Excursion to Atlantic City. Yesterday morning a very pleasant party, comsed almost exclusively of members of the press of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, went (on the nyitation of the Board of Directors of the Comden and Atlantic Railroad Company) upon an ex-pursion, the first of the season, to Atlantic City. Every arrangement had been made to conduce not only to the convenience, but to the pleasure of the guests. The first stopping place was at Great Egg Harbor, which is so called on the principle of lucus a non lucendo, for there happens to be no harbor anywhere about the place. One is astonished, however, to find broad avenues laid out, and well graded, with tross planted on each side, large and spleadidly constructed dwelling houses, fine hotels, imposing edifices erected for public purposes, and the surrounding country in a high every side, of a prospering civilisation where only a short time ago all was a wilderness and without a habitation. All this prosperity flows to New Jersey from the enterprise and energy of German-born citizens of the United States in Philadel-

The guests were received in this Toutonic set lement in an exceedingly Teutonic manner They were invited to a large hall which was fee tooned with evergreens, and were then saluted it a very hearty manner with glee songs in German, with creamy lager, and the most appetizing bread and sausages. But a short stay was made here, and the party next found themselves upon the shores of the Atlantic. After much cogitation and many elevated and dignificant remarks about the vast commercial esources of Atlantic City, the party embarked to two wave to approach that city from the ocean. With surprising unanimity, the sumptuous dinner which awaited them was hailed on the landing of the voyagers, and at the dinner occurred, as at every dinner on a like occasion, speeches witty, speeches amusing, speeches severe, speeches com-B. THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON TO THE ARMY OF ITALY.

GENOA, May 13—The following order of the day has been this day issued by the Emperor Nappleon to the army of Itsly:

"Soldiers! I some to place myself at your head to conduct you to the combat. We are absut to second the struggles of a people now windtaying their independence, and to ressue them from foreign oppression. This is a savered cause, which has the sympathies of the civilized world.

"I need not stimulate your ardor. Every step will remind you of victory. In the Via Sara of ancient Rome inscriptions were engraved upon the marble, reminding the people of their existed deeds. It is the same to-day. In passing Mondovi, Marengo, Lodd, you will, in the milat of those glorious recollections he marching in abother Via Saora. THE PABTING SCENE AT THE TUILERIES.

The following is the extract from the letter of the Paris correspondent of the Past: "For several hours previous to that at which I am writing Paris has presented a scene of animation which belongs alone to large cities and great events—the event on the present occasion being the Emperor's departure from the Tuileries at six o'clock to head the army of Italy. A Bonaparte was once more turning this back on Paris to join the imparial eagles on the plains of Italy. This day will be memorable in the modern history of Buroke, for great events must follow. The people of Paris schemed to feel the occasion, for they flocked from all quarters of the clow. The people of Paris schemed to feel the occasion, for they flocked from all quarters of the occusion, for they flocked from all quarters of the cloy at an early hour, and took up nositions along the Rue de Ravoil to the Lyons Ratilway station. Every window was crowded with spectators, whilst the pathways on either side presented a dense mass of human heings so closely packed as to prevent the possibility of, circulation. Before the departure of the Emperor took place several carriages passed down the Rue de Rivoil, with the Itdies and friends of officers attached to the Emperor's staff and household. They all drove on to the railway terminus, there to bid farewell to those nearest and debrest to them. Prince Jerome, and all the members of the imperial family, the uniteries about four o'clock to bid farewell to these nearest and console the Emperos. Last night, we had the pleasure of "assisting," and, with a very landable ambition, played the character of Macheth—played it very well, too, and had a full audience, who appreciated his performance. When he has a little practice in the part, he will take rank far above the average a very intelligent mind to his task. The Doctrine and its Consequences.

To the Editor of the New York Times.

Slaves, say Messis Wise and Boyoe (indeed, so say the whole South.) are proporty. Not such merely under the local laws of the slave States, but proporty within the meaning and under the protection of the Federal Constitution. Therefore, like other personal effects, it may be removed by its Virginia owner to Kansas, and there held as such. Beling there and thus held and protected, it is inviolable, and no Kansas Constitution can take it away.

To illustrate. An emigrant passes from this State to Kansas with his flocks and herds. Is it not absurd to say that any future Kansas State constitution can impair his right to this property or to its increase? Same things a State constitution an impair his right to this property or to its increase? Same things a State constitution and index of the United States, it cannot do. It therefore amounts to irresistible demonstration, that under this assumption of "property to states, to, who the state of New York never constitutionally abolished slavery. Indeed, the Washington Union once boldly stated this proposition, and who can say, that under this assumption of "property in slaves," it is not a legitimate one?

The stock market was more animated to lay their on yesterday, though prices on most of the securities continue to show a downward tendency. This arises from two causes—one being the recall of least misde to brokers on demand and the other in the fact that their prices of most of the securities more than the tendency. Stocks naturally rise when there is no predictable open-ing for the use of money in bildness parisitis and as naturally sink in comparisons with tip-top paper when the latter can be purchased at seven to eight per tent
