FOREIGN MISCELLANIES. Fraginard and the United States.

[From the London Times, June 19]

There is an end of our differences with the States upon this disagreeable subject. We have yielded all they asked, and we were wise in doing so, because substantially they had right on theireide as to the question of law. With regard to that of policy, as the blockade of the Cuban waters was adopted at the suggestion of the Government of the United States, and as they have taken a different view of the course to be pursued, it is no business of ours to compet them to combistency. ounsistency.

We look upon this dispute as at an end; but the graver question still remans, whether the traditional policy of this country, with regard to the slave trade, is to be continued. We cannot con-slave trade, is to be continued. We cannot con-coal from ourselves the fact that there is a large section of the British community which regards— as their fathers did before them—the inhuman traf-fi; in the bodies of our fellow-oreatures with un-mitigated abhorreone and disgust Lord Palmer-ston, who through a long political careor has ever been consistent to this one object, still relies upon-force. As we are about to withdraw our squadron from the Cuban waters, he trusts that the British doveroment will ure upon that of the States to force. As we are about to withdraw our squadron from the Cuben waters, he trusts that the British toverement will urge upon that of the States to send American erries to Cube. These are the opinions of the old anti-slavery party. expressed by one of their oldest, ablest, and most oors steet advocates. We believe, however, that this question of the slave-trade is about to enter upon an entirely new phase. Our about rance of the traffic remaining just what it wis, our means of repression will be different from what they have been. We shall rely more upon the natural play of human interests, and less upon the vigilance of our cruises. How if it should turn out that, save in the abolition of negro slavery under our own flag, we have during the last half century done more evil than good—that we have not benefited, but injured the African? Thoughtful men are beginning to say that we have been mistaken in this manner, as we were mistaken about close boroughs and close ports. We have bitherto acted in obedience to a very flery indignation, not upon a well-matured opinion. We have been outsided rather by sentiment than by reason. The irresistible inference from the result of efforts continued for forty years at lesst, with unabated energy, is, that occord on will not suppress the slave trade. Are we to persavere for ever in a course thus condemned.

An Angry Woman !

We'take the following from the London Morning Star? Towards the close of the protectings of the Hortfordshire election; just after Sir Edward Balwer Lytton had concluded his address with a fervent tribute of admiration to the womanly beauty exhibited in the long line of open carriages, chaises, and years drawn up in front of the hustings, there was an unwonted sitr in the, orowd, which parted to admit of the passage of a hired broughain from one of the town inns. The carriage having stopped, two ladies allighted, one of them an extremely handsome woman, of about forty-five years of age, with fresh comploxion, and with eyes of dazaling beauty. The lady, who was evidently laboring under excitement which exercised all her powers to control, advanced as nearly as she could through the crowd towards the hustings and announced herself as the wife of the Right Hod. Sir E. B. Lytton, stating that she had come according to a promise made by her to confront her husband, and to expose the wrongs which she said he had indicted upon her, and which she had described in works, and in a pamphlet published by her. The appearance of the lady was not unexpected, as her coming had been announced in bills and placerds; but, owing to a deciption which had been reactised upon her by some persons in the town who had introduced themselves to her, she was detained in the town while the election was proceeding in the violaity. Those, in the secret anticipated that she would not discover the mights until the proceedings ware over, and that her design would be thus frustratid. It was nearly so. Recognized as Fron as observed, her volce was nearly drawned by the thous of Elitics.

Lady Lytton arrived in Hertford at three o'clock on the moraing of the election, having posted from Taunton, where she resides. It is needless to say that the event described has coursed the greatest possible excitement in Hertfordshire.

The Earl of Derby, at the anniversary of the Merohant Tailors' School, in replying to the toast of "Her Majesty's Miniaters," said he believed the friendly policy of the Emperor of the Franch toward this country was such that he would even sacrifice a part of his popularity with the army rather than rupture an alliance which was for the mutual benefit of the two greatest nations. The Premier also, in allusion to the difficulty with the United States, said "he trusted that the apprehensions with reference to any rupture of our friendship with that country were at an of our friendship with that country were at an the apprehensions with reference to any rupture of our friendship with that country were at an end."

