By the attention of a friend, we have received late St. Christopher papers; from the extracts which are placed under the West India Head, will be seen that American Tars have not been idle.

OFFICIAL.

Extract of a letter from captain William Cowper, of the United States Ship Baltimore, to the Secretary of the Navy, dated at Sea, June 24, 1800.

On the 21st inst. I captured the French ship Manuel, with a cargo of sugar and dye wood, and have sent her for Norfolk.

On the 25th, I re-captured the American schooner, Jolly Robbins, of Rhode Island, and sent her for St. Kitts, where she arrived safe.

A List of Merchant Ships and Vessels, under the canopy of the United States Frigates, General Greene, Christopher Raymond Perry, Esq. - com- member - Havanna, June 26, 1800. Table with columns for Ship's name, Master's name, Owner's name, Where bound, and other details.

A letter from an Officer on board the frigate Philadelphia, Captain Decatur, announces the recapture of a valuable American vessel.

A letter from captain Tarris, of the brig Mary, dated St. Croix June 24th, says, a ship loaded with coffee, &c. from Batavia, has been recently taken, and carried into Cayenne.

Extract of a letter from capt. J. Wallace of the Brig Sally, bound from Philadelphia to Surinam, to his owner in Philadelphia, dated at State Island, 17th July 1800.

I have just to inform you of the fate of the Brig Sally, captured June 9 by the F. Privateer Union of 14 guns, Cap. Houghes who took me, mate and people, except two, out of the brig on board the privateer, where we remained 7 days. He had taken the brig Mermaid of N. Y. from Calcutta, and the brig Moses, Meyers, of Norfolk, from Madeira, and about 12 took a ship from the South Sea, loaded with oil; also brig Criterion of Baltimore, and a schooner with lumber - He put us all on board, 37 in number, very short of provisions and water. We arrived at St. Kitts on 22d, and on 23d the brig Criterion came in; was retaken. She informed me that brig Sally had got in Defoada; I was taken in lat. 38, 30, and long. by account, 57, 30, W.

The captain of the privateer told me he had been as far to the Northward as 37, 30, West. - I hope you had infurged the brig in time. - I never saw one of our vessels of war till I arrived at St. Kitts, where I saw seven sail safe and snug in harbour. I only noted a protest at St. Kitts, and shall extend it when I get home.

The 7th ult. the U. S. Sch. Experiment Capt. Maly, of 12 Guns, arrived at Wilmington, N. C. Capt. Maly, informed the Custom House Officer there, that during his Cruise he had taken 13 Prizes.

FRENCH PIRATES ON OUR COAST.

Look Out. Captain Boyer, of the Brig Polly, arrived at New York on Saturday from New-Providence, informs, that on the 8th July, in lat. 27, long 74, he was boarded by the British ship Thunderer, Captain Hardy, who said he had information of two French privateer brigs, one cruising off Cape Henlopen, and the other off Charleston, for which place captain H. was steering.

General Wilkinson, his family and suite, with Mr. Charles Rofs, of Philadelphia, arrived at Norfolk on the 13th inst. The General debarked from the frigate General Greene, at Lynnhaven bay on Sunday the 13th, after a tempestuous passage of thirty-five days, from the mouth of the Mississippi.

The Editors of the Norfolk Herald, say, the report of the Yellow Fever being on board a vessel in the harbor is untrue.

DIED, at York town, Va. Dr Thomas Reynolds, late surgeon of the United States' brig Richmond. When he found his attack was serious, his virtues were such, that as he could render the United States no service, he sent to the Secretary of the navy, requesting permission to fend in his warrant. As he lived beloved, he died lamented.

FROM THE CHIRPING COBLER.

In the Spectator, Ambrose Philips has translated an Ode of Sappho into very easy and flowing English. Every one remembers his "Blest as the immortal Gods is he, The youth, who fondly sits by thee, And hears and sees thee, all the while; Softly speak, and sweetly smile."

HERE FOLLOWS A PARODY, LLOYD TO DUANE.

