than yield it np, rather than compromise it some of the leading Democratic statesmen of the nation have not healtated to take issue with an Administration, in the finsh and ful ness of its patronage and power. In the last Gongress the Republicans and the Americana supported it in a body i and in one shape or another, all the Democrats did the same thing Even those who yielded to the exactions of the Lecomptonites doemed it the higher policy to say that they were strongly attache and fully committed to it. The Administra tion, through its organs, proclaimed its spomaking Lecompton a test, took care to say that " hereafter " the people of every. Territory should be protected in that of which the puple of Kansas have been so persistently deprivad. This Acclaim of devetion t Popular Soveroignty means much. It is th pledge of the nation, and of every considera ble political organization in the nation, i support of the principle of the Declaration o endence, and the guarantees of th Federal Constitution. And wos betide th. leader or the party that attempts to evade this pledge by going behind it! 1. A 53. 1 1 It is true that here and there objections are urged against the doctrine of Popular Soverolgaty, An extreme Southern man insist that his slaves can be carried into and kept in a Territory in deflance of Constitution and laws ; and an extreme Abolitionist demands to know how the people can be clothed with full power to regulate their domestic institutions in their own way with the Dred Scott decision securing to slaveholders the right to carry their property" into any Territory (and, ac cording to the Washington Union, into any State) in deflance of the local law. But these objections fall into nothing before the fact that as Popular Sovereignty is not intended to deprive the South of any of its rights, neither is it intended to be made the cloak of politicians who think the overthrow of the will of the majority the highest schlevement of political science. If the people of a Territory want slavery, they will have and ought to have it; but if a minority choose to hold slaves, in defiance of the public wish, as expressed at the polls, the Dred Scott decision will be of litthe practical consequence. ie." Queen Christine is said to have made Rome her home for the future. She has married two of her daughters there, and placed a great deal of money in the railways to Civita Veochia and to the South. Her real estate in France is, or will soon be, in the market. The most interesting property she owns here is Mainsion, celebrated for having been the home of Napoleon and Jo-sephine in the morning of their fame, and, I dare say, in the meridian of their happiness. It will doubtless be purchased by the Government, which has bought this week M d'Orbingy's collection of tossile, &o., paying Sil,000 for it.
