

messenger's head, stung him as a cuckoo and a scoundrel, told him his insignificance protected him, that he would not disgrace her sword with the blood of such a contemptible rascal, and kicked him down stairs. The applause of a Parian circle again soothed her 'chagrin; as old age and infirmity came on, she quitted the stage and associated with her forsaken husband; who, in her accumulation of wealth, overlooked his domestic disgrace. After a life of impudence, licentiousness, and flagitious enormity, this horrible female was comforted in her last moments by an indulgent priest, who, from her gratitude or conviction, thus replied to certain doubts and questions, naturally arising in the breast of the great sinner: "Your peace is made with God; and although you have been a late labourer in the vineyard, you shall sleep in Abraham's bosom."

If this story impresses the reader in the same manner it has done your correspondent, he must discover in the character of La Maupin, a strong likeness in miniature, or rather an epitome, of the French Republic. Crimes enormous; not to be matched in the page of history, too long triumphant in both;—an Almighty Providence flow, though wise as will appear at last, in punishing the horrid criminal;—and perhaps, to finish the parallel, the political trumpet may expire as peaceably, in a mild, mixed monarchy, as the national one did in the arms of an indulgent husband. But, however this may be, I thank God in believing, there is not a spot on this globe, but France, capable of producing such another plant of Hell as either.

Extract of a letter from New-England.

"I understand from some of the newspapers that Mr. Abercrombie, one of your Episcopal Clergymen, has in a sermon, cautioned the people against 'ever placing at the head of civil society a man, who is not an avowed Christian, and an exemplary believer in our Holy Religion;' in consequence of which, he has drawn down the vengeance of all the Jacobins, and among the rest their redoubtable champion, Duane. Why Mr. Abercrombie should be attacked more than other Clergymen, I cannot conceive. Do not the Clergy in Pennsylvania generally do the same? I confess I think it their duty, and I remember reading an Extract from a Sermon, preached by Dr. Wharton of Burlington, on the 4th day of July last, in which he was very pointed on this subject, and alluded to Mr. Jefferson personally, yet against Dr. Wharton, nothing has been uttered, and here, we are always cautioned by our Pastors against such characters, as Mr. J. and no person, in his senses, thinks of objecting to it. In my opinion the station in which Clerical Gentlemen are placed, compels them to oppose all irreligious and immoral people, but above all Atheists and Deists."

Extract of a letter from Capt. Rutherford of the ship Brutus lately captured and carried into Halifax, to his owners at Newbury-port dated HALIFAX, August 14, 1800. "The Brutus is unloaded and waiting trial, which will be on the 21st inst. As the cargo exactly corresponds with the invoice, it appears more in my favor. But the Attorney-General has so much influence with the Judge and Court of Admiralty that there is but little prospect of the ship being cleared."

"The 9th of this month John Diale, of Cape Ann, and Ebenzer Stanwood of Portland, both native Americans, and having protection's deserted the ship and entered on board the privateer Earl of Dublin, which sailed last Sunday; to cruise in the mouth of the South channel to intercept American vessels. John Diale, was boat-swin's mate on board the Merrimack on her first cruise."

"Admiral Parker arrived here yesterday from England to take the command on this station. It is expected that some change will take place in the court of Admiralty. An American war is much talked of."—[Judge.]

We are informed by the most respectable authority, says a London paper of the 21st July, that the state of Buonaparte's health would not permit him any longer to remain with the army, and he has returned to Paris to undergo a surgical operation for the fistula. At the battle of Marengo he could only occasionally appear in it, not being able to sit on horseback more than a half an hour without some relief.

A London Paper contains a letter from an officer at the Cape of Good Hope, dated in March last, wherein he states, that he encountered a storm, in which he had "his shirt blown in pieces from his back!"—And adds seriously enough, that it was great mercy it had not also "blown away his skin!"—This we suppose, is a relation of Baron Munchausen.

CASE OF CONSCIENCE.

I have heard the author of Serious Considerations, &c. on the supposition of his being a clergyman, blamed for meddling with what did not belong to his profession. But in my opinion this judicious and pious writer has solved a new and important case of conscience. Suppose one of his hearers who was a member of the legislature and expected to vote for electors, or who was himself an elector, should address him in the following manner: "I believe Mr. Jefferson to be a Deist; at least I have such suspicions of him as I cannot banish from my mind. I know that there is nothing in the constitution which prevents my voting for a Deist or a Mahometan. Can I consciently with my profession and obligations as a Christian give my vote for him?" This is properly a case of conscience, and has nothing to do with the political sentiments of my party. It is a question which must naturally arise in the breast of every sincere Christian who is engaged in the momentous transaction of electing a chief magistrate. Were the government of the United States not elective, or were the election is once made, the Christian religion enjoins submission and respect. But the questions, whether a Christian may of his own choice, and by his free vote, place an avowed enemy to his Lord in this high & influential station? The question has seldom if ever occurred before in the world. The author of "Serious Considerations," if he be a clergyman, was perfectly in the line of his duty when he discussed it; and, in my opinion, Christians are obliged to him for his clear and satisfactory solution.

—No. VII.—

THE OATH.

By the look of content, by the glistening tear, That spoke to my soul in a language divine; By the rubies that glow'd on the lips of my fair When, with rapture, transported I prest them to mine.

