

THE CARRIERS of this Gazette, have been strictly forbidden either to sell or give away, any of their papers; and should the Editor detect, or receive information of any person attempting to seduce them from the line of their duty, he will employ legal means for redress.

It is requested that Gentlemen who are neglected by the Carriers, will not permit several days to elapse without giving information of such neglect; but immediately give notice. They shall be served regularly.

TO READERS AND CORRESPONDENTS.

The elegant, well reasoned, and correct Essay, from the pen of a scholar, and from the head of a politician, who files himself an "AMERICAN FEDERALIST," will be inserted as soon as possible. At this interesting and fervid season of the political year, our files are crowded with numerous and prolix Essays, on topics, pertinent to the public weal.

"LITERARY INTELLIGENCE" will soon appear, announcing THE CABINET, a new Magazine, projected by Mr. John West, of Boston, and supported by the principal literati in that quarter.

"EUMENES" is from a learned and practiced pen. Both the subject matter of his Essay and the mode of treating it, entitle his elaborate performance to very high consideration. The author is, respectfully, solicited to persevere, but we must request him to divide his subject into such portions of moderate length, as may be conveniently inserted in a daily paper.

A great variety of literary and critical articles are waiting for their turn of insertion.

"MANLIUS" shall appear with an English motto.

Gratitude is due to our numerous correspondents for the valuable and constant communications, which we now, almost hourly receive. Our literary and political files are now sufficient to furnish volumes. We think this a decisive omen of the public approbation, and that gentlemen of reading and leisure think the Gazette of the United States a suitable depot for their lucubrations.

A satirical Poem on the subject of a Great Man and his Wig, is weaving by a skilful artist at the poetical loom. It will banquet our Federal Patrons, but will prove "as bitter as Colicintida" to Jacobins and Pennsylvania Patriots.

"THE CHIPPING COBLER" is again at work. He adroitly holds his banner. His end appears to us strong, though not twisted, and, while he continues so well to measure and fit the Jacobins, we are not anxious to see his last.

"The Ode to Popularity" is a home thrust in the Patriot's side. It is poetically descriptive, and politically just.

Some account of Mr. Dickens' very beautiful edition of Lindley Murray's Grammar will appear as soon as possible. We are eager to notice useful professional enterprise, and elegant typographical execution.

If the Rev. Mr. Abernombie was unsuccessful in his application for the Treasurership of the mint, he has not on that account become a reviler of the Government, under which he wished to hold an office.

Duane says we are "fond of asking questions." He is very careful, however, not to answer them.

Stephen Sayre, of Banking memory, and better known in London than in any part of the United States, figures as Secretary to an anti-Federal meeting in Jersey, of which the truly sagacious Joseph Bloomfield was President. How much weight either a printed or a written paper ought to receive from such names, we pretend not to say; but we may be allowed to form general conclusions from the indignant manner in which thirty respectable citizens, nominated by these Jacobins, to serve on their committees, have refused to have any thing to do with them or their proceedings.

And we hesitate not to infer from this disavowal of their proceedings by these respectable citizens, that Sir Solomon Bloomfield and his Squire Stephen, will make but a sorry figure in their endeavors to be appointed, the one Governor of Jersey, the other Secretary of the treasury of the United States.

Joseph Bloomfield Governor of the respectable State of Jersey! and Stephen Sayre Secretary of the treasury of the United States!—Good jokes, truly!

The one qualified to turn a wheel, if it was set in motion—The other is qualified to turn any thing.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in Europe to his friend in America, dated July 10th 1800.

I am much obliged to you for your information, your papers, and your pamphlets. I see the electioneering campaign has begun at a very early period indeed, and with equal inveteracy, and ability on the part of opposition. That very pimping to the popular passions, upon which all the Jacobin cabals are founded, is but too well calculated to succeed in a country like ours.

Je crois voir le diable "Que Dieu force a louer les Saints."

