Garlbaldi in Naples. There may be some persons who believe, because Victor Emmanuel has written (and published) a letter to General Garibaldi, apparently throwing cold water upon any atempt to invade Naples upon terra firma, that his Majesty is really appious to prevent any trouble to his excellent Bourbon "brother," King Bomba the Second, usually called Bombino, to distinguish him from his father, of accursed memory, perjurer and tyrant, who bombarded his own towns, simply because their inhabitants held the liberal opinions which he had sworn to be his own. ;

Perhaps some of our readers may not liave een Victor Emmanuel's epistle to Garibaldi. Here it is, as published in the Constitutionnel, a Paris journal, and admitted; by such publication, to be correct:

DEAR GENERAL: You know that when you started for Sicily you did not have my approbation To-day, considering the gravity of existing circumstances, I deakle upon giving you a warning, being aware of the sincerity of your sentiments for me.

In order to put an end to a war between Italians and Italians, I counsel you to renounce the idea of

In order to put an end to a war belween Italians and Italians, I counsel you to renounce the idea of passing with your valorous troops to the Neurolitan continent; provided that the King of Naples' consents to evacuate the whole of the Island, and leave the Sicilians free to deliberate upon and to settle their destinies.

I would reserve to myself full liberty of action relative to Sicily in the event of the King of Naples being unable to accept this condition. General, follow my advice, and you will see that it is usoful to Italy, whose power of augmenting her morits you would facilitate by showing to Europe that, even as she knows how to conquer, so does she know how to make a good use of her victory.

The cunning and clever hand of Count Cayour is clearly perceptible in this remarkable nissive. All persons who are acquainted with European politics know that Count Cavour is now the virtual ruler of Sardinia and its recently extended territories in Italy. Within the last twenty years, European diplomacy has gradually assumed a new character. Time was when Prince Metternich was the virtual ruler of the vast Austrian Empire. Under, or rather over, Francis and his successor, Ferdinand, was a Prime Minister who was the real ruler. This man was Metternich. Swept In consequence of the destruction by fire of their away by the revolution of 1848, Metternich passed back into obscurity, and Austria has since been ruled actually by its Sovereign. So > other kingdoms. Certainly, so with France where 'Napoleon' takes' counsel with himself There are two exceptions. England and Sardinia are substantially ruled by Ministers of State, in the name of the Sovereigus England is only a limited monarchy, with Queen Victoria as its tigure-head. Every thing is done in her name, but she has neither hand, act, nor part in what is done. Her Cabinet as it may appear in this country, where "old public functionaries," holding the highest sta-ion, work contracts so that they may support "effete newspapers." and dismiss able Stateofficers because they dare have political opinions of their own, Queen Victoria cannot apshort of misconduct in office.

places the most implicit reliance upon Count

Cayour, his Prime Minister, -a thoroughly patriotic Italian, whose sim is to extend his nester a jover and liberate Italy. We have no doubt that Victor Emmanuel's letter to Garibaldi was written by Cavour. France, Austria, and Prossia are really ruled by their respective monarchs, but Victor Emmanuel fully relies upon the tact, talent, and sagacity of his Minister, Count Cayour.

Therefore, when he reminds Garibaldi that the expedition to Sicily was without his royal approbation, and when he warns him to renonnce the idea, after/having conquered Sielly, of passing with his valorous troops to the Neapolitan continent, provided that Bombino evacuates Sicily, and that the Sicilians are left free to deliberate upon and to settle their destinies-which means annexavery well, what Count Cavour means.

