A Touching Story-" Truth Stranger "than Fiction." (From the Providence Evening Press, August 20.1 We have just listened to the recital of a "most pitcous tale," that, were not the orcumstances al-roady matters of history, would seem 'too strange' for credibility. About ton years ago there resided in England a sea-captain, his wile, and an only child, a boy of five or fix years. A difficulty ha-ving arised between an aunt of the höy and, his parents, the woman malloionsly abduction the ohld and esseped with him to this country; and found-her ill-gotten charge, ind finally abduction the ohld. The young English, lad, thus, left, without home or protection, of course soon entered upon a career that brough this to the rotor of the boy and acare that brough this to the action the boy and the size it is not known that she over roturned. The young English, lad, thus, left, without home or protection, of course soon entered upon a career that brough this to the notioe of the magistrates; and he was sent to the left for the boy and two years ago he was disclarged as heformed. Since that time he has been goastantly ander the observation of the superintendeut and trustees, and in no par-tioning inscituted as the Reform School. The superintendeut as the always treasured in his heart the name and address of his faither; and, after insoi but he boy had, shaways treasured an his heart the name and address of his faither; and, after his disolarge from the Reform School. The discloring the and address of his faither; and, after his disolarge from the Reform School. The superintendeut as the Reform School. The superintendeut as the Reform School. The superintendeut as the reserved from the right provide of Mr. Clusting he work to his par-rents, informing then and address of his faither; and, after his disolarge from the Reform School. The offert of that lefter can scarcely be imagined dewrifted to annit the '' the ware the '' the address'

atter his disonarge from the flatorm School, by the divise of Mr. Cushinah, he wrote to his pa-rents, informing them of his condition and circum-stances: The offect of that letter can scarcely by imagined -described it cannot, bell it, was said the grave had opposed, and their class bord had come forth to greet them. The father was in the East Indies, in command of a "bin" of which he was a large owner." When in a distant port, he received the lidings that bis son was alive, he immediately sold his interest in the viewel, resigned the command. After the capital arrival in England, and a herried visit to face. "A standard, writing to his son in Providence that, food willing, he would speedily see him face to face." After the capital arrival in England, and a hurried visit to fails or the ship, and a fac-rious gale indechator, on the ship, and a falling spar strick the father's head; causing almost in stant death. Slowly and sally the storm stricken ship foiled back to the port of departure, and the would ling the weeks that must classe before her hashand and her first born for sone, will be restored to her same. Although as sallor's wile, and scoutomed to look calmy on the perils of any grave of the world where sonard the sone on the state of the father's studies to the foot of departure, and the world tilling the weeks that must classe before her hashand and her first born for would be restored to her arms. Although as sallor's wile, and acountomed to look calmy on the perils of any grave of her hashand and her first born for would her hashand in the world where separations conto not, and, storms and ship-wrecks are unknown." They letter amounding the desth of his father and utter depolation. Let us hopp that life you and utter depolation. Let us hopp that life you famors the wind to the shori fam will be guide and support this out, we have narrestal, resched the word when separation the yout, as a singularly and deeplay and the power life own had of a Father who chasteneth whom sever life leveth.