Lord Brougham has introduced into the House of Lords a bill for "securing the real independence of Parliament." It is directed against the admission of bankrupts to sents in either House. The Ballot Society takes a very encouraging view of the recent division on Mr. Berkeley's motion, exhibiting as it does the largest number evotes over yet polled for the ballot in the House of Commons. From the analysis of the division lists it appears that only fourteen honorable gentlemen pledged to vote for the ballot were absent.

Weak and very it, he nevertheless managed to mount a horse, when a sun-stroke knocked him down, and very near proved fatal.

THE PILLAGE OF LUCKNOW—We learn that a lady residing at Clifton, the wife of a gallant major at present serving in India, has received a letter from her husband, which gives a glowing account of the treasure seized by our troops at Lucknow. As an earnest of his own success, he hassent her home a necklace of splendid pearls and some emeralds, one of which is believed to be of large value. The gems are in a comparatively rough state, the emeralds having been ignorantly and, we had almost said, mercilessly drilled through. The letter speaks of a corporal in the gallant officer's regiment, having got a bracelet which will probably be worth from £100,000 to £200.000. Another letter from a younger officer received at fillion states that the writer has got three superb embroidered shawls of rare workmanship and great price.—Bristol Mercury.

THE COURTS. PESTREDAT'S PROCESDINGS.

Inegoried for The Press.]

UNITED STATES CHROUT COURT—Judges Grier and Cadwallader—Winter, Latimer, & Co vs. Ludlow, Beebe, & Co. This was an argument on exceptions filed in relation to the ownership of certain gold dust shipped from California by the complainants in the var 1855. The case has been several times befor the ourt in various shapes, to the great novamings of the legal gentlemen concered. There is a possibility of its being settled by the present proceedings, but, judging from the adverse views taken by the respective coursel, not much probability. Argued by Mesers Charles Ingersell and Wm. Ernst for the complainants, and Messrs. D. W. C. Morris and Yest for the respondents. and Messra. D. W. O. Morris and Yost for the respondents.

Quarter Sessions—Judge Allison—The only care of interest tried in this court yesterday, was that of the Commonwealth es. John W. Gann charged with a criminal assault on a young girl about thirteen years of age. The details of the alleged assault are unfit for publication, but the testimony was of the most contradictory character. About half past two colook the jury came into court, and the foreman, Mr. Kelly, of the Third ward, addressing Judge Allison, seld, Judge, we cannot agree upon a verdiet; wo never oan agree. Judge. Is there any point upon which, you defire to be instructed, gentlemen?

Foreman. Ob!, no. There are six of us for conviction, and six for acquital, and that's the reason we can be averaged.

all the facts before you, some conclusion ought to be come to; suppose you try it again.

The Sanday Institute and Buddhism.—We went less sunday evening to hear a lecture upon Buddhism.—It was delivered by a Mr. Eastman at Franklin Hall; upon Sixth stree; above Market In that hall passables weekly a humber of persons associated under the name of the Sunday Institute. The lecture was pronounced before some twenty-five or thirty persons, for the attendance was very thin.

