Active preparations are making in all parts of the United States for the celebration of the Anniversary of our Independence.

We presume the report of an Express having passed through this city yesterday is premature—This day's Southern Mail furnishes no account of an arrival from Europe.

A rumour prevailed in town yesterday (June 25) said to be received by letters from Bilbao, that the Negotiation between this country and France had been broken off; but other letters received from the same place, and at the same time, make no mention of such an event.

We observe with pain, that a late London paper records the death of WILLIAM COWPER, Esq. of the Middle Temple, & the classical and moral author of poems which will live, as long as pure sentiments and energetic expression are valued by mankind.

To JOSEPH B. M'KEAN. Query. I. When a man is appointed Attorney General of the State of Pennsylvania, does he on OATH declare he will support the law? II. Is it consistent with his duty as an attorney-general to advise the good people to oppose any tax legally imposed? III. Did you or did you not advise a gentleman of this city who is opposed to the tax for watering the city, to continue his opposition, and to refuse submission to that law?

The first article in the Aurora of this morning is entitled, in the sensible and correct language of Mr. Duane, an Irish Author, "a copy of a letter (which might have been written to a great General, &c.)" How, in the name of Hibernian magic can an unwritten letter be copied? Mr. Duane is certainly related to that Virtuoso, who wrote a letter to the Royal Society, describing an invisible hoist lately seen in the neighborhood. — It is possible that the "bald, unjointed trah" of this sublime blunderer can be read, and that a fellow, who can neither argue, nor write, should gull a single block-head of the Jacobins. — But this enlightened country has its fools as well as Gotham. The ignorant scribbler finds many a wideopen reader. For as Pope sweetly sings, "There swims no goose so gray, but soon, or late She finds some honest gander for her mate."

The illiterate and ignorance of the democrats are proverbial. Of their rude logic, grammar and rhetoric, we have the most miserable specimens in the Aurora. Their pure mathematics is a foul puddle, their mixed mathematics a chaotic jumble, and their arithmetic is unworthy of a tapper or an old butter woman, a "nought and carry one Sir." They are allowed to have some skill in addition and multiplication—"3 times 5 is twenty-five," that's my way of reckoning, says the fiscal Duane, that prodigious genius, that George Rose of our Treasury.

A person carelessly leaning in a box at the Theatre, was requested by a friend to be careful of his watch, for a Jacobin author was standing behind him!

From the Havanna, 29th May.

Our Market is likely to continue overflooded with dry goods; every store in the city is filled; what the object of merchants in the United States can be in shipping, I know not; but certain it is that they may expect to lose on such shipments at least 15 percent.

In the interval between the month of November in the 9th year, and Primave in the 7th year, 1562 new literary works have been produced at Paris, one third of which consist of physical and mathematical tracts, the rest are made up of 17 Moral Essays, 183 Romances, 183 Dramatic Productions.

Since the late suspicious hospital of a happy Editor; his paper has been observed to be more than usually spirited and vivid. A grave philosopher of my acquaintance supposes that those animal spirits which used to flash in petulance, a flame in anger are now flowing in a new channel.

Mr. WAYNE. GOING home, the other evening. I observed a light in a cellar, and a merry fellow, laughing most immoderately, a paper he held in his hand. What pleasures you to much, honest friend? Some of my handy work, said he. What is your trade? A Cobler, Sir, both of Shoes and Stanzas. And what is your charge for the latter? Six pence an hour, and here is a penny-worth at your honour's service. I paid the price, and send you the enclosed.

FROM THE CHIRPING COBLER.

Says Callender to Will Duane This Bounce is strong, and brisk, and red; Dont fear, cries Will, 'twont reach thy brain; 'Twas true—and yet it reach'd his head.

By a Gentleman who had lost his watch in a Democratic Society.

Who'd save his watch with Jaco's, this must do, Pocket his watch, and watch his pocket too.

On the report of a marriage between lovely Peggy and a noted Jacobin.

Should B—with Jasper clank the wedding fetter, O let her not her stars too forely curse As there's no hope, that he will ere be better, So there's no fear he ever can be worse.

From a Public Officer to the Editor of the Aurora.

Lie on—while my revenge shall be To speak the very truth of thee.

To Duane, on his recent praise of the infamous Callender.

The rogue, you say, writes well—you'll swear it too; For while you pawn your word, he'll vouch for you;

Thus two poor rogues, who find their credit fail, To cheat the world, become each other's bail.

On Callender, selling himself to the Jacobin.

