

The Domestic Institutions of the United States: Must they become Uniform?

The Declaration of Mr. Sewall, in his address to the Convention, is an eloquent and powerful argument in favor of uniformity in the domestic institutions of the United States. He argues that the existing laws are a patchwork of conflicting interests, and that a uniform system is necessary for the good of the nation.

The Progress of Principle in Pennsylvania

We are not surprised to find that the Democratic Convention in Pennsylvania has adopted a platform of principle. The report of the Convention shows a clear and consistent stand in favor of the rights of the oppressed.
