IRON BUILDING, ARCH STREET,

The contest between the representatives of the four great Powers of America, England, France, and Russia, backed by their respective fleets, and the Emperor of China, and h and 400,000,000 of people, is deeply interesting, and the issue it involves one of great importance to the whole civilized world. The French and English Ambassadors are prepared o deal in blows as well as words, while the American and Russian Ministers are authorized to employ peaceful means alone, in the common struggle against Chinese exclusiveness. The four barbarian diplomats proposed to meet Imperial Commissioners at Suchou, but the Emperor's Premier refused the demand, and, preferring to treat with them singly, directed Lord ELGIN and Baren LE GROS to Canton, the Count PUTIATINE to Amoor, and Mr. REED to Wanghea, that our treaty might be renewed where it was originally made. But the armed squadrons were not to be thus separated, and a naval campaign was decided upon, in the hope of bringing the impracticables to terms by bombarding their towns, and stopping the sea supplies of their capital. With this view, a position was taken at the mouth of the Peiho, in April last. Great difficulties were experienced in establishing communications of any kind with Chinese officials of high rank; but at lengthcolleagues. His name is FAN-TU-JIN and he is a famous lawyer of Shaon-hing, a place as distinguished for the skill of its barristers, in China, as Philadelphia is in the United States: so that our diplomat found a foeman worthy of his steel. The interview occurred in a tent hung and carpeted with crimson, containing several tables, furnished with fruits and confectionery, arranged on the sides, in the presence of a Chinese general, judge, numbers of mandarins, the members

Mr. Reed. "But, did you not say it was at hand?"

Mr. Rood. "But, did you not say to use any to use and the stand at Pekin as if it were here, for I can obtain it, if desired."

At this puerile subteringe Mr. Reed lost patience, and cautioned the High Commissioner against resorting to such prevariostion in fature, as it would inevitably undermine that mutual confidence so necessary to successful negotiation. Commissioner Fan renewed his protestations of veracity and sincerity, and, had he been required to swear by Styx itself, it is probable that he would not have declined the eath.

Of this three hundred and six, there will be one hundred and wenty from the slaveholding States, and one hundred and eighty-six from the non-slave holding States. SUPERIOR CATTLE.—We saw, yesterday, at Chestnut street whatf, en route for Maryland, three superior young cattle, of the Durham breed, which were raised on the farm of Messrs. C. & C K. We have never, according to our notion, seen better specimens of cattle, of any broad; and their selection from our ceunty reflects credit, not only upon the Messrs. A Good Jork.—An incident occurred recently, which serves as a strong illustration of one peculiar trait of Capt. James Francis' official character. The cartain is famous as "Chief of the Dog Catchers," whose operations he directs with the most consummate skill, and in which is the most consummate skill, and in which he freshy no means a respective of persons, much lees of dogs, in the discharge of his official duties; and anything canine, which has hair on or bark in it, if found running at large "contray to the ordinance," &c., is bound to feel the weight of the explain's gramp, or the restraining influence of his coil of rope. In short, the "love me, love my dog" principle has never found its sentimental way into his breast, for the captain has a double motive in steeling his heart against the dog's pitying look or its master's persuasive, pleading tones: The one is, he has a vastly elevated idea of the dignity of his official hadge—the other, the incidental fee for the arrest and impounding.