It is merely a throwing of dust in the eyes of Europe -a make-believe, -a sham, -a pretext, all this protest. It is; simply saying, "Joseph Garibaldi, I repudiate your invasion of Naples upon the continent—if you fail. It you win, it is a very different affair." In the event of failure, Garibaldi would be a filibuster, as poor Lopez was in Cuba. In the possible event of success, the protest would be counted Garibaldi was too well bred, of course, to leave Victor Emmanuel's letter unanswered. The following, dated July 27, has been published, in Paris, as his reply:

lished, in Paris, as his reply:

Sing: Your Majosty knows the high esteem and the devotion which I feet towards your Majosty; but such is the present state of things in Italy, that at the present moment I cannot obey your Mejosty's injunctions, much as I would like it. I am called for and urged on by the people of Naples I have tried in vain, with what influence I had, to restrain them, feeling, as I do, that a more favorable moment would be desirable. But if I should now besitate, I would endanger thecause of Italy, and not fuffl my duly as an Italian. May your Majosty, therefore, permit me this time not to obey As soon as I shall have done with the task imposed upon me by the wishes of the people, which groans under the tyranny of the Neapolitan Bourbon, I shall lay down my sword at your Majosty's feet, and shall obey your Majosty for the jesty's feet, and shall obey your Majesty for the remainder of my lifetime GARIBALDI. This letter is short and sweet. As a matter of course, the parties in this correspondenc perfectly understand each other. Garibaldi knows very welt that Victor Emmanuel, having secured Sicily through his gallantry, is perfectly disposed to pocket the remaining possessions of the King of Naples-if he can sately do it, Garibaldi has invaded the Neapolitan territory, and will probably become ruler of Naples and her dependencies without much further delay. Gari aldi, already Dic ator of Sicily, has every prospect of holding the same position in Naples. No doubt he laughed heartily at Victor Emmanuel's dissuasive as to the invasion of Naples by his "vaorous troops," Any way, Victor Emmanuel has acted up to the proprieties of his position. He has warned

Garibaldi against invading the Neapolitan ter ritory in terra firma, and, should Garibald urn a deaf ear to his advice, and conquer the Kingdom of Naples, we may rest assured that Garibaldi will not be scolded by Victor Em manuel and (ount Cavour, when he annexes this kingdom to that of Sardinia. The fact that Garibaldi has invaded Calabria, with a force of eighteen hundred of the gallant men who rescued Sicily from the Bourbon, shows pretty clearly, how little he has been actuated by the nominal prohibition sent to him by Vichaldi has ventured into the city of Naples, there to have personal communication with the revolutionary leaders. Throughout the Neapolitan Kingdom there is the most vehement desire, on the part of the masses, to cast off the yoke of the weak and wicked race who have so long oppressed them. Therefore, the pancity of troops landed by Garibaldi does not matter much. A small force-Garibaldi himself and a dozen other soldiers-would form a sufficient nucleus in the present state of feeling, for a future army. Naples is reported in a state of siege. There is another report, which we discredit, that Austria intended to repudiate the treaty of Villa Franca, and oppose Garibaldi in Napleson the pretext that his operations there might be injurious to the continuance of Austrian rule in Venetia.

Missouri Politics.

Press.

