SY THE DARD OF TOWER HALL. (A SHORT FELLOW.)

When spinner clothes were selling fast,
One day down Market street there passed

A man, upon whose busy tongue

Three words were like a bugle rung,
"I'll do it!" 'Stay !" oried the clothing ! barkers," "Rest!

"Stay !" tree to the stay of respect.

With us you may be neatly drespect.

If clothes you want, do not go by;"
But still the stranger made reply, "I'll do it!"

As on he sped, around he gazed— His eager, earnest glance upraised, As it some purpose, fixea and high, Gave uttrance to the startling cry, 1111 do it;" "I'll d.
Six pea-nut venders he had met;
And all of them he had upset;
"Pick up your traps," policemen cried;
And each affrighted one replied,"
"I'll d.

And each affrighted one replied;

"Well, this ere is a pretty fit;"
Said each of the run-over six;

"For spilling me and goods in trade,
With pearint he should be waylaid,
"I'll do it!"

"I asked him, if a murther a but the replication of the control of the con I am quite mue the crittee sale, and sale of trace.

But while the sufferers on the walk: * versey Were spending time in idle talk, Far louder than their bitter groups Went up the thindier of thiss tones. * I'll do it!! At last, before an open door,
Through which an eager strong did pour,
The attanger pawed, Sudjoined the crowd, Subt attill the abouted, clean, and loud,

Ull do it!

On Chestiaut street, the enouging day,
The stranger passed in fine array,
And many a lady's eye did frace
The outlines of his form of grace,
The outlines of his form of grace, Done what? will sak my leaden all.

It is been to Beinetth Tower Hall.

And buying there, his lips wore stilled;

I'll do it," had been well fulfilled;

Hold done it.

That is, he'd bought a suit complete.

Cheap, stylish, durable, and neat;
And felt; in such a suit arrayed;
Proud of the high resolve he'd made,

"I'll do, it.".

When leaving in a happy veln, very the nalennan said, Please call again; Sweet as the note of single birds.

has been ably and most fally elaborated by others, and I shall say no more. Let us all hope, when the people of Kansas shall have rejected this insult; that in the re-organization of party, and before our next National Convention, public santiment, North and South, will compromise upon a common platform, and that the will of the people, and that fairly expressed, will be the rock upon which we will build the Democratic party. Ignore the rights of the people, destroy the equality of the States, and we will soon find ourselves like the Republics before us, drifting to the "shores where all is dumb"

In politics he was, when he was here, and always has been a Democrat. As a judge, he may, and probably does, supposs it improper to take any part in the political questions now under discussion, but those who know him best are sure that he will be found at all times on the side of the GENERAL NEWS. The house of Wm. W. Fox., Esq., president of the New York gas-light company; at West Farms, was a score of undital galety list. Weddedday afternoon. Li was the fittich anniversary of Mr. Fox's marriage with Miss Leggett, daughter of Mr. Thomas Leggett, a well-known member of the Society of Friends. At the time of the wedding, Mr. Fox's doors were thrown open during the day, and a sumptuous table was spread. In one of the parlors was the statue of a female, clad in the wedding dress in which Mrs. Fox walked up Peck silp to the meeting-house. This presented a striking contrast to the dresses now worn by ladies who 'follow the fashion. The skirt was only about sighteen inches wide. There was a trail of thin muslin, with a deep satin border. The bride remarked that such a dress 'she could have then purchased in the morning and have it made up by the afternoon. At the jubilee were present one of the groomsmen and one of the bridesmaids. Several who signed the first marriage certificate signed the second one. A large oircle of friends and acquaintances paid their respects to the vonerable pouple.

One Isaac L. Wood was recently convicted at Genesso, Livingston county. New York; of mudering his sister in law, Mrs. Rhoda Wood, by polson. He had been previously tried for that offunce, when the jury failed to render a veridet, owing to the unaccountable recusancy of a single jurer. It was a case of manifest and undoubted guilt. Wood had not only murdered his brother's widow, but he had made her a widow by poisoning his own brether. He 'also attempted to destroy, in the same vary, the two children of his victims, ther's property. After his failure to take the life of the children he changed his tactics, and pro-The house of Wm, W. Fox., Esq., pres

The Richmond Enquirer makes the following inclandably statement: A gondisman from Isle of Wight informs us that opposition to the oyster-tax has, to a very great extent, abated throughout that portion of tide-water. He informs us that Yankee voisels have increased three-fold is that Yankee vossels have increased three-fold this season, and that many have brought their tongmen, and thus denied to natives the small pittance formerly paid those worthy laborers. These vessels bring whiskey, and other forbidden articles for negro traffic, and in many ways corrupt the negroes, pillage and rob plantations of wood, and anything that may fall in their way. We expect tide-water to be clamorous for the Fundum bill during the next session of the Legislature. Our informant says unless something be done Virginia cystermen will have to abandon that business, for Yankee competition is too great.
