The article bears the startling this of The Hour and the Man, and its general tone is up to the level of the rhapsodical coordium. The hour means the moment of resistance to the Lecompton Constitution, and the 1 man is Honry A. Wisc, of Virginia. For the last six months Forney has been asselling the Administration and the South with the ulmest vindictiveness. In that fact we have the secret of his present demonstration."

The late intelligence from Kansas discloses how much "the unhappy controversy which has heretofore raged in that Territory" is aggravated by the non-submission of the Leompton Constitution to the people. On the 4th of July, 1857, the Editor of Tun, Pages delivered the annual address to the Democracy in Independence Square, by regular invitation, in which, following out the declarations of the Richmond Examiner of the 23d of June, and, as it appeared, anticipating by three days the strong editorial of the Washington Union in the same direction, he used the follewing language. bonest expression of the ballot-box in Kausas so These views were not only not contested in any quarter, North or South, but were very generally endorsed by the Democratic papers. The Washington Union not only spoke favorably of them, but, as we have shown, followed them up by the article of the 7th of July, which we copy above.

On the 1st of August The Press made its appearance. With the most fervent desire tostand on the full platform of the Administrareturned in order to carry out the programme as' marked out at Washington long ago.

The vote for the Lecempton Constitution, on the 21st day of December last, was confined to the pro-slavery men. And we know that their strength is not ever two thousand.

The vote against the Constitution, on Monday, will reach (at the lowest estimate) ten thousand.

This vote is made up of free-State men, "conservative Domocrats." "Whigs," and hundreds of other citizens, who are not identified with any party.

If, indeed, we do differ from the President of the on this issue, we shall deeply deplore it; but as our difference is sincere, it is not necessary as our difference is sincere, it is not necessary to the convergence of the co as our difference is sincere, it is not necessary that we should manifest it by personalities. We adopted our opinions deliberately, in the conviction that they were in accordance with the Administration policy, but not because of it. We belief these opinions, greatly as we reveronce his character and his example, this fact will not justify us, to our conscience, and to the people, in deserting what we have openly and always advocated.

List evening we received intelligence from the at Fart. Bridger, and from the Territory of Utak and proceed to give the news, which is of a lifely interesting character.

The whole of the troops sent out upon this expedition have been concentrated, and were, at the date of our last accounts, in winter quarters, on Black's Fork, about one and a quarter mile above Fort Bridger, with the exception of Colonel Cooke's command of dragoons, who were posted forty miles distant, on Henry's Fork, where there was some scant supply of grass for the horses. Five companies of the infantry were stationed at old Fort Bridger, and were engaged in rebuilding the works, for the purpose of protecting the provisions, and to be occupied hereafter as a permanent fort for the United States. The whole of the works, it was anticipated, would be completed by the spring.
