Mr. MILES, for one was ready to vote for an out-and out American in apposition to the Republican party, and had so said from the beginning. Ho did not vote for Mr. Smith yestorday, because he did not consider bin formally put forward. His first choice was Mr. Bocock, who, he thought, was the most competent to fill the chair. But, as there seemed to be a disposition to unite and harmonize the warious elements against the Black Republi-cara, he was now willing to vote for Mr. Smith. Mr. SMITH, of Virginis, referred to the resolu-tions of the Legislature of that State, in which the Ropresentatives were requested to unite on any pational mag in opposition to the Republicans.
