ANU THE GOLPEN UUP. In Ireland, as in Scotland, among the lower orders, there is a prevalent belief in the dxis-tence and superatural powers of the gentry commonly called "fairles." Many and strange are the stories told of this mysterious and much dreaded race of beings. Loud and fre-quent have been the exclamations of surprise, and even anger, at the hard incredulity which that was marrated of the wonderful feats of trish fairles.—the most frolicksome of the en-tire genus. The more my disbelief was mari-tence in the more my disbelief was mari-man tence in the more my disbelief was mari-tence in the more my disbelief was mari-tenc

when the village schoolmaster came in, an un-invited but most welcome guest. A chair was soon provided for him in the warmest corner —whiskey was immediately on the table, and the schoolmaster, who was a pretty constant votary to Bacchus, lost no time in making him-self acquainted with its flavor. I had offen seen him before. He combined in his character a mixture of shree waters and simplicity, was a most excellent mathemati-cian and a good classical scholar—but of the world he knew next to nothing. From youth to age had been spent within the limits of the parish over which, cane in hand, he had pre-sided for more than a quarter of a century,— at ence a teacher and an cracle! He was deeply inbued with a belief in the superstitions of the district, but was more especially fami liar with the will legends of the rocky 'glen (the defile near Kilworth, commonly called Araglin, once famous for the extent of illic in the schosing to the table, store ployed. another, Mr. Patrick McCain pinged is once into the heart of his narration, as follows: "You know the high hill that overlooks the town at Fermoy? Hasdsome and thriving place as it now is, I remember the time when there were only two houses in that same town, and one of them was then in course of building! Well, there lived on the other side Corran Thierna (the mountain in question, though Cor-rig is the true name) one of the Barrys, a gen-tleman who was both rich and good. I wish we had more of the stamp among us now-'tis little of the Whiteboys or Ribbonmen would trouble the country then. He had a dashing rate. It does not matter, here no there, how may servants he had; but I men-tion them, because one of them was avery re-markable fellow. His equal was not to be had, far or near, for love nor money. They changed their quarters when the regiments from Fermoy baracks, took to firing against targets stuck up at the foot of the mountain. Not that a ball could ever, hit a fairy (except a silver one cast by a girl in her teens, who has never wished for a lover, or a second husband—so there's little chance that it will ever be cast), but they hat the noïse of the firing and the simel of gunpowder: quitt as much as the devil hates holy water.