"I think I behold the Devil "Whom God compels to praise the Saints."

You observe, that it is surprising to see how pliable the tempers of people are, and how generally they follow the torrent of political success.

an entirely left to conjecture, with very few data upon which to ground an opinion concerning them, I cannot but wish you had been less reserved in speaking of them.

It has been suggested that the last mission to France was sent against the opinion of the two Secretaries, who are no less in place. It can no longer be a question whether this measure was for the benefit of the United States. The ministerial writers in England to be sure found great fault with it, and talked about degradation of dignity in negotiating, before the injuries and insults of the French government against us had been repaired and atoned for.

Such is at present her situation in a very eminent degree. You will undoubtedly, before this reaches you hear of the battle of Marengo—the most decisive action, perhaps, that has been fought within a Century. The Corsican Russian, is beyond all doubt a hero in the common acceptation of the word, and, I suppose, in other respects, as good a man as the rest of his class.

DOVER, SEPTEMBER 19, 1800.

MR. WAYNE,

AS your paper has a more extensive circulation through this State, than any other, I wish to contradict a Jacobin lie which is gaining ground. They say, that the Methodists who form a very large proportion for the Federal interest of Kent county, intend to drop the Honourable James A. Bayard at the next election.

TO THE ELECTORS

Of the City and County of Philadelphia Gentlemen,

On a former occasion I experienced a testimony of your confidence, and friendship by your votes for the Office of Sheriff— Now in a more advanced stage of life, and encouraged by a numerous body of respectable citizens and firm friends, I again apply for your votes and interest at the next election— Resting my character through life, a security for a faithful performance of the duties of Office— Should I be successful or not in my application to your friendship, on the occasion, I shall remember with gratitude your patronage.

NEW YORK, October 6.

By arrivals at this port yesterday, we have received London, Glasgow and Dublin papers—they are no later than our dates by the Brandywine Miller; but contain several articles of secondary importance, that have not yet appeared in the American prints.

A letter received in town on Saturday via Boston, from Capt. Paddock, dated Mogadore, 5th July, states the following particulars.

Ship Otfwego, Paddock of Hudson, from Ireland for this place, via Cape de Verdes was lost on the coast of Barbary the 3d of April last—the captain and all the crew, save four (who were kept by the ship) were taken to the interior part of the country and sold as slaves; from thence they were marched to Mogadire, and there were redeemed by the house of Wm. Court & Co. of that place.

Passengers in the ship Fortitude, Thomas Scattergood, of Philadelphia. Robert Sutcliff, of Sheffield.

Passengers in the ship Mary, Capt. Wright and Mr. Gillmore.

RICHMOND, September 30.

On Saturday last, the noted GABRIEL arrived here by water, under guard, from Norfolk. He was taken before the Governor, and after some interrogations, committed to the Penitentiary for trial. We understand that when he was apprehended, he manifested the greatest marks of firmness and composure, shewing not the least disposition to equivocate, or screen himself from justice. He denied the charge of being the first, in exciting the Insurrection, although he was to have had the chief command—but that there were four or five more persons more materially concerned in the conspiracy; and said that he could mention several in Norfolk; but being conscious of meeting with the fate of those before him, he determined to make no confessions: It is hoped, that this hardened miscreant, when under condemnation, will reflect more seriously on his situation, and open some circumstances, that may lead to very important discoveries.

We have heard it slightly rumoured, that he has letters in his possession from white people, but do not pretend to set it forth as a report deserving of credit; we only wish it may be true, provided there are white-men in the plot that they may be bro't to justice.

The captain of the lugger, who took Gabriel from this to Norfolk, was arrested at the same time, on suspicion of intentionally aiding and assisting in his escape, and confined in jail together with two negro men that were on board the vessel. The discovery was fortunately made by a negro boy formerly of this neighborhood, who being acquainted with the General, in his proper department in life very friendly accosted him as he accidentally met with him on the wharf.
