Important New Mineral Discoveries.

Our California exchanges contain glowing accounts of the riches of the new Washoe silver mine region, and an excitement on this subject greater than that created by the discovery of the Fraser river gold mines appears to exist in the Golden State. These mines are located in the western portion of the Territory of Utah, the principal one being about twenty miles east of the eastern boundary of California. The term Washoe is applied to the district because that was the name of an Indian tribe inhabiting the neighborhood: A number of towns have already sprung up, and it is supposed that before the first of July the silver district will contain a population of twenty thousand. A leavand and experienced spins. posed that before the first of July the silver district will contain a population of twenty thousand. A learned and experienced scien. ready opened at not less than ten million dol-looking forward to the meeting of the Democratic lars during the present year; but this esti-National Convention as an occasion full of interest to mate is probably an exaggerated one. Some themselves, either politically or personally. Those of the ore is said to yield five thousand dollars who recall the excitement at Baltimore in 1844, '48 of silver to the ton, and the silver contains six thousand dollars of gold to the ton. There have already been some large fortunes rapidly made, and for some of the silver leads opened very high prices are offered. The California newspapers attach great importance to these new discoveries, and have concluded that, after making due allowance for the excitement and exaggerations usually accompanying reports of such discoveries, California may confide the country and the such that the confidence of the country and thirsty may confidently country and the country and thirsty may confidently country and the country are also and the country are also and the country and the country are also and the country and the country are also and the count immediately upon her eastern frontiers, sured manes which will annually yield many millions of dollars, and thus form an important element of California wealth by greatly increasing their interior trade and foreign commerce. In fact, so great is the apparent confidence in the her interior trade and foreign commerce. In fact, so great is the apparent confidence in the wealth of these new mines, that the advantage of exporting silver direct from California to India and China, instead of continuing the present circuitous commercial operation of exporting American gold to England and France, exchanging it there for silver, and thence transporting the latter to Asia, is seri-ously discussed—and the hope entertained that in this manner California may be greatly enriched. The most serious drawback to the Washoe mines appears to be the severity of the climate. The winters are said to be inde-

There has also been an important discovery of a quicksilver mine, in the neighborhood of the Geyser Springs, in California, from the richness of which very extravagant hopes are entertained. It appears that, upon breaking large boulders in that region, the ore is discovered in layers varying in thickness; but indicating that the rocks are very rich in ore. Already several thousand claims to portions of these quicksilver mines have been established. The Alta California contains the following description of them:

The piece—for it is quite dramatic—is full of incidents, but we speak now of the Race. There were the jockeys in regular field costume—red coats, caps, buckskins, and tops—splandid horses, well ridden, and the arena not limited to the circle, but over the stage, again and again, with leaps ever five-barred gates, fences, and other impediments. The scene extended back to the Sansom-street entrance, and at last the silver, pitcher is won by Le Jeune Burt. The comic element is introduced largely, in the person