By the throbbings, that wav'd on her bosom of snow, By the blushes that, mantling, vermilion'd her cheek, When afraid to say yes—and all loth to say no She sigh'd what her tongue was unable to speak.

By the smiles, that enliven'd her elegant face When she saw, that I constrain'd those BUSHES SO WELL When she saw that Love's eye could each character trace, And read on her heart, what her tongue wou'd not tell.

By that heart, sensibility's favorite shrine, Where innocence, virtue, and truth fix their throne, By these let me swear that this bosom of mine Is fill'd with thy image, my —, alone!

But stop, silly Damon, 'tis needless to swear When arguments stronger thy fondness can prove, Dost thou doubt, my dear girl, that my passion's sincere, Yon Mirror will show you a pledge of my love.

FROM THE CHIRPING COBLER

TO TOM THE TINKER.

HOW durst thou wretch! insult the poor, By offering me a bribe; I would not darken, Tom thy door, For all the Demo Tribe.

Think on the part you're bound to act, And think where all will end; Think, while you make a thousand foes, You will not gain a friend.

You said the Federal cause was good, Yet you that cause fret; 'Gainst place and sycophants you rail'd, And yet a place you took.

Of Jacobins how ill you spoke, With whom, you now assent; Mc. Kean how oft, have you pourtray'd, Yet to Mc. Kean you went.

How could you swear your country's good, Was all your wish, your fear? And how could I, poor doating fool, Believe my Tom sincere.

And will thy cold, thy faithless heart Rejoice to see the day, When irreligious Jacobins, Shall bear imperious sway.

Riot and slaughter from that hour, With ruin shall commence; While drunken and unlettered fools, Rule learned, men of sense.

Thy rival sycophants are now, In secret plan thy ruin; And Coxe and Leib, and Will Duane, All long for thy undoing.

Once more attend, Tom mark thee well, "Fly thou the wrath to come." So mayst thou find once more thy Friend, And scape impending doom.

In lieu of satyrical ode, Of kind congratulation, Read thou my heart, such is my mind, With no dissimulation.

ODE.

Great Mac, whene'er thy haughty reign is o'er, When faithless Demos trail in thee no more, And timid Feds no longer fear you; You need not open your hated door, The coach will pass, that stop'd before, Nor will one Friend come near you.

No more e'en Rogues, delight in your good graces, Inform of Feds, and ask of you their places, Or hand their bold Petition; Detailing by what trick they have deserved, How many honest men turned out have starved, For Federal opposition;

With vapouring, Gall, and hateful spleen or craft, Reflect on Jacobine action pass, With sorrow and contrition; While horrid Phantoms sit before your eyes, Believe each disappointment from the skies!

Ege vena, curs'd ambition; Then hope to see thy fawning tribe no more, The ingrate Rats desert the falling tower, Knaves only follow Power;

Hence, Dallas, Coxe, Duane and Leib, And eke the scoundrel, and the lying tribe, Too false to fouten to be true; Their scornful finger, point at fallen you; Retorting thy "ad Tory," They cry Memine Mori;

Alas Poor Tom, Sic transit gloria Mundi!

Prevention better than Cure.

For the prevention and cure of Bilious and Malignant Fevers, is recommended, Dr. HAHN'S Anti-bilious Pills,

WHICH have been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings, in several parts of the West-Indies, and the southern parts of the United States, particularly in Baltimore, Peterburgh, Richmond, Norfolk, Edenton, Wilmington, Charleston, Savannah, &c. The testimony of a number of persons in each of the above places can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy, has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine, than columns of pompous eulogy, founded on mere assertion, could do.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason, which can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these pills, taken once every two weeks during the prevalence of our annual bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventative; and further, that in the earlier stages of these diseases, their use will very generally succeed in restoring health and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild and may be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.

They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions; to restore and amend the appetite; to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequence. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance. They are celebrated for removing habitual coliciveness, sickness of the stomach and severe head-ache, and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and during most disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

Dr. HAHN'S Genuine Eye-water.

A certain and safe remedy for all diseases of the eyes, whether the effect of natural weakness, or of accident, speedily removing inflammations, debilitations of them, dullness, itching, and films in the eyes, never failing to cure those maladies which frequently succeed the small pox, measles and fevers, and wonder uly strengthening a weak sight. Hundreds have experienced its excellent virtues when nearly deprived of sight.

Tooth-ache Drops.

The only remedy yet discovered which gives immediate and lasting relief in the most severe instances.

The Anodyne Elixir.

For the cure of every kind of head-ache, and of pains in the face and neck.

Infalible Ague and Fever Drops.

This medicine has never failed, in many thousand cases not one in a hundred has had occasion to take more than one bottle, and numbers not halt a bottle. The money will be returned if the cure is not performed.

SOLD BY WM. Y. BIRCH, STATIONER, No. 17, South Second Street, And no where else, in Philadelphia.

Where also may be had, Dr. Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, his Sovereign Elixir for coughs, &c. Restorative Drops, Effluence and Extract of Mustard, Sovereign Ointment for the Itch, Dr. Hahn's infallible German Corn Plaster, Indian Vegetable Specific for the Venereal complaint, Gowland's and Persian Lotion, Restorative Tooth Powder, D-mak Lip Salve, Church's Cough Drops, Anderson's Pills, &c. &c.
