own in-terest with that of the inhabitants, are dis-posed to erect works of public utility, open woads, &c. and in every en miles square, a tract of one hundred acres is allotted for a School, and one hundred acres for the first resident elergyman of any denomination of Christians.

EVER folicitous to render his MUSEUM fill more and more an object of rational entertainment, and subservient to the interests of useful science, has on the suggestion and with the advice of a number of his friends, provided a Book, which will be always open for the inspection of those who visit his Museum, in which book it is proposed to insert all such discoveries, inventions, improvements, schemes, observations, experiments, projects, hints or queries relating to the arts or sciences, as any of his visitors, or correspondents, may from time to time communicate.

Such as may chuse to conceal their names may either send their communications anonymous, or at their desire, C-W. Peale will insert their names, with the number of signature of ther respective communications in a private book which he shill keep for that purp se.

tions in a private book which he shill keep for that purpise.

The advantages of such a public register are obvious. It will result from oblivious many useful hints, which might otherwise have died with their authors. It may secure to inventors their just claims, and prevent others from taking the honor or profit of a discovery to which they are not entitled, and as the Museum is now visited by persons from almost all parts of the world, suce a, register, it is presumed, will soon contain and be the means of disseminating a vast fund of useful knowledge, and promote that spirit of enquiry and invention, for which the people of the United States are already so justly distinguished.

SEDITIOUS PRACTICES.

"OF the many remarkable trials which the present extraordinary system of criminal jurispudence in G. Britain and Ireland has brought before the public eye; this, certainly is most entitled to universal perusal and attention. It developes, more fully than any publication extant, the latest views and objects of the British convention; and proves incontessibly, that judicial prosecutions (or persecutions and decisions are now more the result of the present order of things, than any old sashioned attachment to the laws or the constitution. Add to this, that it holds up to the wonder and admiration of mankind, the the firm, manly, and patriatic conduction this devoted victim—this 'Second Sydney,' as he has justly and deservedly been called, who in the course of one of the longest trials we know of, unaffisted even by a single member of the long robe, evinced such a depth of legal and constitutional knowledge and, in a speech of four hours length, displayed such a hiaze of eloquence and first rate abilities, as afformshed the court—and, strange to relate! even drew involuntary applause from the versal and time-serving creature of a communicative remment."