I wondered not, when I was told, The Rogue his Reputation sold; But all did ve y much admire How Callender could find a buyer. [To be Continued]

The Jovial Jester had the misfortune sometime since to understand that by the carelessness of a waggoner, a couple of casks of his favourite liquor were flaved to pieces. The baleful news reached his ears just as he was humming over a popular song— "Shepherds, I have lost my love, have you seen my Anna?"

In a fit of abstraction, occasioned by the grief of parting with Nantz, he broke out to the astonished 'prentices in his office, Devils, I have lost my Gin—have you seen my Brandy?

The Julep of each Jacobin, the bliss of Napper Tandy, Never shall I soundly snore, until their returning; All my drunken joys are o'er And I must weep 'till morning!

Whither is my liquor flown? Devils tell me whither; Ah, woe is me—the Gin is gone For ever and for ever.

*Jasper—the signature under which Duane wrote.

PENSIVE REFLECTIONS.

All, who has pow'r to say, To-morrow's Sun shall warmer glow, And o'er this gloomy Vale of Woe Diffuse a brighter ray?

Ah, who is ever sure, Tho' all that can the Soul delight, This hour enchants the wond'ring sight, These raptures shall endure!

Is there in Life's dull roll, One certain moment of repose, One ray to dissipate our woes— And bid REFLECTION smile?

We seek HOPE's gentle aid, We think the lovely Phantom pours, Her balmy incense on those Etow'rs Which blossom but to fade!

We court LOVE's thrilling dart; And when we think our joys supreme, We find its raptures but a dream— Its bosom a wounded Heart!

We pant for glittering Fame, And, when pale Envy blots the page, That might have charm'd a future age, We find 'tis but a name!

We toil for p'ltury ore, And when we gain the golden prize, And death appears—with aching eyes We view the useless store.

How frail is Beauty's bloom! The dimpled cheek, the sparkling eye, Scarce seen before their wonders fly To decorate a tomb!

Then, since this fleeting breath Is but the zephyr of a day, Let Conscience make each minute gay, And brave the shafts of Death!

And let the generous mind With pity view the erring throng, Applaud the right, forgive the wrong, And feel for all mankind!

For who, alas! shall lay, "To-morrow's Sun shall warmer glow, " And o'er this gloomy vale of woe, " Diffuse a brighter ray?"

A report was received in general circulation that Mrs. Jefferson had died suddenly, at her late in Virginia. We took some pains to ascertain the source of this report, and found that it was received by a gentleman direct from Fredericktown. We saw the gentleman, and was informed by him, that, being at Fredericktown on Friday last two respectable inhabitants of the place arrived there from the neighbourhood of Mr. Jefferson's seat, with an account of his having died in a sudden manner. Our informant adds, that the news obtained credit at Fredericktown. We have not been able to obtain any other information on the subject.

TO DISTILLERS

And Owners of Stills.

WHEREAS by an act of Congress, passed the 8th day of May 1792, entitled, "An act concerning the duties on spirits distilled within the United States," it is required of all persons having or keeping a still, or stills, to make entry thereof, between the 1st day of May and the first day of July in each year, under the penalty of two hundred and fifty dollars.

NOTICE is therefore hereby given to all distillers, or owners of stills, within the city and county of Philadelphia, to make entry of them at the office of Inspection, at 49, North Third Street, in the city of Philadelphia, within the abovementioned periods.

JAMES ASH, COLLECTOR of the revenue of the first division of the first survey of the district of Pennsylvania. June 6, 1800

To the Inhabitants of the 3d Collection District,

Comprehended by the East and West Northern Liberties, and the township of Blackley in the 3d division, State of Pennsylvania.

YOU are hereby notified, that the tax which has been assessed upon dwelling houses, lands and slaves within this district, by virtue of an act of Congress passed the 14th of July, 1788, entitled "an act to lay and collect a direct tax," becomes due and payable on the 12th day of July next, and that I will attend at my house, No. 250, South Second Street, to receive the same, from and after the 12th day of July to the first day of August next, from 10 o'clock in the morning till 6 in the afternoon, except Monday the 21st and Friday the 25th, when, for the greater convenience of the inhabitants in the township of Blackley, I will attend at the house of Mr. William Reads, at the Cross Roads, of which all persons concerned are to take notice—that on default of delinquents will immediately be proceeded against as the law directs, and subject themselves to an additional expense of eight per centum on their respective taxes as well of prosecution.

In conformity to the 6th section of the act aforesaid, a full and correct copy of the tax list remains at the office of John Browne, No. 368, north Front Street, Northern Liberties, the foreman of the revenue for the said collection district, open to the inspection of all persons inclined to inspect the same.

JAMES SWAIN, Collector of the 3d collection district. Northern Liberties, June 28 1800
