Reform Bill, to change the "final" settlement. This measure had the misfortune of being abused where it was laughed at, by every rational politician in England, ... It was frame on the principle by which the falle Dutchma sought to lengthen his short blanket at night; he cut off a piece from the bottom and sewed t on the top of the blanket, and complaine hat "It was never the longer !" So with Lord JOHN RUSSELL, who took the old Reform Bill to pieces, and put them together, in changed positions, without adding any thing No. If Lord DEBBY cannot frame, propose and uses a Reform Bill, without the feeble aid of Lord Jonn Russell, one of the greatest humbugs of the age, he does not deserve to kold office. One of the London papers suggests that Lord Joun Russers should " bring in his Rea year-each office, when held singly, being $25,000. As our correspondent says, the younger PITT, who was a great financier held both offices at once. So did SPENCER PER-CIVAL in 1812, GEORGE CANNING in 1827, and Sir ROBERT PEEL in 1835. During the Rockingham Administration, in 1782, Fox had paramount influence in the Cabinet. In 1783. the Duke of PORTLAND was nominal Premier Lord NORTH and Fox really wielding the poweris and in 1806, though Lord GRENVILLE was RUSSELL, who had been at the anniversary First Lord of the Treasury, undoubtedly the real head of the Government was Fox, the

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE. Anniversary of the Young Men's Chris-tian Association. The Young Men's Christian Association of this city has been in existence nearly five years, and now numbers about two thousand members. For efficiency, and unity of action in all its beneficen glad to resume that office. Equally true that DERBY is now the head of the British Goundertakings, it has furnished a worthy model for giad to resume that onces. Equally one that DERBY is now the head of the British Go-nil similar associations. Of its extensive member-ship there is a large proportion of young men, who is, most desirous of stepping into his shoes. Most true, that DERBY is nomipenso whatever than the consciousness of being in-telligently employed for the good of others. Since nal head of the Conservative, while RussEL endeavors to be considered a leader
