By Mrs Rowin, of the New-Theatre Philadelphia.
Second American edition — Price 75 cents. [The rapid fale of the First Edition of this intereffing novel, in a few months, is the befl proof of its merit.]
Katrad from the Gritical Review, April 1791, p. 458.
It may be at a of t urb, for it is not un-natural, and it is a rale of real diffrefs— Chirlistic by the artifice of a teacher, re-tommended to a ichool from humanity ra-ther than a conviction of her imegrity of the regularity of her farmer conduct, is en ideed from the governefs, and accompanies a young office to America — The mariage cerem ny, if not forgotten, is pollponed, and Charlotte dies a marity to the incon-Rancy of her lover, and treachery of his friend. — The firmations are attlefs and af-f. Sing—the deferiptions ustarial and pa-thetic; we flouid teal for Charlone if such a perfon ever existed, who for on error, fearcely, perhaps deferved to fevere a pu-nifment. If it is a fiction, poetic juffuse is not, we think, properly diffributed."

EXTRACT FROM THE PREFACE. 4 The authors have prefinned to affix to their title the epithet Inharial; and the reaton is, b caufe they cannot charge them-feives with feeling the finalleft hiss to any party, but that of truch and fiberry; and they flatter themfelves, that their readers will find a tooly every circumflance fairly reacfented, but every centurable action, whoever we e the authors or actors, markle ed in its proper colors. If i was reactful ed in its proper colors. If it was mercelling to make a declaration of their own princi-ples, they would fay, they are neit of tory nor republican. In the prefent ferment of the public mind, they cannot fintter themfalves with the b pes of feeing this claim univerfally acknowledged. On the contrary, they are well affured that thefe pages will not be acceptable to the zealous of either party. But when time fhall difficate the cloues of political decep-tion, they with four confidence expect that verdict from public opinion, which candor and moderation feidom fail to receive.