Mr. Eastman read his lecture in a rather pleasant and agreeable manner. It contained some curious research, and underneath and through it all run a somewhat novel train of contrast and deduction. He sought to prove that the system of Buddha preceded the Christian, chromologically, some six hundred years. As he developed the various historical facts relative to its rise and progress, and discussed its theological dogmas and tonets, he sought to show that in the former were traceable the incidents in the birth, life, and history of the Divine Founder of Christianity, and to point out as existing in the latter the germs, and, indeed, the origin of many of the most important doctrines he anught. It was evident, upon the whole, that the thome of the lecture had been chosen for the purpose of attacking, in an indirect, Gibbon-like manner, the claims of Christianity of w neathenicity. Everywhere, throughout the discussion, the speaker introduced such episodical attacks. We presume it is but fair to say that he succeeded as well in his purpose as most persons who make such attempts usually do. It is, however, but a repetition in another way of the old fayorite mode of attacking this authonicity. We went to the Sunday Institute to agertain, if icity. We went to the Sunday Institute to ascertain, i We went to the Sunday Institute to ascertain, if possible, what tenets the members of it held, if any, relative to religious matters. From the whole tenor of the exposition we heard, we could gather nothing clear or definite. The principal object seemed to be to pull down, to raze, to blot out a system. Whilst this process was going on there was no other system offered in its stead. The determined in the steady of the extractive faculty alone seemed to be present, unrelieved at any time by the presence of the recreative. But we must not judge too harshly of what the belief of this association of people is from the temper and bearing of a single exposition of their belief.

There was a single glimpse, however, of one of temper and bearing of a single exposition of their belief.

There was a single glimpse, however, of one of their favorite ideas, or rather of the sum and substance of the philosophy of their belief, afforded by the speaker. He deprecated severely the proneness of man to run into abstract metaphysical speculations, declaring that they were too little given to dejending upon the evidence of their five siness alone. He sesumed that all was conjectural and uncertain, and therefore unreliable, which went beyond phenomenal development. This is the philosophy of Hume in his book upon Miracles. We presume, therefore, that this is the distinctive basis of opinion among the Sunday Institute people, and show's decisively the line of demarcation between that opinion and faith in the Christian system.

CITY ITEMS. EDWIN CLARK'S MILI, AGAIN.-The more closel we examine, and the more we hear of the opinions ex-pressed by practical millers, the more we are persuaded that this new patent flouring mill is one of the most important inventions of modern times. Feeling assured that if the mill really was what, on first examination. it appeared to be, it must speedily take the place of all obliged to pass, we have called in frequently, and at all hours of the day, and it is but due to Mr. Edwio Clark, the patentee, to say that we have yet the first time to visit it and not find it in full and complete opestion. We make this statement now, from the fact that we are almost hourly called upon for our opinion as to the merits of the mill in ques'ion; but would again repeat to our readers that the most satisfactory information to be obtained can only be had by calling and making a personal examination. As already stated, the mill tee have described, and which we have creason to believe is unparalleled by any other, is in daily operation at No. 235 Race street, on the first floor of the Singer's Sewing Machines.—After a fair rial of the several machines that have yet been offered o the public, the unanimous vordict of operators has een given in favor of Singer's. This is, in fact, the only nachine capable of performing every kind of sewing.

SINGER'S NEW FAMILY SEWING MACHINE is, beyond all question, the most complete article for family use yet invented, being at once ornamental easily operated, and superior, in every respect, to any other machine. On this statement we challenge the world.

WING'S FARINA CRACKERS.—The rounkable excellence and great popularity of those Crackers have attracted the attention of those manufacturing other descriptions of Grackers, and many of these persons buy WIAG'S CRACKERS, in order to supply their customers with Farina Crackers.

One or two individuals, however, have been offering the ordinary kind, which they make under the name of Farina Grackers, and have succeeded in selling them to a small extent.

the ordinary kind, which they make under the hame of Farian Crackers, and have succeeded in selling them to a small extent.

The selling of such Crackers for Farina has a tendency to injure the reputation of TRUE FARINA ORACKERS, made by Mt. WIAO.

Errors of this character, however, are usually corrected on being properly sepsed.

No other person has ever succeeded in working the material for varina Orackers, or producing any article which contains such highly nutritious and heatthful properties as WING'S.

WING'S CRACKERS have a delightful taste, act kindly upon the stomach, and are digested with remarkable case. For dyspepties or the aged, as well as sedentary and delicate persons generally, they are most acceptable, and peculiarly pleasant for children.
