is the best proof of its merit.] Extract from the Critical Review, April 1791, p. 408. It maybe at all of truth, for it is not un-natural, and it is a tale of real diffrefs— Charlotte by the artifice of a teacher, re-commended to a 6 hool from humanity ra-ther than a conviction of her integrity of the regularity of her formen conduct, is en-uced from her governefs, and accompanies, a young officer to America.— The marriage cerem ny, fluot forgotten, is pofiponed. a young officer to America. The marriage cerem ny, if not forgotten, is pulponed, and Charlotte dies a martyr to the inconstancy of her lover, and treachery of his friend,... The fruntions are artiefs and aff fire... the deferiptions utural and partnetic; we fhould teel for Charlotte if fuch a perion ever exifted, who, for one error, fearcely, perhaps delerved fo fevere a pup finnent. If it is a fiftion, poetic juffice is not, we thick, properly diffributed."

The authors have prefumed to affix the their title the epithet Imparial; and the realon is, b caufe they cannot charge themsfelves with feeling the finalleft bias to any party, but that of truth and liberty; and the y farter themfelves, that their readers with find n to mig every circumflance fairly remeficiend, but every circumflance fairly to make a declaration of their own principles, they would fay, they are neither tory nor republics. They love liberty is English which fo noble a caufe is endangered and dignaced.

In whiles, and execute every oriminal activity which to noble a caule is endangered and differed.
In the prefent ferment of the public mind, they cannot flatter themfelves with the hopes of feeing this claim univerfally acknowledged. On the contrary, they are not flatter themfelves with the hopes of feeing this claim univerfally acknowledged. On the contrary, they are not be acceptable to the call of the public opinion, which candor and moderation feidom fail to receive.
