Son our first page we print a complete report of the great speech of Sanator Several, at Detroit, "weightard ay. This address of the Governor, together with this circumstances surrounding in delivery, Will, the circumstances surrounding in delivery, give it a national importance, and jastify us in hying it before our readars. The Senator paints the pleture of the present state of our Mittin, and the political evils surrounding it. He does for this that there evids will induce discussion, nor does the peaker anticipate such a contingency. The Demogratic party, the Whig party, and the aborithmed American party had all folled to fur-min, " president counter of the difficulties of the alwery question. His counsel may be openprised in this sentence, from his address : they have the the start and the address : My humble advice then, fellow eltizons, is, that "My apmois arrise than, reitor entries, in the "of figure and re-establish the original policy of the mation, and henceforth hold, as we did in the Deginning, that slavery is and must be only a regnning, has unvery is and must be only a nursh local temporary, and exceptional institu-ation onimed within the slave Rinka Where it al-ready exists while freedom is the general, normal, and using, and permanent condition of society with-in the jurisdiction, and under the authority, of the further and the state of the settler is the settler of the on of the United States." The spe marked with the Senator's usual ability, and may be regarded as very conservative. Hon. Wm. B. Reed delivered an elaborate and fully prepared essay at the headquasters of Secensionists in this city, last evening. The complete address would make six columns of The Press, and we cannot yield so much of our space even to the Honorable William B. Reed. A summaty of the views of the speaker is furnis this reporter. The speaker protests his kind feelings for Bell and Douglas, and is exceedingly swarp on Mr. Soward. He considers Lincoln as a moderate man, yet ortifalias his record as radial. The adianting spirit of Republicanian is anti-diversi fanithing and anthusiasis santimentalian. The principles in the Wisconsin case, familiar to our readers were . elaborated ... He contended that coin. He thought the Republicans were double-dealing on the tariff question, and sited authorities to show that such was the case. Mr. Reed enloigo mow that such was up that in the same introduce on the given Mr. Brockinridge, taking particular care to bill gi that he comes from a good family, and that He is not the Disculouist his opponents charge him with being. He also took particular pains to dany. that Brocking was the President's candidate. Among other things, the speaker, in conclusion paid a glowing tribute to the ability, integrity, and pairiotian of Mr. Bachman

He seems really to be a pretty smart man in certain emergencies, out-witting even his own Breckinridge friends. The collector ing at the corner of Tenth and Chestnut streets, and favored us with advance sheets of his arof Boston having collected some four thousand dollars for the Breckinridge Committee at Washgunnent. We think we do him a kind ser-yice in withholding from our readers his most fimsy tissue of misrepresentations and contradictions. You may of course imagine the surprise of the committee when this cool transaction became known. But, not satisfied with he falls in force he tries to allure with polished and well-rounded periods. His speech abounds in amazing but characteristic effrontery and that, it is said that Mr. Baker pressed the cominsurpassed assumptions. He affects a supernmt. He has a habit of putting on a lofty air in dealing with opponents, and he delights in nothing so much as a meer. Professing to be extra courteous, and pretending to discard everything in the shape of epithets, he con-trives to mingle in all his speeches are contrives to mingle in all his speeches as much venom as can be distilled from his scheming brain. The secondary German States strongly disap-prove of the surgestions of Pransis for the reorga-sation of the army of the Conference on the direct Powers hat I think it not so great as to make Joe Baker nen to elect their secession and sectional candidate to the Presidency 1. This is the main point of the whole speech, if we except some absurd abuse of the Republicans, which would cound better from another quarter, and which seems to be a small piece of Jesuitism when we recollect the violent Abolition record of Mr. REED, ending only when he same into the Democratic party, in 1856. notorious fact. There are some half dozen allusions in the course of this speech to his recent connection with the diplomatic service of the Government, a characteristic abnegation of all party feeling, and a proclamation that he intends to retire from the campaign, and to leave the work to other and younger hands. The compliment of Mr. REED to his patron,

Mr. BUOHANAN, is probably the sincerest part of the whole performance. There is unquesionably a strong affection between these two ardent and warm-hearted men. In all that Mr. BUCHANAN has done to destroy the party that elected him, to break his pledges and to ishauch the public men of the country, he had not only the assistance, but the sympathy of Mr. REED; and now, as the sged statesman at the head of the Government is about to re-tire to the shades of private life, his friend, the late Commissioner to China, will, like his chief; look with joyous complacency upon the wrecks which the policy of the General Ad.

THIN ATTENDANCE.

Wm. B. Reed, Eeq., made his "great speech" last evening at the Headquarters, Tenth and Chest-nut streets. We entered the room at a quarter past sight o'clock, and found a very select audience, of about three hundred individuals, assembled. There were forty benches in the hell. These were comiortably filled with a party of Bell-Evereits, aper. The commuter, the second seco

Mr. Alfred Day closely followed Mr. Reed. He made some sparmodlo efforts to start the applause, and then gradually collspeed. The stage looked as bare as poverty. There were seventeen ompty ohairs. Mr. Day reminded us of Marius, solitary amid the rains of Oarthage. We observed two hais in adjoining chairs, as if to imply that they were taken. There were four transparencies leaning against the wall. The mysterious picture of two rod.faced men riding up a yellow road, toward a dimly.out-lined sharty, with a moite flaming out of one's mouth: "Come on Abs, this is he lane," was still in existence. The Pro-fessor, on Monday afternoon, was confident of being able to start to-day, but after working all day yes-terday in getting the apparatus in suitable order, it became apparent that he could not get every-thing ready so as to start to-day. There were so many ropes to be handled and examined, to see that overything was in order, and the fitting out of the boat required so much time and attention, that it will hardly be possible for the voyagers to start before to morrow. The claims of the imbecile, which a few years since were almost too faint to be apprehended, are in considered and attracted much attention. The corps was out in good force, and locked well.
