from the London Bally News, June 14.1 We have found to balleve that the Frends (From the London Bally Kywi, Jane 14.) We have reason to believe that the Frindh Government is prepared to give the new Foreign Minister. of England the most complete profs of the moderation a: disinteratedness of its policy, in Italy. It is ready to declare anew, that not only does it seek no territorial aggraudizement for France, but that it, deslies no thromes for the relatives of the Emperor, or Princes dependent on France. Far from wishing to prelong the war, the desire of the French Government is that it may be short. The war, has been commended for the liberation of Italy, and will be carried on until that object is attained, but only for the sake of the self. Should any powerful neutral-the Frince Regent of Prussia, for instance-find himself in a position to offer his mediation, the Freich Go-vornment would be ready to engage to leave Italy entirely to liself, after scouring its independence. We do not see how France on he asked to go back farther than this, in order to satisfy the re-quirements of Murope; and 'until some fact he-comes knewn calculated to throw donbt upon the intentions of the Imperial Government it would be prudent to accept these neurannes. It is pes-sible to push distrust to an absard and dangerous extent. Frudence is a high, political virtue, but constant and systematic subspicion, and hostility for imaginary causes, sometimes produce the vils against which they were designed to guard.

After he was bit he walked about two miles to Rawley Springs, where our friend bites adminiatered relief in the form of French brandy. He drank about a pint of the brandy, in three doses, which produced no intoricating effect what-over. The youth came to Rawley, arying from the sites, got better, staid all night, and wont homo well in the morning. French brandy is said to be an infallible remedy for the bits of this venomous serpent.-Rockingham (Va.) Register, STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.-During the thunserpent.—Rockingham (Va.) Register, STRUCK BY LIGHTNIEG.—During the thun-for storin on Monday evening last, the Columbia bridge was struck by lightning at the fifth pier from the York county shore. The stroke soatiered the shingles of the roof, slightly shattered some of the adjoining timbers of the structure and passed off without turther damage. There is no appear-ance of fire where the lightning struck, fortunately, or we should most probably have had the destruc-tion of our noble bridge to shroulde. On the same evening we saw the lightning strike the iron rail-ings at the Franklin House, producing only a slight fash, and accompanied by a orack as of an explo-ding percussion cap.—Columbia (Pa.)
