COMMUNICATION.

The Tragedy of " Pizarro" with " The Horse and the Widow!' was performed to a very crouded audience, on last Wednesday Evening.

Mrs. Merry in Elvira, fully displayed those abilities of which the is so completely mistress. In the scene where she enters, expecting to find Pizarro flain by the hand of Rolla, and he is presented to her associated eyes, alive ! dildaining to fhrink from the fate which awaits her, in what language does The reproach the tyrant for feducing her from the abode of innocence and peace. They must be devoid of fersibility, who could liften to her tale, unmoved.

Miss E. Westray's performance of Cora, gave general fatisfaction; but some of the fcenes require greater energy of voice, than this lady is possessed of, particularly where she demands her husband, after the feturn from battle.

Great must his powers be who would attion.'

have been called into action, particularly where Elvira reproaches him as the feducer ed fituation in life. It was necessary, in of her innocence. He stands and listens as order to discharge the trust reposed in me, he would do to a common conversation, to put the laws and ordinances into execuquite unmoved. His next performance of tion for the well government of the city;

Pizarro, we hope will be far superior.

What could induce Mr. Wignell to give the part of Ataliba to Mr. Wood; not to be better performed we are certain. Such as bim " who for the most part are capable of nothing but inexplicable dumb show, and noise," should never have characters like Ataliba committed to their care. We shall be happy to see Mr. Wignell resume it, the next time Pizarro is performed.

As to Mr. Coin's Alonzo, let him "reform it altogether."

WASHINGTON.

From the London Morning Chronicle, Aug. 9.

The following extract of an unpublished letter of Gen. Washinton, to his nephew at Mount Vernon, while he himself was with the army, places, the character of that excellent man in a very amiable point of view :

November 26, 1775. " LET the hospitality of the house, with respect to the poor, be kept up. Let no one go hungry away. If any of this kind of people should be in want of corn, supply their necessities, provided it does not encourage them in idleness. I have no objection to your giving my money in charity, when you think it well becowed. What I mean by having no objection is, that it is my defire that it should be done. You are to confider, that, neither myfelf nor wife are now in the way to do these good offices G. W."

On Wednesday evening last, a deputation of the Constables of the City of Philadelphia waited upon Robert Wharton, Esquire, and presented an address, of which the following is a coppy. We feel a pleasure in communicating to our readers this additional evidence of the worth of our late Mayor.

To ROBERT WHARTON, Efquire, Late MAYOR of the City of Philadelphia.

SIR, While we leave it to your fellow citizens duly to appreciate and applaud your vigilance, independence and usefulness, during your exercife of the office of Mayor of this city, we are impelled by fint ments of gratitude & respect to address you on your withdrawing from that important flation.

Having been, in some degree, connected with you in the administration of your office, we cannot forbear to give our testimony of the justice, dignity and impartiality with which you have filled it; to acknowledge your uniform kindness and politeness to us in our official intercourle, and to express the regret we feel on your retirement.

Receive our cordial thanks for the whole course of your conduct towards us; our fincere affurance of perfonal efteem; and our wishes that you may ever find that prof-perty and happiness which your private virtues' as well as public fervices, most justly deserve. In you we have always found a protector in the performance of our duty, and an active, resolute assistant when difficulty or danger, required your support. (Signed)

No. 48, SOUTH FRONT-STREET. HAS JUST RECEIVED. By the Pennsylvania, captain York, from LONDON,

An extensive and elegant assortment of LONDON SUPERFINE Broadcloths and Cassimeres. d42.tu.&f 4w. THE NUN, -A CANTATA.

RECITATIVE. Of CONSTANCE holy legends tell
The foftest fister of the cell,
None feet to heaven so sweet a cry,
Or roll'd at Mass so bright an eye, No wanton taint her bosom knew, Her hours in heavenly vision flew, Her knees were worn with midnight prayers, And thus she breath'd divinest airs.

In hallow'd walks and awful cells, Secluded from the light and vain,
The chaffe eyed Maid with virtue dwells,
And folitade and filence reign. The wanton's voice is hear'd not here.

To heaven the faered pile belongs;
Each wall returns the whifper'd prayer,

And echoes but to holy fongs. RECITATIVE.

Alas! that pamper'd Monks should dare
Intrude where fainted vestals are! Ah, Francis, Francis, well I weet,
Those holy looks are all deceit,
With shame the muse prolongs her tale,
The Priest was young—the Nun was frail,
Devotion faulter'd on her tongue,
Love tun'd her voice, and thus she sung.

AIR. Alas, how defuded was I, To fancy delights as I did. With maidens at midnight to figh
And love, the fweet passion, forbid!
O, father, my follies forgive,
And still to absolve me be righ; Your leffons have taught me to live, Come teach me, O, teach me to die. To her arms in a rapture, he sprung, Her bosom, half naked, met his; Transported in sience she hung, And melted away at each kifs. Oh, father, expiring the cry'd,
With rapture I yield up my breath;
Ah, daughter, he fondly reply'd,
The righteous find comfort in Death.

THE COQUETTE'S JOURNAL. Lectured by Pa and Ma o'er night, Monday at ten quiet vex'd and jealous, Resolv'd in future to be right, And never listen to the fellows; Stitch'd half a wrist band, read the text, Receiv'd a note from Mrs. Racket; I hate the gypfey, the fat next All church time to fweet Captain Clackit. Tuesday get scolded, did not care, The toast was cold 'twas past eleven; I dreamt the Captain through the air On Capid's wings hore me to heaven; Pouted and dined, dreffed, looked divine, Made an excuse got Ma to back it; Went to the play, what joy was mine! Talk'd loud, and laugh'd with Captain Clackit. Wednesday came down, no lark so gay, The girl's quite alter'd, quoth my mother, Cried Dad, I recollect the day, When, dearest, thou wert such another, Danced, drew a landscape, skimmed a play In the paper, read that widow Flacket To Gretna Green had run away The forward minx with Captain Clacket. Thurf ay fell fick; poor foul, fie'll die; Five do flors came with len thened faces;

Each felt my puffe; ah me, cried I, Are these my promised loves and graces, Friday grew worse; cried Ma, in pain, Our day was fair, heaven do not black it; Where's your complaint, Love? In my brain, What shall I give you ?- Captain Clacket. Early next morn, a noffrum came Worth all their cordials, haims and spices; A letter-I had been to blame; The Captain's truth brought on a crifie, Sunday, for fear of more delays Of a few cloaths I made a packet And Mondaymorn flept in a chaife, And tun away with Captain Clacket.

To the Members of the Legislature of New-Jersey.

ELECTORS in your State, are chosen by you in joint-meeting. By another act, paf-fed, 31ft of October '96, it is expressly declared, that they, (the Electors) "shall be appointed on the thirty fourth day, preceding the first Wednesday in December"that day, will be the 30th of this month. You are to meet, by your Constitution, the 28th. Your friends have been uncommonly active-no trouble, no expence have they avoided, to secure your election. Let them hear, therefore, that you are not inattentive, to an all important duty. Be at Trenton, the Monday before. Besides choosing your Speaker and other officers, you have to effect, what they, for fix months past, have been so anxiously laboring for, to wit, the choice of electors for New-Jersey, who will vote for John Adams, and Charles Cotefworth Pinckney. MOVE ON.
