Wickman's District. Those who know John Hickman and hiadversaries, and understand the patriotic motives which inspire his canvass in the Sixth Congressional district, can form a reasonable idea of the strong popular feeling which his appeal to the ballot-bexes has awakened. His energy surprises even those who remember his former masterly campaigns in Chester county; and never, at any period of his career, has he been so irresistibly eloquent. He addresses immense assemblages nearly every night in the week, and has marked out a series of most ings which will absorb most of his time before the election. The utmost and the most constant labor is thus self-imnesed. The effect which the arguments of Mr. Highwan pro duce upon the minds of his constituents may he appreciated when we state that it is im possible to find halls and public buildings large enough to accommodate his audiences, and air. The style of his oratory, his ability as a logician, his powerful invective, and his keen satire, added to the sincerity which marks the whole man and his history, make his progress through his district like the progress of a triumphant hero. Wherever he speaks he carries conviction to the minds of conest men, particularly to those who have been operated upon by the emissaries power. There is no resisting the truths h utters. There is no answering the arguments of one who declares his indifference to public station, and fights only to vindicate as indestructible principle. Such a man is

WASHINGTON, August 6, 1858.

A scene took place on Thursday evening in the Democratic City Convention of Baltimore, which is worth recording. A delegate, Mr. Owens, who wants to be bituminous coal agent in place of the incumbent, Col. Polk, father-in-law to ex-Governor Lowe, offered a set of resolutions approving the course of the Administration on the f ingenious iniquity,) but it is indisputable Kansas question. He was followed', by Mr. Wolfe, Kansas question. He was followed by Mr. Wolfe, another delegate, who offered a set of resolutions denouncing the removal of the Douglas Democrats from office. A rich scene ensued, which ended in tabling both sets of resolutions. The anti-Lecompton feeling was very strong in the Convention. Your course is warmly approved by thousands of the Maryland Democracy. I could mention some very distinguished names in this connection.

The politicians are beginning to cast about for the Presidency. One set are laboring for Daniel S. Dlokinson, of New York, who will be supported by Mayor Wood, Mr. Schell, Mr. Beardsley, and others. How the Battle Goes on in Illinois. Correspondence of The Press. SPRINGPIELD, Ill., August 2, 1858. Judge Douglas's march through the State is a triumphant one. No man ever lived who would ever have received one-half the attention that he now receives. The conduct of the prominent Federal office-holders in this State is such (whether approved by the Administration or not) that if Mr. Buchanan were now a candidate for President, and the election were to take place to-morrow, he rould not get one thousand votes in the State of Illinois. You have no conception of the feeling that exists here against him. The Democracy here believe that he is aiding the Republicans, brough his office-holders, to defeat Douglas, and he effect, so far as the Administration is concerned the same as if it were true. Mr. Douglas will be re-elected in spite of all pposition, and anti-Lecompton men will be returned from the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, th districts certain; and unless the course of the Administration is changed soon, you may The bogus State ticket (Reynolds and Doughery) cannot get one thousand votes in the State; in majority of the counties that ticket will not get ne vote. For myself, I am not an office-seeker I have lived here about thirty years; have been member of the Democratic State Central Committee most of that time, and am one now, and I know something about the sentiments of our peo-ple. Nothing can save the Administration in this State, except for the President to call off his dogs. A Voice from Elk County, Pa.

[Correspondence of The Press.] As the time approaches for the people of Pennsylvania again to decide who shall represent them in the different offices to be filled at the October ections, it is natural for the mind to revert to past events and past issues.

Now, sir, what was the issue between the two great political parties of the nation, in 1850, on the subject of Congressional interference in the Territories? Did not the leaders of the Republican party emphatically declare that they recognised the right, and conceived it to be the duty, of Contact of the Territorias?

At one of these, known to the pleasure-seeking world as "Deal," sion at a cost of $165,000, to furnish which he was desirous of making provision upon the same costly scale. The aid of several of our business men was enlisted for the outfit. Mr. George H. Henkels, the well-known cabinet-maker, was called upon to supply the cabinet furniture, and Mr. Acton proceeded to select elegant articles of mahogany, walnut, rosewood, and oak, to stock the mansion with the needful chairs, sofas, bedsteads, bureaus, &c. The bill run up at Mr. Henkel's store was $10,000, and as the terms were to be cash on delivery of the goods, Mr. Henkel was made a happy man. Mr. W. H Carryl's establishment was to supply the curtains, which were selected to the amount of $6,000, and Mr. E. W. Carryl was honored with an order for the number of smaller purchases, which were to be sent to his palatial abode in Lancaster. Nor did he confine himself to these articles, but, with the xest of a Wall-street broker, he was ready to dabble in all kinds of property and stocks. There was nothing which the alderman deemed dequate to warrant him in holding Woodward as n accessory to Mr. Montgomery's death, but he committed him to answer the charge of Isroeny.

Woodward does not appear to entertain any apprehensions as to the result. His manner was full of levity and assurance. He says that since he left Philadelphia he has been tending bar in the viol-nity of Boston, and so far from robbing Mr. Montgomery of $1,160, he never had half that amount of money in his life.
