We are so full of money. now that it is foreing itself out in miny, ways, and easier rates are had every day. I see that most of the commercial wri-ters in this city, indeed all, with the exception of one or two, who delight in ruin, and never predict anything but disaster, agree with me in my hope-ful view of our present condition, and never predict were also of my opinion when I thought it my day to criticise severely the conduct of the banks. The contry buyers are coming in already in fair numbers, paying their debts, and retarning home with newly, purchased goods. They find that their promptness and honesty are duly appre-ciated by our merchants, and that they are treated with liberality. The movement in this direction is every day becoming more apparent, and when oncover get the wheels turning easily, the motion will be soon quite as rupid as is safe. New undertakings are still regarded with 'a cer-tain foar, but, every, day is insafed. New undertakings are two considered prudent and allowable.
