of New York city, furnishes, in the number issued to day, a long and entertaiding account of a visit, made last fall, to the present residence of Kossuth da London:

The Hungarian patriot is established in Upper Gower street, Bodford Square. He fain strattened diroumismoes, living on the proceeds of his lidetures and contributions to newspapers, eked out by the remnant of his wife's $20,000, most of which was lost in railroad investments in the United States. It may he observed here, though the Ledger writer does not mention it, that Richard Cobden is said to be a victim of the same speculative preference for our country. Kossuth still admires our country and its institutions, and thinks he made asme mistakes on his visit here, in consequence of his ignorance of our affairs, and the advice of interested friends. In European politics he takes a warm interest, consuring with unqualified severity Orsin's plot against Napoloon's life, and Mazzin's local insurcations, as identifying the cause of liberty with murder and assassination. He still confidently expects its triumph in Europe and other lands; and whether he shall live to see it, appears to h'm a matter of small consequence.

The question what became of the $100,000 collected by Kossuth in this country is answered by the writer. Kessuth did not appropriate a dollar of it. oh is own use, but expended it all on'the political objects for which it was contributed. By its aid he sent agent after agent on expensive revolutionary service to Hungary, two or three of whom were executed, and the viginace of Austria rendered his schemes abortive.

"It is seven years," says the writer, "since Kossuth left the United States—but he looks twenty years older now than he did then. His flowing beard, then jat black, is now plentifully sprinkled with grey. He has grown very bald, and congeals his baldness by combing his hair over the top of his head? His face is marked with deep wrinkles, and the impress of oare, and grief, and hopes long defored, is deeply stamped upon his fea

But his smile is as sweet, his voice is as deep and melodious, and the light of his dark eye is as soft and as tender as in the days when they so won the hearts of our people, and made the soul of this nation vibrate like the strings of the lute to the touch of gentus and of skill." Daring Feat at Niagara. One evening, a couple of weeks age, two persons were engaged in carnest conversation in the International Hotel, at Nisgara. One of them was One evening, a couple of weeks ago, two persons were engaged in earnost conversation in the International Hotel, at Nisgara. One of them was a gentleman from the South; the other a native of Stonington, Conn., named Andrew Greenleaf, well known for his surprising feats on stilts, but who has adopted the name and country of Signor Gaspar Morelli. The Signor was speaking of his various astonishing feats on stilts, to which the Southerner listenced incredulously, till at last Signor expressed his conviction that he could cross Niugara river on stilts, between Goat Island and the Falls! The Sintherner offered a thousand dellars to fifty on the issue, which, to the astonishment of all, was taken.

Punctually at the time named Morelli appeared with a pair of stilts about twelve feet long, made of wrought iron, flat, sharp-edged and pointed—shaped, in fact, almost precisely like a double-edged dagger. These were firmly lashed to his legs, and he walked towards the terrible river with a confident smile. He stepped into the water, which in another moment was beliing, gurgling, and rushing beneath his feet. The beldest of the lookers-on held his breath in surpanse, as the daring man receded from the shore. He alone seemed unmoved, and passed on slowly and carefully. His steps at first were very short and carefully made, but afterwards became bolder and longer. The stilts, of course, were so placed that the current struck only against their sharp edge, and produced but little effect; but the dauger from sunken rocks, and the conviction that a single false step would send him to death, produced a feeling that was horribly prinful. Once or twice he seemed to lose his balance, and as ickning shudder ran through each roe of the beholders. Recovering himself, he ris is kept on, still receded, until he could coarcely be distinguished from the feaming waters.

As he approached the Canadian bank—ho was safe, and fell into the arms of two men who were waiting to received the comparatualtions of dozens of visions.

LECTURE ON LYING.—The following passage from a lecture delivered in Boston, last week, by Henry Glies, Esq., has an Frinian ardor, combined with tersoness, (says the Boston Courier,) which cannot fail to strike the reader, even if he be not prepared to admit the application to any one hereabouts. Mr. Glies said:

"But then the Irish tell such lies—especially the needy Irish, and, above all, the servant girls! What sinners and exceptions they must be in the middt of surrounding truth! How guilty they must be, with such brilliant examples always and everywhere before them of simplicity, sincertly, veracity, and integrity! What severe conscientiousness in our parties and their leaders! How sorupulous our press! How full of probity our statesien! How rigorously verity rules our orators! How genuine is all mercantile commodity, and how abhorrent of falseshood is the word of seller unto buyer! Of what unbending rectifude are all our moneyed corporations; how honorable and how like Glessi's wife are all their agents! And none of them ever run has no respect for the sanctities of other men's homes; but he burns with a sense of indignan virtue on finding out that Biddy went to meed her lover, when she said she went to see her aunt Yet Joseph Surface Goliathan, Esquire, thinks lies, breathes lies, sleeps lies, droims lies, biys lies, sellelies, pays lies, cats lies, droims lies, biys lies, sellelies, pays lies, cats lies droims lies, and has lies, paid to him; is himself a conglomerated liewill be consecrated by a lying splitaph.