Drunk as old David's fow is he The wretch, who takes his grog with thee While with thy Irish tongue, so glib, You boldly swear, or quaintly fib. 'Twas you first made me love the dose, Which rais'd fresh pimples on my nose, But, whilst I drank each July toast, My health was gone, my senses lost. I fancied whiskey like champagne; In flame my blood and mad my brain; While oaths fell faultering from my tongue; I lost the bawdy Catech you sung, I felt my gorge and sickness rise; The candles danc'd before my eyes; My eyes grew dim, the room round round, I tumbled senseless on the ground.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Patrick Tagert to Andrew Ellicot, Esq. dated Cowatab Tallaboffee, Creek Nation, June 11, 1800.

St. Marks was surrendered to Bowles the 20th May last, and by the articles of capitulation between him and the commandant, the latter was permitted to march out, and with difficulty got an escort to see him and his men safe out of the Bay. During the siege, Bowles captured two or three vessels laden with provisions and other stores, for the use of the fort, just as they had arriv'd. Since General Bowles got possession of St. Marks, the Indians are flocking to his standard from every quarter - even the prince of this town, immediately after the Colonel* had gone to the talks at the Tookabachees, started down to the mischief-maker, with many others of the Tallasees, Cufferahs, &c.

The Colonel arriv'd here the night before last from the Tookabachees; the chiefs there have taken his talks, and have promised to hold their warriors in readiness to go with him at his call, and aid him with all their might in restoring peace to the nation, reducing the Seminoles and others to obedience, and expelling or taking every mischief-maker that comes into their land.

Bowles's next design is suspected to be against Penfacola, as he has now got not only a strong force, but plenty of provisions and other stores.

Colonel Hawkins, agent general for the United States. Fort St. Marks is situated on a point of land formed by the junction of the Apalache and another river about the same size, and insulated by a deep wet ditch, joining the rivers. The fort is built of hewn stone; the walls are nearly 20 feet high, and defended by twenty pieces of ordinance. It was formerly a place of considerable importance and the residence of some of the Spanish Governors; but has been on the decline ever since the Floridas were ceded to Great Britain by the peace of 1763. - On account of the shoals, and numerous oyster banks in the Bay and River, it is not considered as a good sea-port, but is advantageously situated for the Indian trade.

A son of Gen. La Fayette has joined the Consular Army of Reserve at Dijon.

The Plague has lately ravaged the city of Bullora, on the Persian Gulph, as to carry off 10,000 of the inhabitants in a short space of time.

A late London paper says, "the most determined animosity exists between the crews of the French and Spanish ships, which has extended to almost the entire number of their respective officers; those of Spain declaring that they are treated, and look upon themselves as virtual prisoners."

On a review of the last campaign in Italy, there were fought 16 battles and 120 engagements; there were taken by the allies 19 strong places, 4301 pieces of cannon, fourteen howitzers, 38 mortars, 122 waggons of ammunition, 30,959 mulekets, 500,000 cartridges, and upwards of 13,000 quintals of powder. The enemy had 73,274 killed and wounded; and lost 78,401 prisoners. They had one general in chief killed, and another wounded; and amongst the prisoners were reckoned 18 generals of divisions, and several others of inferior rank.

From late London papers. If Massena be indeed what Buonaparte used to call him the darling child of Victory," it must be allowed that he has of late had some reason to complain of the fickle and capricious temper of his Mamma.

The only appellation by which Buonaparte is now mentioned in Paris, is the Corsican and many persons affect to pronounce this term with contempt. The circumstances too of his birth and education are eagerly ransacked, in order to furnish materials of detraction. A Lady, walking one day to mortify Madame Buonaparte upon this subject, asked whether she was fully acquainted with Buonaparte's origin. I know, as all Europe does," replied Madame Buonaparte with a placid smile," that he is the son of Mars and of Fortune.

NORFOLK, July 14. An unfortunate gentleman who felt himself bold, being pretty well fraught with wine, on Saturday evening, at the Theatre, when the music struck up, "Hail Columbia," having just arrived from Europe, and not knowing what the tune meant ventured to hiss, but all the apologies of his ignorance or otherwise that he made, could not avail with a few of the audience, who politely handed him out, the music still playing "Hail Columbia."
