Owners of affected cattle should not has tily conclude that their only escape from loss is to sell their stock, and thus to rapidly widen the circle of infection. On the contrary, while that course may lead them into serious difficulties, there is another one far more jus and honorable, and probably equally remunerative, open to them, in destroying their disesed, stock and appealing to the Legislature for relief.

sent out by the Government to observe it, the Herald says:

"This enterprise on the part of the Government at Washington is suggestive of the fact that the United States has slyways taken a deep interest in science and discovery, and, considering the age of the Republic, it may he said to be in advance of any other nation in this respect.

"No sponer was the Government securely established in its independence than the spirit of exploration begon to manifest itself. The far seeing mind of Jefferson—which deduced from the existence of large rivers at this side of the Rocky Mountains the supposition that rivers of large dimensions lay also on the other side—led to the famous expedition of Lewis and Clark, and the discovery of the Columbia river—an expedition undertaken with a view to the ultimate availability of the continent and the Pacific shore—now being so rapidly developed Since then our explorers have been busy. Both means, and the genius of our race has farnished the mean, until we have penetrated and explored the entire continent.

"In all branches of science we have kept pace European Governments. Any man who, to save a few dollars, sells a diseased steer, that it may spread this terrible disorder through new districts. or who has the same the same common chiest it may spread this terrible disorder through the same common chiest in the same chiest subsist between persons of the same peculiar political stripe, and having the same common object in view. Whether G. J. T. looks with commiseration upon A. S., or whether the latter regards the former as a too ambitious member of his own the still more curious riddle of this movement of the collector in getting up a second Breckin-ridge organization. Time will clear it all up. In the meantime let orisons go up that no great calamity may come of it.

Ex-Senator Dickinson's speech last evening was n elaborate and carefully prepared production. It was put in type and slips sent to the morning papers before the meeting took place; for which reporters were thenkful. As for the meeting itself "At the present time there are two American expeditions on their way to the Arotic regions to pursue the course of science, geography and natural phenomena in the terra integration of the North Pole, if, indeed, any land there be in that inhospitable clims. In almost every department of scientific knowledge our learned men keep even pace with those of Europe, while in many things where energy and daring can accomplish a result they are shead of them. This late expedition to produre an accurate observation of the eclipse is another evidence of the public spirit manifested in the prosecution of accurate scientific information." it was one of the most indicrous failures and farces ever witnessed in New York. Aside from Mr Dickinson himself, who is always able to command the attention of an audience, the thing amounted to positively nothing. The assemblage was composed, nine-tenths of it, of custom-house employees, post-office clerks, laborers in the public stores, and some heads of all sorts.
