The prizes offered for superior specimens of stock, the products of the earth, and for every conceivable variety of agricultural and mechanical skill, are not only liberal, but extravagant. But the process is not confined to the use of rosin, for it "also covers the use of tuminous coal, lignite, or any of the multitudinous forms of hydro-carbonaceous mate. rial." Therefore, a rulnous rise in the price of rosin, anticipated by an able correspondent (whose communication is excluded by its length, for one day at least), need not be dreaded. The organ of the Administration—the Constitu tion of this morning—has an editorial leader, filled with all sorts of gall and wormwood, against Bro-derick and McKibbin, based upon the telegraphic report that the Administration achieved a great triumph in California on the 7th of Soptember. This article shows not merely the anxiety of Mr. Buchanan and his Cabinet that McKibbin may not he sent back into the House of Representatives but it exposes the secret of the rejoicing of the m litary sub-proprietor of the Constitution, who like the monkey dressed in its little regimentals, dancing to the tune of the organ-grinde young and pretty actress who knows that she understands the sextiment of the scene, and who rewrite, and of sympathising with hatreds which he can only understand as they affect his own interests. Eighth and Chratnut .- Time was when Se-EIGHTH AND CHESTNUT.—Time was when Second street constituted not only the leading thorough-fire for all kinds of retail shopping; but in an important sense the business centre of our matropolis. Though active still. Second street has been measurably shown of its laurels in the matter of pre-espinence. Eighth street, between Wahnut and Bach, his not only become an honorable rival in this respect, but actually compares favorably to-day with any other business avenue in the country. This westward tendency of business has been neither unnatural nor unprophesied. The singularly prophetic line of good Bishop Berkeley, "Westward the course of empire takes its way," finds in this, as in a hundred other particulars, a refinds in this, as in a hundred other particulars, a re-markable fulfilment. Chestnut street, for years past, finds in this, as in a hundred other particulars, a remarkable fulfilment. Chestinut street, for years past, has been vielding implicit obedience to this natural law, and still westward the tide continues. We have been the more forcibly reminded of this fact recently by the new clothing palace on the northeast-corner of Eighth and Cheshult stricks, of our circular principle freed. E. H. Eldridre, Esq., formerly located at the corner of Chestinut and Plankin place. He is now located in the very business keart of our retail trade. The present quarters of Mr. Eldridre have been fitted up in handsome style, and present an appearance no less inviting for the superior for the tasteful manner in which they contain, than for the tasteful manner in which the spartments have been arranged for the comfort and convenience of contoners. We have not space to specify the various features of sovelty and elegance which grace this well-located and induirably-lighted establishment, but would add, what we kaper respecting the character of the house, that its position heretofors has been in the front rank of this class of our business houses, both in point of facilities and the honorable mode in which its business is conducted. With this removal its proprietor has judiciously secured unch valuable additional hels, which cannot be employs only workmen of the word shifted class. NOONDAY PRAYER MEETING IN JAYNE'S HALL

The interest in this meeting, which has been increating so much of late, will be added to considerably today by the presence of the Commissioners of the Board of Foreign Missions, now sitting in this city, who are expected to adjourn this day at noon, in order to take part in these delightful exercises. Dr. Edgar, of Belfast, chairman of the frish Deputation now yinging this country, will also be present to day, although he is obliged to return immediately to New York, where his encazements will detain him for some time.

A RARE TREAT AT CONCERT HALL,—On Thursday and Friday evenings of the present week, the A KARE TREAT AT COVERT HALL.—On Thursday and Friday evenings of the present week, the lecture-foing community will be entertained at Concert. Hall by one of the most extraordinary men of modern times: we refer to the lectures to be delivered on those evenings by Rev. Peter Cartwright, better known as the eccentrie pioneer preacher of the West. Those who have read the biographical sketches of this wonderful man's experience among the wild beasts, and the worse than wild men of the Western country, will not willingly fail to embrace this opportunity of hearing and seeing this veteran here of the Cross. The advertisement will inform the reader where ticket many be obtained. These inform the reader where tickety may be obtained. There will be a crowded audience.

STORE TO LET and fixtures for sale by J. B. & The Money Market.

Philadelphia, Oct. 4, 1859.
There is nothing new to report of the stock market, which is still heavy and doll. The money markets a little trighter to-day, under the influence of the New York lank statement, which shows a considerable contraction in the amount of loans—an example that may not unreasonably be followed by the banks of this city, whereby more good paper will come into the hands of the brokers.

The following is a comparative statement of the condition of the banks of the city of New York:
