THE REBELLIE BILL, A LAW!.

General Packer was yesterday elected Governor by an immense majority. This was not unexpected, but the majority is much larger than we anticipated. In the midst of the gloom that has settled upon the country, such a popular decision cannot fail to exercise a healing effect. General Packer is in the best sense of the word, a safe man. He is truly a Pennsylvania Democrat, identified with no extremes, committed to no ulterior, recognizing to the last the deep obligations we all feel for those good and gallant men, once of the opposition ranks, who assisted Mr. Buchanan in 1856, and now aid General Packer in 1857, and he is, above all, heart and soul devoted to the solid welfare of Philadelphia and of the State. General Packer is "no tyro in statesmanship." He will not go into the Gubernatorial office unaided by his friends. He has run far ahead of his anticipated vote. General Packer's vote is great.

Less interest than usual has been felt in the election, and the poll is light, but everywhere the reliable Democratic strength has been fully sustained, and in some instances increased, as compared with the election of 1856. The Legislature, from present indications, will contain a very large majority of Democratic members. We now give the returns as far as received:

ALLENTOWN, COUNTY.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 13.—Wilcox's majority will not exceed 10,000.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 13.—The returns from three precincts in this city, and two precincts in Allegheny city, show a total of 10,000 votes, and Wilcox has one-half more. It is believed that the vote in the entire city will be about 22,000.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 13.—The vote comes in slowly, & gives Wilcox about 22,000 majority for Governor, which is the largest in the State.

Allegheny City gives Wilcox 450 majority, which is the largest in the city.

The returns from the remaining cities give the following results:

The Republican county ticket is probably defeated by a small majority.
