Of course, it needs no word of ours to commend to the careful attention of the imaginative reader the brilliantly nostic and eloquently characteristic letter of Ma Florence. It needs repeated perusal to be appre-ciated. It is not often that the valuent and soldierly colleague of Mr. Vanz on the electoral ticket General Kelm writes a letter, but when he doe it deserves military bonors. We give the pith of the General's letter, including his complimentary allusions to The Press. In the meantime (and is a sorry reward for wading through two solumn asble English), we are at a loss to know whether the veteran military man will vote for Breckingles or Douglas. AFFERNOON SESSION.

The Constitutional Convention was permanently organised by the election of Col. Peter J. Clark, of Hunterdon, president, with one vice president from each county.

Mr. Clark, upon taking the chair, made a speech, in whish he declared that the Constitutional Union party was united to the perpetuation of the Union and the Constitution. They asked no higher title than that of "Union savers."

The slavery question should be settled like it was by the fathers of the Republic—by compromise. The Bill and Everett party was growing in New Jersey; men of all parties were coming to it. He lamened the breaking up of the Democratic party, because it had been loyal to the Constitution. He regetted the danger that threatened the country on the suacess of the Republican party.

Edward Keyton, Eq., of Kentucky, also addressed the Convention, and stated that he had reliable information that Bell and Everett would carry Massachuseits, Kentucky, and Tonnessee, and mast of the Southern States.

The nominations were unanimously sgreed to.
On motion, the roll of delegates was called, and those who were not members of the Convention were invited to leave the room, shopping, as course, the repriters of the press.

W. W. Bishop moved that the Convention proceed to nominate enaddates for Recorder of Deeds, Frothonotary of the District Court, Clerk of Gassetter Sessions, sind Geroner.

John K. Zeillu thought it was not proper to make general nominations now, as all the wards were not represented. He was not disposed to act in foothuried a manner. If we transpot matters ter represented. He was not disposed to act in so-hurried a manner. If we transmot matters ten-hastily our constituents will not applied as. MMr. Bishop thought the last speaker had placed a misconstruction on his position. For some years he had taken no interest in politics, but he entered upon the present canvass as one of the most important in the history of our country. He wanted good fart placed on the Bell and Everett ticket, and in mishing the motion to nominate candidater he was prompted by the same harmonious feeding that inspired the Baltimore Convention.

Some confusion ensued, several members claiming the door at the same time. The wollen to Some confusion ensued, several members claiming the floor at the same time. The motion to make general nominations was then agreed to unaulmeusly.

The following nominations were then twede:

An amendment was offered that if any of the above nominees have not already signed the constitution of the Central Association, or ward Bell and Everett clubs, their names be stricken from the list. and Everet class, the list.

This was objected to, on the ground that there were thousands of good men in this city who have not had an opportunity to some forward and ideatify themselves with the Bell and Everett move.

nent. Considerable discussion and a great deal of con Considerable discussion and a great deal of confusion ensued.

Mr. Grayson was desirous that the ticket they should nominate should consist of the best Union men, and be the best ticket that any party could prevent Such a ticket could not be formed hastily. It required care and cantion It was very right that general nominations should be made this afternoon; but having done that, two other things should be done as preliminary steps to the final action of this Cenvention, and these are, first, to ascertain that every one of these gentlemen who are named for the different effices are with us; and secondly, that they will support the whole ticket, and are the very best men that could be chosen.
