NOVELTY, for the most part, is simply what we recover from oblivion. We can fish little out of the river Lethe that has not first been thrown into it. The world of discovery goes round without advancing, like a squirrel in its cage, and the revolution of one coun-try differs little from that of its predecessors. New performers in new dresses monnt the stage, but the piece and its accompaniments, remain pretty much the same, people going as usual to the fashionable empori-um of Clitton, Albright, & Co., Jayne's Hall, No. 627 Chestnut strest, to buy their clothes.
