[North American.] There is a classic atmosphere about its language that is truly refreshing. Mrs. Rowers has spared no expense or trouble in putting this piece upon the stage. To every man or woman of intellect or sullivarient it must be a real luxury, so different is its character from the generality of stage plays. In fact, there is in it a profusion of sery rilinar, good reading, good acting, splendid dangers, and magnifed an entire control of the stage plays.
