From New Jersey. Letter from a Distinguished Democrat For The Press,]

Now that the smoke and dust of the late politi al conflict has been blown away, and men have had time to look around them and to gather up their scattered senses, it is amusing to listen to the various reasons that are given in explanation far as Jersey is concerned. Such a rebuke to of a result (which, though looked for by many, Senators Wright and Thomson, and, indeed, to very few believed would come precisely as it did), and to the various remedies that are offered to prevent its requirence. By some the late election is looked upon as a by Jersey Blues to any of her public servants. Let us hope it will do them good, and learn them not to attempt to misrepresent the people again ! But Such is the case in this instance. The Democratic count ticket was composed of some of our most popula opposition are particularly jubilant at what they are pleased to call the downfall of the Democracy For one, I do not so regard it. To me it is a other glorious triumph of our time-honored party; another Waterloo defeat of its opponents; a repe tition merely of the great instional campaign of 1856: I hesitate not to say that I am prouder of the Democracy to day than ever I was before, and am more than ever convinced that the Ame rican people are equal to their institutions, and Very way capable of self government.

ican people are equal to their institutions, and every way capable of self government. Surely the charges, heretofore boldly made against us, of blind adherence to party lines and party lead-ers. of inability to distinguish between names and things, has been most signally refuted in the late election. Ostensibly the parties were the same that met in 1386. They bore the same banner. But who that paused to look beyond the surface does not know that the 'so-called Democracy was de-feated because its leaders had become Republi-cans, while the so-called Republicans succeded simply because their masses had become in princi-ple, as to the great questions concerning Kansas and the tariff. real. Democracy "The whole sorget liss in this. The cause of our apparent defact is go-where else to bo found. Names in this context way nothing, while principles' were alone regarded by the people. In the compaign of 1856 the difference between the parties was well defined. On the question of the management of the United States Torritories, the platform of the Republicans as for the tariff was equally marked. Thus we fought that batke, and, in twos signo, we con-quered : and so just and wise were the grounds which we complet on these questions, and so ac-ordant were they with the spirit of our institu-tutions, that almost with one accord these who had opposed them before the election adopted them afterwards. There we were equally strong. Our name and our macasures were in harmony, and we showed our strongth when, in ratification of these principles, we can man to before there and our strong the shore in headers. Indeed, so popular was our position that there was hardily a presso ta man to be found who adsquarely against the "Iniquity," he would have been elected—as the majority for Nixon comes out and "faced the music," our county tickets would We have just heard of the success of the gallant Douglas over the unholy combination against Democrats of this section of the State have sympathized with the "Little Giant" all through the contest, and now are rejoicing over his victory certainly the greatest political victory, as I was the most bitter warfare, ever gained by any VOX POPULI. Indeed, so popular was our position that there was hardly a press or a man to be found who ad-hered to the Territorial plank of the Republican platform, and to-day Seward and Lincoln stand on it almost alone, while our motio of a revenue tariff, with invidental protection, was their rally-ing ory in the late baths. While this wholesome and healthy conversion was going on, in an evil hour our own men, our stand-ard bearers, those to whose hands the machinery of the party had been entrusted, suddenly repudiated the doctrines of popular sovereignty and placed thomselves on the platform of the opposition, as-serting with them, in effect, the "sovereignty of Congress." The result might have been foreseen. By all who believed in the intelligence and in-tegrity of the people it was foreseen, and we have just come eut of a conflict in which Demooratio principles have again triumphed over the Repub-licanism of 1856. All honor to those who fought this battle, and who, while willing to fight for the "men and measures" of the party so long as they were in harmony, clung to the measures rather than the meat, when it had to become plain that one or the other must be rejected. The lesson then given will be long remembered. May we all lay it to heart. Our course in the future is very plain We have but to retain our name and our princi-ples, to stand where we stood in 1856, and without regard to mames, to weloom e ago on en and true, all who adopt our cardinal principles. We must also resume, without delay, the ma-ohinery of our party organization in every county and township in the Union, for it is ours by right, and not theirs, who, in the name of our party, have used it to destroy its character for con-sistency. victions of the people?
