We therefore give our opinion on the question, which is, that the person who has received the collaterals is responsible to the company for them. The fact that the note was negotiable does not relieve the person who received the collateral from responsibility. The company gave him the bonds as security for the repayment of a certain sum of money at a certain time, and when the time arrived, they had a right to demand from him, on a tender of the amount; the return of the note and cellaterals. The rine on the banks yesterday, was kept up until the usual hour of closing the doors, or until the officers, announced to the erowd that no more payments would be made in specie. Most of the large banks, paid up to three o'clock, including the applicants or that hour, admitting none at the door after. The whole smouth of coin paid out during the fay; not counting the Savings Bank, about, for millions of dollars. The available was prevented in some of the large in their late official avarages, in consequence of some of the heaving their balances to remain only on special second. [BY TELEGRAPH.]

PROF. SAUNDERS' INSTITUTE.—This seminary, most cligibly located in West Philadelphia, has received the highest commppdations from Judge Lewis, General Wynkoop, Colonel Forrey, G. G. Westcott, Esq., and others who have bad sons or wards under the charge of Prof. SAUNDERS. We take pleasure in adding that his educational plan is such that students find books a recreation rather than a tedious task; and that mildness, decision, and the law of love, are alone depended upon to josure attention in the school-room. Our personal experience enablesus to give a willing endorsement to the many flattaring sphoomiums which the Professor and his Institute have respired.

We have heard gentlemen, whose sons are under his care, speak in such entrusiestic terms of his entire management and arrangements, that we are constrained to request any of our friends who have sons to caucate to pay him a visit—[Editor of the Pennsylvasigs.] The money market shows no material change, beyond the sudden equalization of the exchanges between this city and New York. The city that would not suspend, the Gibraitzr of the banking system, having surrendered at discretion, all the bank notes of the country will at once be upon very nearly the same level, while the perium for real money will probably advance, still algebra than at present.
