Wassusgers, March 4, 1859. I remained at the Capitol mull half past one or cleak this morning, and had an opportunity of converding with many friends whom I had not seen for the second of comparing the second distance of the old halfs with the second distance of the old halfs with these of the new. The Rouse, in some re-spects, is admirably constructed. Beautiful ante recommendations and other rare conveniences, have ventilate party creeds, and to express a hol-low confidence in the Administration. Tam-many Hall may rear, through its hundreds of species, is admirably constructed. Beantiful ante rooms, and other rare conveniences, have been provided. But the area is too, great. The members are as specified of the state of supendous acts morally the members are as specified from each other, and the Specker is a so great a distance, that it is often different to here line, and sometimes to be different to here line, and sometimes words addressed to him. You will re-There it stands, faultiess in its logical and in collect that when the House by a selemin role demanded, an investigation into the Kansas fraid. Mr. Speaker, Orr. appointed a com-mittee expressly to stiffs investigation, giving the majority, to those who were opposed to this investigation, and re-fining to obey the express decree of the House and the saxious expectation of the country. A burst of indignation greeted this act, and the conduct of the people; and, I. regree to add, proved that the motive for line of other the committee was to keep out of history the committee was to keep out of the Administration and its agents in that disturbed and distant Territory. No part of the Demostrey was assisted by this high collect that when the House by a selemn vote its moral symmetry. It is no longer a fallacy : it is no longer a more theory, susceptible of ne construction in the North and another in the South. It is fact-a living fact-capable of the spprehension of the humblest mind and as certain to be maintained hereafter, i this Union is to be maintained, as that he who writes these lines is a living being. Such is the contrast between faith broken and princi-

So that, whistover our regard for Mr. Orr may be; however worthy personally; these very cir-cumstances readered it imperative that, some mark of disapprobation sheald be recorded against bins that his conduct might not pass into a precedent, to be followed by another Speaker who might be more of a partisan and 12 the rates of postage came to an untimely ond, in the last moments of the second session of the 35th Congress. The measure, which ori-ginated in the Senate, was met in the House less of a petriet; The Southern members, particularly those who have adhered to this Administration, are now, inturing to their homes to pre-pers for the deciders. These men will have a predict field to carry. They will be com-pelled either to ignore the Administration or to foll therefore the administration or to with the weight which it will attach to them. The courtupt and corrupting example, set by the President and the Cabinet, now sz-posed to criticizen and animalversion, will be of Commons of originating all bills raising revenue. The House would not yield the point. There was not time for any Administration posed to urtitelan and animalversion, will be hald before the constituents of these mon, and they will be hold to a fearful responsibility. There is a wise and a just retribution in all this. We beceasify would have existed to re-sort for what is now permeet as one long cata-logue of arms, had the Executive faith-fully followed the chart laid down by the party-thet elected him, and repeatedly and solemnly accepted and endorsed by binnest - no prescription for opticon's sake---no reward of diabonest and realess favorice---no reward of diabonest and realess favorice--ember to recast the measure for the House and so it fell to the ground. It was, in all respects, a Government measure, and had any similar attempt been made, by an English Ministry, to introduce dear in place of cheap bostage, millions of angry letter writers, from the Peer to the Peasant, would have sent such strong and stern remonstrances to Parliament and to the Sovereign that the peccant Minister who had made the proposition would have een dismissed, or compelled to resign. Dear no reveat of dishonest and reckless favorites-no gathering is his confidence a horde of brokes af vanterory and political and personal profights-had he matrilly related the mandates of a few ambitions ster who have been over-whelmed in the rule which has fallen like the inantis of death upon his Administration. lum," No 321 Ohestnut street. THE TRIAL OF MR. SICKLES -There was a runor circulated this week. that an eminent lawyer of Philadelphia had been retained as coupsel for Mr.

Sickles. This appears to be a mistake; but we learn from undoubted subbrity that Mr. S. has sent on to this city and procured an elegant suit from the Brown Stone Clothing Hall of Rockhill & Wilson, Nos. 663 and 605 Ohesiant street, above Sixth. He desires t make as respectable an appearance as possible upon hi trial.
