YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

consented to act as temporary president, in the absence of the president, three times, is therefore to be inferred to have had a hand in the ruin of the bank—why, I would like to know what would become of these other eleven directors. If they were put upon trial, if any such doot line as this were applied to them. I would like to know one thing wore There is no more reason why those cloven directors should not be here with Thomas A. Newhall than that he should be here with Thomas A. Newhall than that he should be here alone. I would like to ask you. To say why the fact that he was temporary president upon three occasions should put him as this bar alone, instead of putting the other cleven there with him. Other people acted as temporary president, before the failure and after. I make no reflection upon shy of them. I don't know that an improper act has been committed by any of them, but I say that if, because one man has acted as temporary president upon three occasions, he is to be held responsible for the failure of a bank, you can, by a like application of the same rule, make them all responsible. When that rule comes to be adopted by you in the dispensation of justice, I hope that they will all be here together, and that no invisious distinct on will be made in favor of Mr. Newhall; because if he is to be accused of crimes upon a mere inference, let them all be put in the same box, and apply the same law to them all—prety severe law, to be sure, but just as good for them as it is for him.

What slid he do when he was temporary president $132,000 of the Mak's money. The learned gentleman bad not the candor to tell you that every dollar of this discount had been paid in full. That's the thing I complained of in the beginning of may remarks. When that came out in evidence, he as ammed that he had not paid any interest upon the discount; and the next witness proyes that he had not he acador to tell you that every dollar of this discount was transported to the which Mr. Newhall had given for the decreas, he as t with the request of the District Aitrorey, but we trust that he may be enabled to attend to his duties to-morrow, beyond which time we hope that your Honor will not adjourn this court, at least for the present.

I sudge Thompson I regret very much, gentlemen of the Jury, that this case bannot go on to-day, on account of the mespected indisposition of the District Attorney, from whom I have just received a note, raying that he is unable to resume the prosecution of this case to-day. I hope that he will be sufficiently improved, however, to continue the trial to-morrow. I will adjourn the court till that time, when, by the sid of a protracted session, we will endeavor to get through with as much of the defence as possible.

To the Criex. Adjourn the court till t-to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

discounts prove that he paid every dollar of these discounts and interest besides. With that I dismiss the charge.

(ur. Thayer then proceeded to discuss in their order, and very minutely, all the other charges which had been preferred against his cliert, and to refute them; but want of space compels us to abridge his remarks. After going through the several charges, he concluded as follows:]

Gertlemon of the jury, I have gone into these matters in great detail.—I fear into too great detail and that I may have in some measure wearied your attention; but I did not see how Louid be more brief and do justice to hir. Nowhall in this inquiry. I conclude as I began, that I do not stand here to-day to prove that there was no compiracy in a case in which the Ommonwealth's own witnesses prove that there was no conspiracy. I do not stand here to refute a criminal charge, when not a jt of evidence is before you to sustain that charge. But I do stand here—and I regard it as my privilege to stand here to day—to give you that explanation of hir. Newhall's transactions, with the bank which will forever vindicate an honorable and high minded man against the slanders which have been sedulously circulated against him. No man, who has a particle of self-respect or manly honesty in his bosom, after I have dones with this case, shall have occasion to say that any blot rests upon the character of Thomas Newhall.