Correspondence of The Press.]
St. Louis, (Mo.) Aug. 20, 1860.
In this State the smoke of the battle, to use an You shall have it. Missouri, you know, adjoins the State of Illinois and in many particulars has an identify of interest. The people of the southern and central sections of Illinois have long enjayed communion of the most cordial character with our own citizens. and thus there has been a sympathy, as I may say, between the two States for years. Illinois has al ways stood up, with unswerving devotion, for her eminent statesman, Stephen A. Douglas. The peo-ple of Missouri, looking at all the contests led on by that gallant commander of Democratic hosts have in a large measure participated in the feeling far him so enthinslastically left by their neighbors. In 1850, the delegates from this State in the Cincinnati Convention were unanimously for Douglas against the field, and it was with the greatest reluctance that they gave him up. Two years later, when the Little Clant went into the former company to the former company to the former company to the former company that the former company the company company that the former company that the company when the Little Giant went into the famous campaign with Lincoln, there was none of that "serene indifference" here that was manifested in some quarters, as to the result; and when it was accortained that Douglas had a majority of ten on joint ballot, in the Legislature, over his Black Republi oan competitor, the triumph was halled in every county with the loudest acciaim. When the Convention met at Charleston, a majoilty of the Democrats of Missouri were anxious to hear of the nomination of Douglas. By the to hear of the nomination of Douglas. By trickery of politicians, they were cheated out of the governing voice in the delegation, so that the governing voice in the delegation, so that the course will be advanced by the abundance of the letter stood equally pro-Douglas and anti-Douglas. the St. Louis district, which always has been over-whelming on the side of the Illinois Senator, as as much soil is under culture this year then last against any other candidate, but he voted every time for Guthrle. But let that pass. When the secession took place at Baltimore, only two of the delegates from Missouri sav fit to go out of the Convention, and those two, it is safe to say, did not receive very high eulogium when they came home. Thus matters stood when the State canvass in Missouri began. Every Democratic candidate for Congress, a large mejority of the newspapers, and all the most prominent politicians of the State, whatever their preferences had been before, immediate the most prominent politicians of the State, whatever their preferences had been before, immediate the most prominent politicians of the State, whatever their preferences had been before, immediately associated and the usual reciprocation of admission prepared themselves for a parade, and they took and the procession and illumitations are expected to be exported. Judge Flandrau, one of the judges with complete case, coming out with a plurality of on the Supreme Re-ch, can hardly be more than acourt 8 000, which was more than the whole number of votes east for Hancock Jackson. It is admitted that some—perhaps many—Breckindige men voted for C. F. Jackson; but it is doubtful whether, if they had not done so, the result would have been changed, except as to the figures. Besides, it has some to light that the more vicient anti-Douglas men, rather than that their votes should count only negatively for Orr, went for him direct.

But this is not the whole. All the Democratic candidates for Congress who supported Douglas Eggs sell for 10 cents a dozen, and beef for 8 cent were elected, with the exception of Henderson who, running against the most popular man of the progition in the State, was basten by test than than 1,000 Opposition majority. Henderson was one of the original Douglas men in the Charleston conded the resolution making the nomination of and South. In Longfellow's Hiawatha, every one Douglas unanimous, was re-elected to Congress, by is familiar with the description of Minnehaba falls a large majority, over talented and well liked Bet and Breckinridge candidates. Another Douglat delegate, Gen. Dorris, ran for the Legislature in Platte county, and was elected, while a Breckinridge candidate (the county is entitled to two representatives) was badly whipped. Col. Claiborne, still another Douglas delegate, was elected somely, while Mr. Clardy, who contested the seat of O'Fallen (Douglas) at Baltimore, and was refused it, was defeated. In short, the Secedors met The vote of Missouri will be cast for Douglas in November without fail. Few regard it doubtful enough to make calculations. Nevertheless, there ere a few considerations that may be mentioned: Three thousand, say, voted for Orr who will vote or Breckinridge in the Presidential election. As many as twelve thousand (and this is a low estimate) voted for Orr who will vote for Lincoln; and yet C. F. Jackson had a plurality of about 8,000 over Orr. Take the Breckinridge vote (3 000) and the Lincoln vote (12,000) from Orr, and you have a argin of 23,000 from which to deduct the number of those who supported C. F. Jackson who will go tor Brookinridge. It will not begin to reach it. It would be an exaggeration to say that Breckin ridge will receive 10,000 more than Hancock Jackson get; and a large number of Democrats will vote for Douglas who were not out at the pells at all in the State election. The Republicans in this State will make no fusion, but vote squarely for their own electors, pledged to Lincoln and Hamlin. To the 10,000 or 11,000 of that party in this county, must be added region bordering on the Iowa line. The aggregate its duties. In this State the smoke of the battle, to use an entirely new phrase, has nearly cleared away, and a survey of the field presents an alarming number of the killed and wounded. You want to know the view of the result taken by a Douglas Democrat?
