Mr. Deebert, upon taking the chair, expressed his acknowledgemonts for the honor conferred upon him, and his gratification in meeting so no-merous an assembly of his follow Democrats. Ho felt constrained to say, however, that it was to him a surprise, for he had been called to the chair unexpostedly, and without knowing the proise meaning of the call as it appeared. That, how-ever, he presumed would be explained by some of the gentlemen present. Bofar as any movement looked to a more thorough and perfect organisa-tion of the Democracy, it had his whole heart; and so numerous an attendance augured much for the success of the principles of the Democratio party, which he hold to be the very foundation of our Union. So large an arsombly; thereiver, appeared to him to indicate a desire for greater unity and energy of potion, and these only were neces-sary to insure success. Joshua T.
