There, the proceedings in the law-courts, from the small tribunal over which a County Court Judge presides to the House of Lords, sitting as a Court of last appeal, are privileged. That is, the newspapers can give honest reports of them without being pounced down upon as having committed libel.

As to what takes place before police-magitrates, it was decided, a few weeks ago, by an English Court of Queen's Bench, sitting in Banco, (in the case Lewis vs. Levy) that " the importial and correct report of the proceedings was lawful." Lord CAMPBELL declared, most truly, that such reports " often lead to the de-OHN H. BELL, TEACHER OF NAVIGATION AND NAUTICAL ASTRONOMY, At BRYANT & BTRATTON'S COMMERCIAL OGLEOE. B. Let us add a few words upon the American practice in libel cases: We here have two modes of procedure: One by an action for damages; the other by accusing the imputed libeller as a criminal. In England there are three modes: By ex officio information, grantable by the Court of Queen's Bench, which makes the Queen the nominal prosecutor, the punishment, on conviction, being fine, or imprisonment, or both. On the con-trary, he may be actuated by a general good purpose." On a more police report, Scamp, placing himself upon the pedestal of Law, elevates himself to the dignity of Martyr, and, swearing that newspaper editor, reporter, or proprietor, (all three, or two, or one,) pub-lished the Lawyer's speech, these persons, their due appearance, at a subsequent period, to answer any indictment which may be pre-ferred against them as having committed the criminal offonce of Libel.
