NEW YORK, Sept. 13, 1859.

The proceedings at the Democratic State Convention at Syracuse furnish abundant topic for conversation, outside of political circles, and I scarcely need say that one universal expression of condemnation is heard at the brutal rowdyism of the fighting men who went to the Convention as the friends and partisans of Fernando Wood. As a matter of mere policy, it was doubtless the most stupid, as certainty as it was the most suicidal testation against these usurpations of ramaism.

The general sentiment of the party is confirmatory of the action of the Couvention. A majority of the delegation to Charleston are unquestionably in favor of Douglas; and the fact is by no means without significance, that the permanent president of the Convention, Wm. H. Ludlow, who named the committee to report the delegation to Charles-ton, was one of those who carliest took ground in favor of the course of Judge Douglas on Le-compton, and against the policy of Mr. Buchauan. Mr. Ludlow himself is a delegate from the First district, and will exercise in the New York delegation, at Charleston, the same influence that he xeroised at Cincinnati, and has exercised in nearly all the Conventions and all the inside movements of the Democratic party in this State for the last eight years.

The Masonic fraternity are putting forth ranewed exertions in reference to the meralment to Dr. Kane, and with good prospect of success. At the last meeting of the Grand Lodge of this State, a committee was appointed to solicit; subscriptions, and they have issued a circular, recommending Superior Confectionery.—The house of Messis.

E. G. Whitman & Co., Second street, below Chestnut, line a world-wide reputation for manufacturing and selling the purest, richest, and most palatable preparations of the confectioner's art to be found anywhere. The second of their success in pleasing everybody, and having a store crowded with epistomers when all others are dull, lies in their uniform use of none but the finest material, and employing only the most skilful workmen. We would again recommend all our readers who buy confectionerly, as we presume they all do, to patronise Whitman.

Mrs. Wilmot, (formerly Miss Partridge, of this city,) it would appear, was at home alone with her two children our Treeday last and went to draw water from a cistern covered only with a board, in the shed adjoining the house. While she hastoned to return at the cry of her babo, Arthur, aged about three years, it is presumed, fell into the open cistern. In seeking to recee him, the also fell into the cistern, with her babe in her arms. The precise hour at which this occurred is not knon. When Mr. Wilmot returned, not finding any one in the house, he looked for his family, but saw nothing till he heard a grown, evidently proceeding from the cistern, and looking there beheld his wife. The cistern must be quite deep, for he was unable to take her out till he obtained help from a neighbor who heard his call and came in. While drawing her out, the father saw the body of his little son in the water, and on inquiring for the babo, was told that it, too, was in the cistern, from which its body was afterwards recovered.

Mrs. Wilmot is very feeble, almost insensible, and had been able to give very little explanation of the accident. Her life is considered in danger. The children were, the eldest three or four years old, and the youngest about as many months.—

A Novelty in Fashion,—Among the novelides recently introduced in lidies' apparel, is a new article of suspenders. They bear recemblance to those worn by gentlemen, except that they are how article of suspenders. They bear recemblance to those worn by gentlemen, except that they are dego about one high the falls of aboid, with frilled edge about one high the claim of bride, with the life invention will be generally adopted with a view to relieve the waist of the unlimited burden which such habiliments necessarily produce. Renson and experience teach us that the old and absurd method, while followed, impairs the health, impodes locomotion, and tends to ill health.

PHILADELERIA, April 29, 1840.

DR. JACKSON—Dear Sir: Having used your "GERMANN BITTERS" in my family frequently, I am prapared to say that it has been of great service. I believe that in most cases of general debility of the system, it is the safeat and most valuable remedy of which I have any knowledge.

Yours, respectfully.
