The War against Paraguay.

Though these are "piping times of peace,", the clouds of war. It will not be the fault of the Administration if it does not succeed in gaining some laurels by its martial deeds, as well as by its civil policy. The proposition to seize and hold a portion of Mexico, and to authorize the President to institute a war for that purpose, at his own goed will and ples sure, notwithstanding the immaculate Dred Scott decision has, in advance, pronounced his 'abject to be unconstitutional, is but a elight evidence of his eagerness for military honors ..... The continued determination to nourish the project for the purchase of Onba after the emphatic manifestation of the sentiments of the Spanish Court and people, af forded by the recont action of the Chamber of Deputies, at Madrid, is another proof of a belligerent disposition ; and, supported as tomad can be sponged out or bailed out. The issue of our quarter against the distant Republic of Paraguay remains to be determined; but, from present appearances, there is little reason to anticipate that any results will grow, out of it of sufficient importance to compensate this nation for its expenses. The latest intelligence from that country indicates a warlike disposition on the part of our antagonists; and though this Republic is numerically strong, and Paraguay very weak, it is not certain that Mr. BowLIN, and the fleet by which he is accompanied, will scoomplish the objects of their mission. More than three hundred years ago, a Spanish expedition, almost as large as our own, was despatched against the same region, and was worsted by the savages who inhabited it. The official organ of Lo-PEZ, the Paraguayan Dictator, declares that the demands of this country will never be acceded to, that our forces will be sternly resisted ; and some of whom have just escaped from the it asserts that Paraguay is well prepared for war: The only answer to our demaids is one from the bitter contests against the party of defiance.
