8th day of April, 1859, will be memorable in the his-tory of Baltimoré, as the day upon which four young men, in the prime of life, suffered the death penalty. men, in the prime of life, sufered the death penalty. The morning sun rose brightly, but his about time it was overcast with clouds, and the gloom of the heavens accorded with the andness which pervaded our community. The neighborhood of, and the entrance to, the city fall was crowded all of yeaterday by a large compourse of penons; mals and female, whose curio ity and interest in the fate of the persons condemned to, die to day seemed to of the persons concerned and the fate of the persons of the considerations.

Last night the families and relatives of the condemned man paid their fargwell visit, and the reenes which were enacted in the cells were truly heart-rending. Free longly, the ministers in attendance occupied some time in devotional exercise, which were con-timed applications made to the Almighty in behalt of the sonis of the condemsed. They likewise participated in the devotions, and all assumed deeply affected.

The Mayor was informed several days since that the fisicals of one of the priscoper had for some time been practicing with Sharp's rifle, and it was upposed that it was the design to shook kim upon his reaching the platform. His Kloner, however, took every precution to guard against any disturbance, or in any measure to prevent the solemu sentence of the faw bying carried out.
