The Difficulties in Mexico.

Mexico has been plunged in anarchy almost constantly, almost her separation from Spain, except when she found temporary repose an-

And now, in turn, the Constitutional armies are probably sathering around the city of Mexico, and threatening that stronghold of the Church party. If they are successful in that quarter, the star of Juanes will loom up completely in the ascendant. But the truth is, both parties appear to be so exhausted, by protracted conflicts, that neither has strength enough to capture the stronghold of the other, and by a decisive blow of this charac-

As our Government does not recognize the Miramon Government as a bone fide one; it cames conside that yearely salling its may prove a true na er such vessels piratical, particularly when the Juarez Government officially pro-claimed that such was their character, and when there was some ground for fearing that MIRAMON Would not scruple, in consequence of his hostility to our country, to permit ships sailing under his authority to capture Amerisoldiers had pursued on land in destroying the lives of American citizens and despoiling them of their property, was strong presumptive evidence that he would not be more scrupulous on sea if he was sufficiently powerful to plunder our vessels with impunity. But while all that if Minamow, by a combined land and naval attack upon Vera Cruz, was successful in obtaining possession of it, the property, and, perhaps, the lives of Americans residing there would be destroyed, doubtless influenced the action of the gallant commanders of our naiously regions, it is questionable whether they would have captured the Miramon vessels in the latter had not fooliahly fired upon our ships, and thus courted the fate which justly befel While these exciting occurrences have been transpiring at Vera Cruz, the treaty between the Justez Government and our own is under discussion in the United States Senate, and upon the decision of that body the future charac-fer of our relations with Mexico may depend. The treaty establishes relations of a very intimate. Mendly, and mutually advantageous matte, friendly, and mutually advantageous characters. Some objections have been urged to it; which, if well-founded, are very serious but, perhaps, their importance is exaggerated. The opinion prevails, in some quarters, that if this treaty is not ratified, and our Go, werament thus made to assume the responsibility of sustaining a vigorous policy in regard to Mexico; that through the movements of the order of Enights of the Golden Circle, an extensive filibrater organisation said to possess adherents in many quarters of our country, and the action of the Texans, under the lead of General Sam However, new complications will arise that Mexico will be invaded by hole question. The Protective Principle in France.

We desire to direct the attention of the readers of The Pares, to the remarkable speech of the Count Dr. President of the French Corps Leader in the planetory of the recent commercial matry adjudicated between England and France. It is the lesson of one of the oldest statistical rections where the contract of the protection of the oldest statistical rections. of one of the oldest civilized nations upon earth to the youngest and most progressive It affirms the theory repeatedly insisted upon by the advocates of protection of the interests of Pennsylvania, and shows that the doctring of free trade is only maintained by other na tions, when circumstances require that it should be maintained, and shows that discriminations in support of domestic labor and capital are recognised as among the first du-ties of the statesman. The young man may find the old one too tough a customer, and the latter, in order to one too tongs a customer, and the latter, in order to procure a re-election to the position he now holds: may be willing to re-enact the negotiation concluded between himself and that gallant son, of an Iriahman who sleeps on the "Lone Mountain" near the city of San Francisco.

There can be no doubt that the Administration will be heartily sustained by the country in its approval of the action of Captain Turner, in his capture of the Spanish-Mexican cruisers. Fo far, nothing has occurred to dissipate the expression formerly announced in this correspondence, that the ratification of the treaty now before the Senate comerly announced in this correspondence, that the ratification of the treaty now before the Senate will be productive of the happiest results. It is rumored to day that several leading Republicans will take ground in favor of the action of our forces in the Gulf of Mexico. Great Britain and França, in the alternative of war, will not, I think, be on the side of Miramon. The former, through its minister here, has already intimated its disposition to be neutral; so that the solution of the whole difficulty may be left entirely to us. In a case like; this, party politics are lost sight of, and the grave importance of the question itself absorbs every other consideration. There remains a strong bege that no conflict will ensue because of the affair between the yearsels in command of Captain Turner, and the Spanish-Mexican corsairs. That armed invanions may take place is highly proposed by the contest from sprending beyond the capture, referred to. Late news clearly indicates that, Juares received immense accessions since the capture, Keanwhile the parties interested in the capture, Meanwhile the parties interested in the capture, Reaswhile the parties interested in the capture, the south of the detection of the Spanish officials in the act of fillbustering in Mexico. Mr. Slidell's bill for the contest of the co should imitate the example of the representatives of Ferdinand and Isabells. Mr. Blidell's bill for the repeal of the neutrality laws may now become a necessity. We are, indeed, on the eve of great developments, and of exciting changes in politics and in mea.

By the numberous friends of Mr. Cheyney in this city, who know his peculiar finance for the next he By the numerous friends of Mr. Cheyney in this city, who know his peculiar fitness for the post he is about to vacate, his withdrawal will be deeply regretted, although it is not doubted that in whatever other position he may assume, he will continue to exert the influence of an energetic man of business, and Christian gentiemen. The following extract from an article in the Sunday School Times; is suggestive of the loss which the American Sanday School Union will sustain in the resignation of Mr. Cheyney, which is to take effect on the first of April:

THE BLOODY TRAGEDY AT SEA. MURDERER.

IFrom the New York Express of last evening.]

The excitement in the neighborhood of Falton market this (Thursday) morning is intense. Sworal thousands of people have visited the slip where the sloop F. A. Johnson lies, and upon which so terrible a tracedy was enacted, to get a glumps of the fleating slaughter house. The first theory, that there had been nothing but an accident on board the vessel, has been entirely disproved. That one of the mest fout, cold blooded principe ever recorded as cocurring in the noistborhood of New York has been accomplished, there does not seem to be a particle of doubt.

Captain Weed has placed a force of policemen on hourd the scope, in order to provent the excited crowd from account else were not to the doubt of the slip, on the option boats in the slips, and the shree lying in the neighborhood, are morbidly curious people, who seem satisfied at getting even the slips, and the shree lying in the neighborhood, are morbidly curious people, who seem satisfied at getting even the slips that the excitement bods fair to rival that consequent upon the murder of Dr. Burdell.

On Wednesday, no one knew who the fourth man on the slop p was, excepting one of the owners, and to-day in mentional was the more of the will intensity along the first will intensity repairs and ballast, sailing scala no Sunday night for Virginia. The murder must have been committed by one of the crew, for the vessel, on Wednesday norming, was almost too far outside the Narrows for any river practs to approach in a small boat.
